LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL MUSICIANS FIRST IN NATIONAL CONTEST

Honors Won at Iowa City In Competition With Best Organizations In Country; Victorious Group of Seventy-seven Students Will Arrive Here Sunday Afternoon Over Rock Island; To Be Welcomed at Assembly Monday Morning.

IOWA CITY, Ia., May 18—(U. P.)—The Lincoln, Neb., high school class A orchestra Saturday night was named winner of the national high school orchestra contest, held at the University of Iowa under the auspices of the National Society for the Advancement of Music. The Mount Clemons, Mich., orchestra won first place in class B.

Besides Lincoln, the finalists in class A were Flint, Mich., Waterloo, Ia. and Hammond, Ind.

Following the final competition, a giant orchestra, composed of some 500 pieces, grouped together from the fifteen orchestras entered played in concert, the program being broadcast from the University of Iowa radio station. George Dasch, conductor of the Chicago Little Symphony orchestra, Sandor Harmati, conductor of the Omaha symphony and Vladimar Bakeleinikoff, assistant conductor of the Cleveland Symphonyorchestra, directed the combined orchestra.

Plan Welcoming Assembly.

Members of the Lincoln high school orchestra will be officially welcomed home from their triumph at an assembly Monday morning, Principal Will French has announced. The orchestra will arrive in Lincoln over the Rock Island between 4 and 4:30 Sunday afternoon.

The victory Saturday afternoon marks the second time that national honors have been won by the Lincoln orchestra, since it took second place at the national contest held at Kansas City in 1924.

The chamber of commerce, local civic organizations and a number of individuals united under the direction of Mr. French and Adrian Newens to finish the job of raising $1,325 with whch to send the orchestra to the contest, after a benefit failed of that amount by $300.

To Charles B. Righter, jr., director goes much of the credit for the rapid rise to national prominence of the Lincoln high school orchestra, according to high school officials. It was Mr. Righter, who, while a student in the Lincoln high school, succeeded in first organizing an orchestra there, in 1911. This first aggregation consisted of two violins, two clarinets, two drums, a cornet, a trombone and a piano.

Curtis C. Kimball, 2600 Rathbone road, received a gash an inch and a half long over his right eye and a slight concussion of the brain when he was struck by a golf ball about 4:45 o'clock Saturday afternoon on the Antelope park links.

Mr. Kimball was badly dazed by the blow which knocked him off his feet. The force of the ball cut to the bone on the right side just over his eye, narrowly missing the eye itself.

The foursome composed of Mr. Kimball, Lawrence Farrell, 1909 South Thirty-fourth street; Harold Pickett, 1400 Plum street, and Capt. H. Y. Lyon, 2610 Rathbone road, was approaching on No. 11 when the accident happened.

A couple of men were driving off No. 18 tee, about 50 yards from where Mr. Kimball was going up No. 11 fairway. One of them made a slice shot, the ball veering sharply. They called, "Fore." Mr. Kimball looked up just in time to catch the ball over his eye. He was attended by Dr. W. C. Becker and taken to his home.

CROWD OF OVER 5,000 ATTRACTED TO HORSE SHOW

Honors Divided Between Entries From Canada And Lincoln.

MRS. FAULKNER IS WINNER TWO CUPS

Mary Stuart and Betty O'Shea Unhurt in Bad Falls.

The Lincoln Junior league's first horse show packed between five and six thousand people into the and six thousand people into the big coliseum at the state fairgrounds Saturday afternoon and evening, and the enthusiasm with which the crowd greeted the numerous contestants was a good indication that league's efforts was a success.

At the same time Lincoln riders and horses fared especially well against a strong field of Omaha horses entered principally by George Brandeis. The honors were equally divided between Lincoln and Omaha entries, with sixteen places scored by each during the afternoon and evening shows. The Omaha entries, however, placed with nine first awards as against three firsts for the Lincoln riders and horses.

Though the afternoon crowd was large and the competition keen, the evening performance was by far the best, more spirited and by far, more colorful.

With the arrival of a large number of Omaha people for the evening, the competition spread from the ring to the audience, with storms of applause greeting the entries representing the two cities.

Competition Lively.

It reached its peak during the harness event when Mr. Brandeis, driving Charleston, and Bert Faulkner of Lincoln driving Beauty livened the program by giving their horses the reign and circling the arena at a furious pace.

The Brandeis horse was awarded first honors, but the Faulkner mare failed to place. Second honors went to Cedar Brest Necklace, owned and driven by Adolph Storz of Omaha, and third to Miss Dougherty, another Bradeis horse, driven by Bert Murphy.

The enthusiastic cheering of the Lincoln spectators again failed to awe the judges in the pair saddle horse event. H. E. Sidles, riding Bailey Bleese, and Miss Margaret Ames, riding Doc Rex, brought down the house with their excellent horsemanship but the first honors and the Harris-Sartor trophy went to Stuart Sommers and Mrs. Cora

Mrs. Morrow and Daughters Make Trip to Summer Residence.

NORTH HAVEN, Me., May 18—(I. N. S.)—Four armed guards tonight protected Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his finance, Miss Anne Morrow, from annoyance.

The colonel and Miss Anne, accompanied by Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow and Miss Elizabeth Morrow, arrived at the Morrow summer home here late this afternoon by air.

They immediately went to the Morrow home and the four armed guards to their station on the outskirts of the estate.

When one reporter, bolder than the rest, attempted to pass one of the guards he was forced back at pistol point.

So far neither Colonel Lindbergh nor Miss Morrow have filed with the city clerk their intentions to marry. The intentions must be filed five days before the ceremony, according to Maine law.

Late tonight it was announced that an official spokesman for Colonel Lindbergh and the Morrow family would meet with newspapermen at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

Whether the date and place of the marriage of the flying colonel and Miss Morrow will be announced at that time was problematical.

It was understood that Colonel Lindbergh would remain here only two days, returning to New York Tuesday in his plane.

STATE TAX LEVY TO BE 2 1-2 MILLS

Increase of 20 Per Cent Over 1928 Rate Is In Prospect.

Amount to Be Raised By Taxation This Year to Total 7½ Million.

A total tax levy of about 2½ mills will be required to meet the expenditures of the state of Nebraska for the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, figured on the basis of appropriations made by the last legislature. The amount to be raised for the annum is nearly 7½ million dollars.

The 1928 tax levy for the support of the state government, including .22 mill for the capitol fund, was 2.06 mills. The increase this year will be almost 20 per cent, made necessary to take care of the disbursements which the legislature authorized.

Out of total appropriations aggregating about $41,000,000 more than $25,000 will be met from other sources than direct taxation—federal aid, gas tax, fees of all kinds, cash earnings of state institutions and plants, and miscellaneous revenue. The amount to be raised by tax levy during the biennial period is $15,153,786.

Half of that sum, or $7,576,892, is chargeable to the first year of the

RUMOR OF FOUL PLAY RIDICULED BY GRAF'S CREW

ECKENER PRAISES AIRWORTHINESS

American Officer Gives Vivid Picture of Near Fatal Journey.

TOULON, France, May 18—(U. P—The crippling of the Graf Zeppelin's engines on her interrupted trans-Atlantic voyage was entirely accidental and due to natural causes, the chief mechanician of the dirigible told the United Press today.

While the passengers of the Graf Zeppelin scattered to their destinations by airplane, steamer and train, new motors were being hurried from Friedrichshafen so that the Zeppelin could leave the Cuers airdrome, near here, where she came down last night after battling a storm all day over France.

Intimations that the engines might have been tampered with were ridiculed by all responsible Zeppelin officials. Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible, refused even to comment.

The first motor broke its crankshaft, the chief mechanician said, and the others weakened because of the increased speed made necessary by the cutting out of the first motor.

Meanwhile, preparations were being made to overhaul the crippled engines thoroughly and discover the cause of the breakdown so that similar trouble might be avoided in the future. The first motor went wrong Thursday evening as the Zeppelin neared Gibraltar on her had left Friedrichshafen, her base in Germany early that morning.

The Zeppelin retraced her route and for the remainder of the day was buffeted by a storm over France, fighting desperately to make progress. She finally was forced to drift to Toulon, where she was caught and moored.

Motors Only Damage.

The Zeppelin's crew began a minute examination of the airship's structure today, but the motors were left for the experts enroute from Germany by automobile. None of the truses or other parts of the airship were broken, although some minor parts were strained or warped. The envelope was intact.

GORDON ASKING ADMINISTRATION MEXICO ESTATE

Lincoln Man Believes Brother Killed in 1906 by Bandits.

Former Husker Athlete Disappeared From 4,500 Acre Ranch.

Believing his brother killed by Mexican bandits nearly twenty-four years ago, Arthur Gordon, 520 South Sixteenth street, filed a petition in County court Saturday for administration of a 4,500 acre estate in southern Mexico.

The brother, Anthony Edward Gordon, a Nebraska university athlete of '02 and professional baseball player, owned the San Pablo ranch located near Pijijapam in the state of Chiapas, Mexico, the petition stated. On Sept. 20, 1906, he disappeared mysteriously.

Natives reported that he had been drowned in a river on the cattle ranch, Gordon said, but although the river was dragged for miles to the Pacific ocean, his body was never found. Another rumor credited by Gordon was that his brother had been shot from ambush by bandits and robbed.

Although owning the ranch, his home was officially in Lincoln, so that when a request from the United States government was made to have the estate settled, the brother filed the petition here.

Flee From Villa.

Following Edward's death, Arthur Gordon and his wife went to the San Pablo. They operated the ranch for ten years, conducting in the meantime a search for the brother. In 1914 they were forced to flee from the country in the Villa uprising.

A servant told Gordon of designs of the native Mexicans and of the approach of a large number of Villa's followers, Gordon relates. The servant hid him and his wife in timber while the bandits raided his ranch. They were able to escape to Guatemala under cover of night.

During the two years following, he waited "until things would blow over" in Guatemala, making hurried sallies over the 180 miles of Mexican territory to his ranch. In 1917 he returned to Lincoln.

At the time of the brother's

FIRE DAMAGES LUMBER YARD

Early Sunday Blaze Destroys Shed At Thirtieth and South

Fire shortly before 1 o'clock Sunday morning destroyed a small shed containing coal and lumber at the Perry Lumber & Coal Co. yards, 3180 South street. Damage will not be heavy, Floyd Philips, one of the partners in the firm said, when told of the fire after firemen had put the blaze down.

Flames were shooting nearly 100 feet into the air when firemen arrived. The top of the shed had already been destroyed and the sides had burned halfway to the ground. Firemen feared that the blaze would spread to piles of lumber west of the shed and to the main lumber storage sheds of the company to the south.

The shed was located on the extreme north and east portions of the yard. A slight breeze kept most of the sparks falling to the northwest, away from the main lumber sheds.

Four companies made the run to the fire. Only one hose line was used and it had to be stretched more than 300 yards to reach the flames. The fire was under control within a few minutes after firemen arrived and was completely extinguished shortly after 1 o'clock.

A large crowd was drawn to the fire by the flames shooting skyward, and many automobiles were lined up along Memorial drive in Antelope park just across the tracks to watch the fire.

C. A. Perry and Bruce McIntyre, two of the owners of the yard were out of town Saturday. Mr. Perry was in Cambridge. He will return to Lincoln today. Mr. McIntyre is in Arkansas. Floyd Philips, said that the shed contained lumber in the north end and coal in the south end but that the loss would not be heavy. He was awakened by the glow in the sky but returned to bed, he said, paying no further attention to the fire.

FIFTY ARRESTED BY DRY RAIDERS

Biggest Beer Drive at Oakland Since Prohibition Law Passed.

OAKLAND, Cal., May 18—(U. P.)—The biggest beer drive staged in Oakland since the enactment of prohibition occurred late today when combined raiding forces of the federal government and the Alameda county district attorney's office arrested fifty operators.

More than a score of places were raided simultaneously here and in Berkeley and Alameda. Liquor and property seized was estimated to be worth more than $100,000.

A sidelight of the raid was that the office of John Filipelli, bail bond broker, was raided and ransacked. It is alleged that Filipelli had been active in bailing bootleggers out of jail.

It is understood that today's series of raids was planned weeks ago.

CONFEREES SCHEME TO POSTPONE FIGHT OVER DEBENTURE

Congressional Leaders Expect to Send Suitable Relief Measure to Hoover Within Two Weeks in Hope Law May Become Operative In Time to Help Handle Big Wheat Crop Surplus Next Fall—Would Delay Contested Export Bounty Feature Until Tariff Bill Brought Up for Senate Action.

WASHINGTON, May 18—(U. P.)—Congressional leaders worked out today a plan to send a suitable administration farm bill to President Hoover for signature by June 1, in the hope that the law may become operative in time to help handle the mounting surplus wheat crop expected next fall.

THE WEATHER.

OMAHA, May 18—Weather outlook look for the period May 20 to May 25,in clusive—Missouri Valley and central great plains: Periods of precipitation about Monday or Tuesday, and again closing days of week with rising temperatures thereafter. Nebraska—Generally afir Sunday and Monday; rising temperature in west and central portions Sunday and in extreme east portion Monday. Kansas—Generally fair Sunday and Monday; rising temperature in extreme east portion Monday.

To speed the legislation now involved in a contest between the two houses, the leaders are promoting an arrangement whereby the debenture provision will be eliminated fro mthe farm bill, and the fight over this issue made when the tariff bill is brought up later for senate action.

They say a long fight over the debenture feature would only delay needed farm relief legislation and that the debenture or export bounty plan more appropriately belongs to the tariff bill.

The conferees of the senate and house who are threshing out the matter will meet Monday to begin working out this plan. They believe they can get the senate to consent to the elimination of the debenture clause if two or three senate votes can be changed. If the bill is passed and sent to the white house within the next ten days, both houses plan to take a vacation for the month of June, with the senate returning in July to begin debate on the tariff.

Fear Fatal Effect On Tariff.

The plan is expedient so far as the immediate necessities of the leaders are concerned, but some fear it may have a fatal effect on the tariff bill later.

If the debenture clause is attached to the tariff bill by the senate a war between the two houses is certain to be reopened and final action on the tariff bill may be jeopardized.

House leaders are pleased with the arrangements they expect to

Undercover Agents Un-American, Judge at Seattle Asserts

SEATTLE, Wash., May 18—(U. P.)—Use of undercover agents in "solicitation of crime" was denounced as "un-American" and "repugnant" today by Judge Calvin S. Hall when he sentenced A. L. Cameron and Ernest Keltz, former sheriff's deputies, for extortion.

"When methods such as this are employed, that of hiring men to trap others into the commission of crime, the law gains only disrespect," the jurist said.

KANSAS TO HOLD BIG WHEAT CROP

Growers to Store Millions of Bushels for a Better Market.

TOPEKA, Kas., May 18—(U. P.) With a bumper wheat crop almost in sight and an uncertain market to receive it, Kansas farmers are turning to means of storing the grain in the state and holding it until the market is on an uptrend.

A survey by J. F. Jarrell, head of the Santa Fe agriculture department, reveals that many Kansas wheat growers already have taken definite steps toward remedying the situation.

Kansas farmers, according to Jarrell's survey, are prepared to store 15,000,000 bushels more wheat on their farms than at this time last year. He estimates the Kansas farmers have available storage capacity for 142,686,405 bushels.

Much more storage space will be provided when the giant combines begin creeping across the prairie wheat fields soon. Farmers, lumber dealers report, are buying material to build storage bins on their farms—many already have bins but have not moved last year's crop.

Farmers Facing Problem.

Even with increased storage facilities, Jarrell's report shows the farmers will continue to face a problem of caring for the large crop.

The survey revealed that counties in the eastern third of the state produced 17,237,417 bushels of wheat and had storage space for 30,912,097 bushels. In the heaviest

They encountered a bad spot in the road, finding an embankment on one side and a deep cut on the other, they were unable to avoid a collision with a car coming from the opposite direction with a party of young people returning from a dance.

All members of the Shotwell party were injured and William M. Shotwell was pinned beneath the car. His face and body were badly cut and bruised and his skull fractured.

Other drivers took him to the hospital where he died forty-eight hours later, never having regained consciousness. The driver of the other car was arrested.

Besides his daughter, Catherine, Mr. Shotwell is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. Frank Boone, Twin Falls, Ida, and Elizabeth, of Dillon, Mont. All three daughters are graduates of the University of Nebraska.

U. S. INDUSTRY IS PROSPERING

Most Active Lines Ahead of Same Period of Recent Years.

Reports For Week Point to Good Progress by Winter Wheat.

By W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, May 18—(I. N. S.)—Most active lines of American industry are running far in advance of the same period in any of the post-war years and net earnings for the representative steel, copper and manufacturing companies are establishing new high records for that period.

The unsettled weather conditions have again hampered the distribution of goods in domestic trade, at the same time cutting down the demand for summer wearing apparel. The straw hat season has little to show ecept a date on the calendar and winter overcoats are as much needed as in the first part of March. In the south and southwest, where warmer weather has appeared, there has been a good gain in retail busines. But this is by no means typical of the important eastern and western sections.

Crop reports this week point to good progres by winter wheat, with reports of the plant heading in parts of Oklahoma and Texas; the actual beginning of the wheat harvest in south Texas; a promise of double last year's crop of soft winter wheat in the central west, partly offset by a good-sized reduction in the southwest; the practical finishing this week of spring wheat seeding, heavy falls of snow or rain in parts of the American and Canadian northwest, where moisture is needed and the continued delay in planting of corn, with prospects of a good acreage in the fall.

Call Rate Drops.

There was not much change in the financial and speculative markets. The mid-May financing, combined with the heavy payments for new stock offered to stockholders through "rights" and the calling of loans by the banks squeezed the call loan market and caused an advance to 15 per cent in call rates, which, however, tapered off to 6 per cent at the week end.

Except for a dozen or more of the high-priced speculative favorites, which are easily made to rise and fall at the whim of the pools and professionals, the stock market was devoid of special feature this week. A 40-point rise in General Electric to 285 was accounted for on the basis of a forthcoming split-up in the stock, though the reports were not officially confirmed. Packard Motors and Auburn gained 20 points each on special developments within the companies themselves, and numerous copper, steel and oil shares made up at the week end the losses sustained earlier in the week. This was the extent of the market's movements, the bulls and bears near the close of the week being closely locked in a battle royal in one or more strategically-located stocks.

The textile markets were active and firm. Cotton gray goods and print cloths were sold in New York at slightly higher prices. Trade in finished cottons was more or less of a filling-in character, with the best demand from the jobbers. The drop in wheat prices to $1.01 a bushel this week cast a cloud on an otherwise cheerful business situation in the northwestern sections of the country.

Financing through the bond market this week aggregated about a $80,000,000, of which the American railroads received the largest portion. Twelve new state and municipal bond issues aggregating $22,000,000 were distributed to investors. An $18,000,000 loan to the Canadian National Railways was extended through the bond market.

Bank clearings for the week aggregated $12,761,784,000, a decrease of 3 per cent from the same week last year.

Wheat Closes Lower.

CHICAGO, May 18—(I. N. S.)—Wheat closed ¼ to ⅝c lower today. All deliveries were at new lows on the crop early. Corn was ⅛ to 1⅜c higher and oats unchanged to ¼c higher. For the week prices for wheat were off 1¾c, corn 2⅛c up to ½c off and the oats ⅝ to 1c higher.

Heavy liquidation in wheat the past week forced prices down to new lows on the crop. Generally favorable weather conditions both in this country and Canada, piling up of old stocks and dragging along of farm relief legislation at Washington figured in the unloading movement. Buying power was lacking in spite of the present low prices. May wheat sold down to $1.01; July $1.14¾; Sept. $1.08¼ and December $1.13¼.

Cables were lower most of the week. News from abroad was bearish, weather conditions being generally favorable. The foreign outlook was for average yields. Canadian acreage is expected to be at least as large as a year ago. Export demand was slack.

Corn was forced to yield slightly with wheat, although news was bullish. It was generally believed by traders that the big decline in wheat has made the corn price level too high by comparison. Cash demand for corn continued excellent. Liberal shipments were reported while receipts decreased. Weather conditions were unfavorable most of the week planting being at a standstill in many sections, due to persistent rains.

Hogs 25 Cents Lower.

CHICAGO, May 18—(I. N. S.)—Hogs closed the week 25c lower. Steers and cows and heifers were steady. Lambs dropped 50c to $1 during the week.

Hog prices had a downward trend this week following an advance on Monday when top reached $11.45. Local receipts were 109,000 against 106,000 last week and 132,000 a year ago. Marketings at eleven principal markets showed an increase of 8 per cent and local shipments declined 25 per cent. At midweek prices had sunk to a new low for the season, bulk of hogs selling under $11.00 for first time since February 26. Today's top was $11.10, with most of the good hogs at $10.65 to $11.

The cattle market moved within a narrow range with demand slack. Week's top was $15.15, with bulk of good steers at $14 to $14.75. Cows and heifers sold slowly. Common and medium cows cleared at $8 to $11. Better grades ranged from $10 to $12. Heifers ranged from $10 to $10.75. Calves declined $1 to $1.50, with top around $14.00.

A heavy run depressed the lamb trade. Arrivals were 87,000, against 77,000 last week and 78,000 a year ago. Wooled lambs cleared at $14 to $15. Spring lambs cashed at $16 to $17.

Chicago Cotton Up.

CHICAGO, May 18—(INS)—Cotton closed 10 to 17 points higher today, with active buying on prospects of unfavorable weekend weather conditions over the belt. The market for the week is 5 to 21 points higher.

The market was irregular during the week, but mostly higher. Generally unfavorable weathe r conditions over the belt figured in the week's advance. Cables were uneven.

Closing prices today were: May 18.95; July 18.89; Oct. 18.8-; December 18.88; January 18.87 and March 18.98.

BOY SLAYER ON WAY TO ARIZONA

Burrows Has Received No Word From Rich Foster Parents.

DENVER, May 18—(I. N. S.)—Richard Nash Burrows, 19, confessed slayer of Jack Martin, Mesa, Ariz., salesman, whose body the youth tossed into a dry wash on the Arizona desert, left here late today in custody of Sheriff Wright of Phoenix. The Chicago youth will face charges of first degree murder in Arizona.

With the same nonchalance that he has displayed since he confessed to Denver police the murder of Martin because he needed money, Burrows greeted Sheriff Wright upon his arrival here.

"Son, did you sign these confessions," Wright asked, indicating the written admissions of Burrows.

Ready to Face Music.

"Yes, and I'm ready to go back and face the music," the lad said.

Among Burrows' effects today was found an expensive banjo, which he admitted stealing from the slain man, along with $40 in money and Martin's automobile.

Burrows expressed a desire to keep the banjo, disclosing that he played several musical instruments.

The murder of Martin climaxed a series of escapades by Burrows after he had left St. John's military academy in Delafield, Wis., last month.

The youth has had no word from his foster parents in Chicago since his arrest here, and said he would plead guilty to the murder charges in Arizona.

To Former Customers
CENTRAL NATIONAL BANK

THE MERGER, effected last Friday, of your institution with the First National Bank, as arranged by the stockholders of both institutions, has met with practically unanimous approval by the business men of this city and the customers of both banks, and is highly gratifying to us.

THE MANAGEMENT of both banks recognized that the joining of the two into one organization would result in economic benefit to the banks, the customers of the banks and to the community. The banks are benefited by the saving in overhead, as it is unquestioned that with all increases in volume of business the per cent of overhead is reduced. The depositor is benefited from the increase of facilities which a larger bank is in a position to offer. The community is benefited by having an institution large enough to meet the growing needs of its industrial concerns, and to attract new ones.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK has faith in the city of Lincoln and the State of Nebraska, and proposes to do its part in forwarding the prosperity of both. It has always believed in conducting a dignified and sound business, and that policy, which has made it successful in the past, will continue.

IT IS the earnest desire of the First National Bank that every one of the new depositors coming to it by reason of the merger retain their account. That is also the wish of the officials of the former Central National Bank, as their stockholders, directors and officers, in full proportion, have become associated with the First National Bank. Familiar faces may be recognized in every part of the bank, and you will feel at home. All customers have easy access to any of a larger number of efficient officers, with many years of experience in the various lines of finance.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK of Lincoln, with its new associates, cordially invites the retention of your business, and desires also to add to its customers any who may desire to avail themselves of its service. Its lobby, or counter space will be adjusted in any particular to take care of the increased business of its customers promptly and efficiently.

Not Pessimism -- Merely Preparedness

MOST roofs are built while it is not raining. Most levees are constructed in times of low water. This is not pessimism—it is merely preparedness!

EVERY husband and wife, no matter what their present state of health, must face the stern fact that some day conditions will change—that a death will occur. The only uncertainty is the time.

NOW—while there seems to be the least need for it—is the time to talk over the making of a will and the selection of a competent executor and trustee. Now is the time to consider the advantages of placing life insurance in trust to insure the benefits it is intended to bestow.

Why not have a serious discussion of the subject at home tonight and come in tomorrow and discuss the matter with our Trust Department.

CITY'S GROWTH SEEN IN HOMES

Building Since War Is Heaviest of Any Ten Years of Record.

Restrictions Potent Factor In All Modern Developments.

Growth of Lincoln in the past two or three decades is clearly shown in the development of its residential subdivisions. A contrast of southeast Lincoln in the twenty years prior to the close of the war, and the decade following, (1918 to 1928), reveals that the city has experienced its most rapid growth within the past ten years.

One of the first high class subdivisions developed is now known as the Mount Emerald addition and is built upon the old Fitzgerald orchard, between D and A streets, and Nineteenth and Twentieth. This property was owned by John Fitzgerald, a prominent railroad builder, and was subdivided in 1912. A large home stood on the corner of Twentieth and D streets. The estate was purchased and subdivided by Col. C. J. Bills.

Car Line A Factor.

At that time a street car line was a decided factor in the opening up a subdivision, they being the most efficient transportation. The first and second Hillsdale additions were between Twentieth and Twenty-seventh streets, and C and A.

About this same time, development around the old Prescott school began in what is known as the Pleasant Hill subdivision. Being near the car line and the school its growth was rapid. It is bounded by Twentieth and Twenty-third, Washington and Sumner streets.

The site of Lincoln's first golf course was later developed by Woods Bros. It was bounded by Twenty-fifth and Twenty-seventh and A and B streets, and is now completely built up with attractive homes.

The next subdivision before 1918 was Franklin Heights, also developed by Woods Bros. This was Lincoln's first big subdivision developed along modern lines. The difference between this subdivision and those of the last ten years is in the restrictions, many of those included in later developments being omitted here, making a difference in the regularity of homes and type of development.

Difference Is Clear.

Within the last ten years, the difference between the older additions and the new is clearly shown. The latter are all south of South street and east of Twenty-second.

Sheridan Place, the first, between Twenty-second and Twenty-seventh streets, with Sheridan boulevard running through the center, was developed similarly to Franklin Heights, except that there were more restrictions and the homes are more regular in size.

Woodscrest embodied the large tract idea in home building. Many of the lots include as much as a half acre. Curved streets, ornamental lighting, parkings, and restrictions insuring privacy are features of the district. A drive through it will reveal the value of restrictions. Homes of less cost are segregated from those of higher price, making for more regularity and finished appearance.

Sheridan Park is one of the talking points of Lincoln as it is one finest home settlements. It is fully restricted and was developed by the Rathbone Co. It was modeled after the Country club district of Kansas City.

Prices Not the Same.

Homes in the north part of the district are restricted in price from $5,000 to $8,000, and range in size from one and a half to two stories. Further south prices increase up to $12,000 and $20,000 in the district from Sheridan to Van Dorn.

Some of the more recent additions in this section are Woodsdale, Woodsshire, Brown Summit, and second Sheridan Park. These have extended the boundaries of Lincoln and compose an area of approximately 960 acres, probably three times the area subdivided and developed in southeast Lincoln in the twenty years previous to 1918.

One of the most beautiful additions of the last ten years is Hazelhurst, near the Agricultural college. In addition to its favorable location it derives much of its attractiveness from its restrictions.

Piedmont is the most recent development and together with some other additions in that section extends the city to the east. It is highly restricted and embodies the large tract idea where homes are surrounded by nearly an acre of ground, giving ample room for landscaping.

Promoted By Operators.

Other additions are Boulevard Heights, East Lawn Terrace, Fairhill second addition, East Lincoln Elm Park, Young's Hyland Park, and many other small additions in the Randolph district. These comprise, roughly, about 960 acres.

Practically all additions developed within the last ten years have been in the hands of real estate operators. They are highly restricted as to set back from the front lot line, grading, type and size of home, construction, restrictions against business, and other protections for the home buyer.

These restrictions have made home buying popular, and now it almost impossible to sell unrestricted property. This is not peculiar to Lincoln. The practice has swept the entire country within ten years.

Modern methods of home development have proved profitable, not only to the operator, but to the home buyer. This is shown in the fact that lots which sold for $400 to $500 have, in three or four years after home development was begun, increased in to $1,000 and $1,200.

Increase In Value.

Many lots in such additions as Sheridan Park, Sheridan Place, Woodscrest, Sunset Hill, and Woodsdale which sold for $800 to $1,000, cannot be bought today for less than $2,000.

The size and number of schools which have been built also indicates the rapid settlement of the district. Prescott, the new Randolph school, Sheridan and Irving junior high all have been built within ten years, chiefly in the last five years.

In driving through these districts one will find a beautiful home of good architecture on nearly every lot.

Another thing that comes with modern subdividing is good taste and judgment in architecture, a knowledge of which is found by real estate salesmen in most prospective home owners.

A great many homes of western architecture, the square frame houses built during the twenty years previous to 1918, have become obsolete. Instead, such types as English Colonial, New England Colonial, Southern Colonial, Dutch Colonial, and Spanish and Italian designs are in great favor.

At the close of the play, the identity of the senior boy and senior girl, considered to be valuable to the school, and chosen on a basis of scholarship, participation in school activities, citizenship, popularity and good looks, was revealed. Irene Apfelbeck was awarded the honor as the most valuable girl and Norman Prucha won the corresponding honor for the boy. Miss Apfelbeck will also be valedictorian of her class. Both the students have been active in the various musical and athletic organizations of the school. Plaques bearing their names along with those similarly honored in previous years, are hung in the assembly room of the high school.

In the grade school inter-class track meet held here Thursday, Frank Fictum ran the 100 yards in 12 seconds; Billy Watkins high jumped 4 feet seven and broad jumped 14 feet 9½ inches. The half mile was a close race between Paul Chase, the 75 pound representative of the eighth grade, and Norman Bice of the seventh. Chase won the race in two minutes, 35 3-10 seconds.

GOVERNOR GIVEN INCREASED WORK

New Functions Include Supervision Of Bank Inquiry.

Law Requires Executive To Hire One Capitol Janitor for $600.

While recent legislation, proposed by Governor Weaver when he took office last January, has relieved the chief executive of Nebraska from such duties as hiring and firing caretakers at the capitol and looking after the collection of gasoline tax from oil dealers over the state, other burdens were placed upon his shoulders so that the whole load will be increased rather than diminished.

Among the new functions that the legislature placed in the governor's hands are an exhaustive investigation into state banking affairs covering a period of ten years past; the compilation and printing of a new edition of the statutes; maintaining a traffic patrol on state highways and administering the new drivers' license law; offering special rewards up to $2,500 for the capture of fugitive bankers charged with felony, and appointing three members of the new state board of cosmetology who who will license operators employed in beauty parlors.

The act making the governor ex-officio chairman of the new game and park board did not add anything to the gubernatorial working schedule, as he previously had control of the state park board and appointed all its other members, while the state game warden was his appointee in one of the code departments.

Things Governor Has to Do.

Here are some of the multifarious matters which the head of the state government is charged with by the constitution and statutes:

Prepare a budget and submit it to the legislature at each regular session.

Appoint one member of the board of control every two years for a term of six years.

Appoint two members of the state normal board every two years for terms of six years.

Appoint a tax commission to serve during same term as himself.

Appoint heads for all the code departments and for a number of special bureaus, such as insurance commissioner, state sheriff, public health director, state fire marshal, and boxing commissioner, to serve during his own term of office, also, under two of the new laws, a bank commissioner and chief game warden for terms of six years each.

Appoint his own private secretary and office helpers.

Appoint a member of the state library commission.

Appoint the election commissioner for Douglas county.

Receive biennial reports from all other state officers and his own appointees.

Appoint all notaries public in Nebraska, several thousand in number.

Issue permits for sale of alcohol.

Sign all requisitions and extraditions for return of fugitive criminals to or from Nebraska.

Heads Several State Boards.

Act as chairman of the following boards: Capitol commission, state pardon board, state board of equalization and assessment, board of investment (educational lands and funds), state canvassing board, state game and park board, and others.

Receive all bills passed by the legislature, to be signed, vetoed, or permitted to become laws without executive approval.

Issue proclamations for primaries and elections and for special anniversaries to be observed throughout the state.

Act as commander-in-chief of the national guard.

Fill any vacancies which may occur in legislative membership, during sessions, or in executive or judicial departments.

Give special attention to automobile thefts and the apprehension and punishment of the guilty persons.

See that the laws are faithfully executed and the state's affairs economically and efficiently administered.

Suspend local officials for dereliction of duty and appoint others in their place, pending trial and determination by the courts.

Absurd and Piffish Duties.

There are still on the statutes a number of provisions, some enacted in the early days of Nebraska, making it incumbent upon the governor to do various things which are impossible under modern conditions. For instance:

Section 5.252-A of the compiled statutes says that "the governor is hereby authorized and empowered to employ some suitable person as janitor of the capitol building, who shall receive a salary of $600 per annum, payable quarterly, x x x and whose duty shall be to take care of and keep in good order the said capitol building and the grounds belonging thereto."

How would you, dear reader, like the job of finding some good man to do all the janitor work in the new capitol and shovel snow off the walks around it in the winter time who was willing to wait three months before drawing his modest quarterly stiped of $150.?

That particular section was passed away back in 1869. It has never been repealed, but has been a dead letter of course for many years.

Another ancient law of the same year's vintage (section 5.251 authorizes the governor to take out fire insurance policies on state buildings and other state property. None of these buildings except the capitol, mansion, improvements at fish hatcheries, state parks, national guard properties, and structures of the public works department, are in any degree under his control. The boards in charge of the state institutions, the University of Nebraska, and the state normal schools carry their own risks.

FLIER CRASHES; UNHURT.

KANSAS CIT, Mo., May 18— (I. N. S.)—Thomas J. Stoker, 23, of Irwin, Pa., student in a flying school here, escaped with only minor injuries tonight when his plane was demolished after failing for man altitude of about 2,000 feet. According to Stoker, he went into a tail spin, but later put the plane into a flat spin, breaking the fall. He was taken from the wreckage by persons who witnessed the crash and rushed to a hospital.

PLAN TO PASS FARM MEASURE IN TWO WEEKS

bring forward next week to pacify dissatisfied elements protesting against the present state of the tariff bill pending in the house.

Republican members of the committee on ways and means will meet in executive session Monday to act on amendments, carrying out some of the wishes of the bloc. These amendments will be ratified by the full committee Tuesday and immediately thereafter presented to the house where they are expected to be adopted without serious objection. The leaders count on these amendments to draw the farm bloc into line in support of the bill and predict its final passage by the end of next week.

Both houses were in recess today in preparation for next week's events. The unfinished business of the senate is the census and reapportionment bill which senate leaders believe will be placed before the middle of the week.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, May 18—(I. N. S.)—The congress that President Hoover summoned to Washington in special session to do a hurry-up job of enacting farm relief and tariff revision ended its fifth week today without having accomplished either.

Progress has been made, it is true, in both directions. But it has been slow progress, with much snarling and snapping and partisan headcracking.

Five weeks' labor finds both the farm relief and tariff bills pretty well tangled up in a skein of parliamentary procedure and partisan politics.

Both houses have passed the farm bill, but the senate tacked onto its bill the much-discussed debenture plan, half-sister to the historic equalization fee. It has been ordered to conference between committees of the two houses, and next week the measure probably will emerge shorn of the debenture plan. A majority of the conference committee opposes it. Thereafter the two houses will enact the conference bill—although not without more fighting, oratory, and back-stage maneuvering.

But even though the debenture plan is cut from the farm bill, the administration has not heard the last of it. The last ditch debenturites plan to tack it onto the tariff bill as a rider, and that will mean the fighting all over again.

The tariff bill contains promise of enough trouble even without the debenture, for party lines have been shot asunder on the sugar schedules and the mid-western farm bloc is howling that the kind of a tariff bill proposed won't help the grain belt.

Confronted with such a situation, the leaders have put their heads together and agreed to recess as soon as possible. That means that as soon as the house passes the tariff bill, and perhaps the reapportionment bill, it will recess for six weeks while the senate finance committee undertakes to re-write the measure, or at least hold hearings so that the disappointed interests may have an opportunity to voice their grievances.

The senate meanwhile would struggle on, with the tariff bill in committee, and having little ot do. Recesses would be taken from time to time until about the first of August when both houses would be called back to wind up the session.

Plans May Go Astray.

Such are the plans of the leaders. Whether they can be carried out or not remains to be seen. Not many of the leaders' plans thus far in the session have been carried out.

The fifth week of the new congress saw President Hoover win his first victory in the senate on a test of strength—the confirmation of ex-Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, as a judge on the United States Court of Claims. Prior to that, the new president had twice been rebuffed by the senate—once when it rode over his ten "don'ts" in passing the debenture amendment to the farm bill, and again when it refused to give him carte blanche in the selection of a chairman for the new farm board.

In the senate the unfinished business is congressional reapportionment. In the house it is the tariff. Both will occupy another week at least, at the present rate of progress.

Claims Students Not Generally Employed To Get Dry Evidence

WASHINGTON, May 18—(I. N. S.)—College students are not generally employed as prohibition informers, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman said today, in commenting on the testimony of a dry agent in Boston that Harvard men had assisted the federal dry bureau.

While informers are hired by the district administrators, all contracts must be submitted to Lowman for approval. They are carefully scrutinized. Lowman said that he did not recollect a single case where a contract has been made with a college student.

The tipsters draw a salary of $5 a day, when working, receive an additional allowance of up to $5, with the stipulation that payments to any one person cannot exceed $425 annually.

About one hundred contracts a month have been signed in the past year. Most of the informers work only a few days and operate on special cases of which they have personal knowledge.

Arsenic Seeping Into Well Imperils Family

Suspicion That Water Was Contaminated for Vengeance Discarded by Officers.

GUNNISON, Colo., May 18—(IN S)—Sheriff's officers tonight discarded the theory of a poison plot against the James Ogden family following discovery that water in a well on the Ogden ranch had apparently become impregnated with arsenic poisoning that had seeped through an underground source.

Belief was expressed that the arsenic may have come from a distant industrial plant.

When Mrs. James Ogden died and five other members of the Ogden family were stricken with arsenic poisoning suspicion prevailed that they were victims of a poison plot motivated by vengeance.

Authorities today made tests at the well which disclosed that water run into the well after it had been drained showed traces of arsenic, indicating that the chemical was seeping through the ground into the water.

James Ogden and his daughter, Mary 24, are still critically ill from the contaminated water, and three younger members of the family are rapidly recovering.

LINDY AND ANNE LAND SAFELY AT HOME IN MAINE

Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, Miss Elizabeth Morrow, Miss Constance Morrow and Miss Morrow's secretary, Mrs. Joseph Lambert.

The party hadstopped on their air voyage up the coast at the Portland airport in Scarboro to refuel and after twenty minutes started north, arriving here about an hour after leaving Scarboro.

Because of the strong wind the "Lone Eagle" was obliged to circle around over the island several times before coming down.

When the plane dropped on the water about 100 feet off the rocky shore in front of the Morrow estate it was pitched about for several minutes by the long rollers of the mighty Atlantic.

Met By Motorboat.

Apparently by pre-arrangement, and as soon as the airplane was sighted, Edward Dyer put out of the harbor in his powerful motorboat. As Lindy brought the five-passenger cabin amphibian to the Atlantic, Dyer swung over toward her and when the plane, circling around, came to a stop Dyer churned up to her side in the motorboat.

Colonel Lindbergh assisted Mrs. Morrow, his fiancee, her sisters and the private secretary from the cabin of the amphibian to the open motorboat.

Before any of the islanders could get near the Morrow estate the motorboat had landed the party on the shore.

After the women had been safely placed on land, Lindbergh returned to the amphibian and with the aid of the powerboat hauled her up to the shore where she was anchored.

News of the unexpected and unannounced arrival of the Morrows spread like wildfire throughout the village and caused a wave of excitement.

producing area, Ford, Barton and Reno counties, nearly 2,000,000 more bushels of wheat was produced than in the thirty-nine eastern counties, and these counties have storage space for only 12,360,802 bushels.

In making use of full capacity of all agencies, Jarrell estimates that Kansas will be able to put 270,000,000 bushels of grain in store. In addition to farm facilities, he estimates the elevators in the state can handle 55,000,000 bushels and mills will have a capacity of 34,000,000. However, considerable of this space is taken up with other grains whose total production exceeds 414,489,355 bushels.

One of Kansas' greatest problems now is to see that storage is distributed according to production, Jerrell said.

Lincoln High School Orchestra Wins National Contest At Iowa City

Obituary

MRS. J. E. HOLLEY.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Wilson, 210 North Fifty-sixth street, who died May 5, 1929 at the Bethesda hospital at Cincinnati, O., after a series of operations.

Emma Wilson was born March 5, 1890 at Giltner, Neb. She was educated in the grade schools of Bertrand, Neb., and later attended high school at Holdrege and Utica, Neb. She was a member of the Community church choir and was serving her third term as president of the Mariemont P. T. A. # RUMOR OF FOUL PLAY RIDICULED BY GRAF'S CREW with the exception of two small tears.

Eckener left the ship briefly during the night to rest, while the German crew and French troops remained on guard. He returned early in the morning and was pleased at the condition of the ship after he had examined it.

"That should prove the airworthiness of Zeppelins", he said. "We rode through one of the worst storms I have ever met in the air. If we had all the motors going we would have made Friedrichshafen easily, but slowly."

The passengers, gratified at their escape from disaster, all admitted that the experience was harrowing, although they had high praise for Eckener's handling of the ship. Sir George Hubert Wilkins, polar explorer said:

"I would rather fly to the North Pole than to start such a flight again. There are things you can do with an airplane that you can't do with a Zeppelin. I would have given anything to have been able to bring the ship down when we passed near Marseilles the first time. I have ridden many a storm in airplanes during my life, but I never saw anything comparable to yesterday's. We swung, twisted, spun, rocked and bucked like a broncho. It was a hard test of a man's stomach and nerves."

Lieut. Com. Vincent Clark, United States navy, who was aboard as Eckener's guest and an unofficial American observer, described the experience as "thrilling."

Close to Death.

"It was undoubtedly the closest any of us ever have been to death," he said. "But much has been proved by the Graf Zeppelin's ability to ride out that storm."

Clark described the experiences of the passengers as "pages out of an old-fashioned melodrama." The passengers, he said, were obliged to sit or lie down to avoid being thrown against the walls at every violent lurch of the ship. The dirigible frequently shuddered from stem to stern, making movement impossible for the passengers and difficult for the crew.

Although 3,000 pounds of food was aboard, it was impsoible to eat, even if most of the passengers hadn't been too sick to eat, Clark said.

The most dramatic moment of the flight came near Monielimar, he continued, when the ship listed at an angle of almost 45 degrees. The wind was almost cyclonic, and Clark could see motor trucks loaded with French troops following the path of the dirigible, ready to assist if the ship were dashed to the ground.

The gorrila, Susi, which was being carried to the Chicago zoo, proved a better sailor than most of the humans and was only slightly othered by the rough trip. She was housed in a locked room at the airdrome barracks overnight and was an object of much curiosity.

Mrs. Mary Pierce of New York, the only woman among the eighteen passengers, received a United Press correspondent when she awakened at the Grand hotel in Toulin this morning and insisted that she enjoyed every minute of the trip.

"I never slept better in my life than last night," she said. "I am ready to go again the minute Commander Eckener says the ship is ready. I certainly haven't cancelled my pasage and don't intend to."

STATE TAX LEVY TO BE 2 1-2 MILLS

biennium. But included in the appropriations is $980,000 to be derived from previous levies which the recent legislature reappropriated. This should be deducted to ascertain what must be raised from the 1929 levy. The difference is $6,596,892.

However, there is another item to go in on the other side. This is $639,621 of emergency appropriation which the legislature made outside of the budget. Some of these have already been paid out of the treasury and the rest will be in the near future. Adding them in, the total income needed from the 1929 state tax levy is increased to $7,236,514.

Of that amount, $150,000 is expected to be realized as the proceeds of the new intangible tax law. This leaves $7,086,514 as the net sum necessary to meet the financial obligations of the state government during the fiscal year which begins July 1.

Under the law, 4 per cent in excess of the estimated tax revenue must be levied, in order to pay the fees of county treasurers for collecting and remitting it, and to allow for a small proportion of taxes that will not be paid. When that is done the total is boosted to a little less than $7,400,000.

The grand assessment roll of the state will be in the neighborhood of $3,125,000,000 on which a levy of 2½ mills will produce that amount of tax income for the state treasury.

Official action in the matter will not be taken by the state board of assessment until early in July, after the various counties have finished equalizing and sent in their property valuations. The state tax rate may go up or down slightly from the indicated figure, according to the total assessment; but it will be in the neighborhood of 2½ mills, for other purposes.

ASKS FOR DIVORCE.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., May 18—Mrs. Jessie Miller has filed suit in District court asking a divorce from E. R. Miller. She alleges they were married in Kansas, November 1898 and since that time she has been obliged to work to support herself and husband.

CROWD OF OVER 5,000 ATTRACTED TO HORSE SHOW

DeLacy of Omaha riding two horses owned by William Nesselhaus of Omaha. Mr. Sidles and Miss Ames placed second.

Mrs. Bert Faulkner acquired a second silver trophy during the evening when she won the combination five gaited event. She was riding Nana, the same horse which gave her first place in the same class during the afternoon competition. The cup which she won in the evening had been offered as a prize by her husband.

Second place in this event was won by George Brandeis, riding Jackie Coogan, while third honors went to another Faulkner horse, George McDonald.

Pi Phi Wins Cup.

Miss Betsie Ross of Omaha, riding a Fort Omaha horse, Duke, won the hurdling event, with Wilbur Smith of Omaha, on Sky Pilot, second, and Keith Walker of Lincoln on Shannon, third.

Miss Margaret Ames of Lincoln won the sorority cup for Pi Beta Phi. Miss Virginia Faulkner, representing Alpha Phi placed second, and Miss Jane Beaumont riding for Kappa Kappa Gamma won third. The cup was offered by Faulkner Bros. & Walker, and will become the property of the sorority winning it three times.

The trophy offered by Magee's in the five gaited saddle horse event was carried off by Stuart Sommers of Omaha on Prince Dare, with Mrs. Bert Faulkner on Nana placing second, and Miss Margaret Ames on Colonel winning third.

Miss Dorothy Higgins of Omaha riding Peggy O'Neil, a Brandeis horse carried off all the honors in the regular saddle horse class.

The trotting event was won by W. G. Beezley of Syracuse, whose second entry also took second place. Third was won by Bert Shreves of Lincoln.

Mr. Brandeis and Jean Eppley provided the crowd with an extra thrill when they exhibited their two famous trick horses, Fontenelle and Silver Lady. Another specialty was Gallant Lad, the famous show horse which has only once been defeated in almost worldwide competition. The animal was ridden by Mary Virginia Louis, Mr. Brandeis' young neice.

Miss Faulkner Wins.

Lincoln riders and horses fared well in the afternoon events, winning eleven of the twenty awards, but Omaha carried away five of the seven first awards.

One of Lincoln's blue ribbons was carried off by Miss Virginia Faulkner, riding Waco, a chestnut gelding of the E. J. Faulkner stables, in the saddle horse event.

Mrs. Bert Faulkner was awarded a beautiful silver loving cup, presented by Lee Metcalf of Omaha, when she rode Nana, a bay mare to first place in the five-gaited saddle horse class.

The Junior League trophy was presented to Miss Mary Virginia Louis, niece of George Brandeis of Omaha, when she was judged the best rider in the junior class event. Miss Louis competed against seventeen other children ranging from nine to fourteen years old. She rode Mary Pickford, a handsome black and white spotted pony of the Brandeis stables.

Lincoln Entries Win.

Billie Weil of Lincoln placed second in this event and Bob McNerney, third.

These youngsters, all of whom managed their horses with surprising expertness, drew the largest storm of applause of the afternoon. They also provided the only real thrill of the afternoon.

The spectators were brought to their feet in shrill screams of horror when little Mary Stuart, during a fast gallop, was brushed from her saddle and fell to earth apparently under the feet of a half dozen horses. During the confusion that resulted Betty O'Shea, another tiny rider lost her balance and tumbled to the ground while her horse raced on at a speedy clip.

Neither girl was seriously hurt and both drew the crowd to its feet in admiring cheers when they mounted new horses without hardly a trace of nervousness.

Mary Stuart, when asked by the judges who rushed to her aid, if she was hurt answered:

"He just stepped on my foot. Will you hold him till I get back on."

Urgings of friends that she not ride again had little or nor effect on Betty O'Shea. She was back in the arena as soon as a horse was available.

Caused by Loose Wrapping.

The loosening of a leg wrapping on the horse ridden by Mary Stuart is said to have caused the accident.

Omaha entries carried away all the honors in the hurdles event. Two entries of the army post at Fort Omaha took first and second. Duke, the winner, was ridden by Miss Betsie Ross, and Rex, taking second, was ridden by Mrs. Arthur H. Scribner. Third honors went to Wilbur Smith of Omaha, riding Sky Pilot, a sorrel gelding.

Stuart Summers of Omaha, riding Prince Dare, took first place in the model class for five-gaited horses, with Bert Murphy of Omaha on Sally Murphy, second, and Allen Walker of Dunbar, third.

In the saddle horse event, which was won by Miss Faulkner, Warren Thomas, riding Maud McDonald, a Sidles stables mare won second, and Nathan Gold of Lincoln, riding Sea Breeze, placed third.

In the five gaited saddle horse event, which was won by Mrs. Bert Faulkner, Warren Thomas, riding a Sidles gelding, placed second, while H. E. Sidles, riding Doc Rex, was awarded third.

Miss Higgins Best Lady.

Miss Dorothy Higgins of Omaha, riding a Brandeis horse, was adjudged the best lady rider in a field of seventeen entries. Miss Margaret Ames of Lincoln was second, and Mrs. Richard Rogers was third. C. P. Cauthorn, one of the judges, later declared that the riders as a group were the best he had ever seen.

A combination harness and saddle event brought the competition to a close. The silver loving cup presented by Herbert E. Gooch of Lincoln was carried away by George Brandeis of Omaha, who road and drove his beautiful chestnut mare, Peggy O'Neil. Second place was awarded to Adolph Storz of Omaha, riding a sorrel gelding, Highland Mont Rose.

Dick Faulkner of Lincoln driving John Brown, another sorrel gelding, placed third.

death, only Mrs. Amanda H. Gordon, the mother, and Addie M. Eberly, a sister, were living, the petition states. They died, the mother in 1917 and the sister in 1921, before the estate came up for settlement.

Now only Gordon and the sister's two children, Gordon Q. Eberly, of Chicago, and Walter K. Eberly, living here with his uncle, survives as heirs, it is set out.

Before Claims Court.

Claims to the estate are now pending before the special claims commission, composed of representatives of Mexico, the United States and Peru, which broke up in a deadlock before settling any of the disputes, according to Bernard S. Gradwohl, attorney for Gordon.

Gordon expects to get nothing from the estate, but since he started the claim, he said, he would go through with it. The unsettled condition of the estate has prevented a formal filing of the claim with the claims commission. In the request for the administrator's appointment, sought by Gordon, the petition points out that since the brother has been gone for more than seven years, he is in the eyes of the law, dead.

In Lincoln the missing brother was known as "Eddie" Gordon. He was a baseball player, track man, and bicycle racer at the university in the early 1988's. After leaving the university he played professional ball with the Omaha and Denver baseball clubs in 1904 and 1905, his brother said.

Then in the fall of 1905, with Jack Everett, a classmate of Lyons, Neb., he started on the Mexican adventure. Money to buy the land at 50 cents an acre was borrowed from his brother, mother and sister.

The land when the 1914 uprising took place, was worth $5 an acre, Gordon said. He lost 500 head of cattle in the bandits' raid.

Colorado University To Have Dormitories For Freshmen Girls

BOULDER, Colo., May 18—(U. P.)—All first year women students at the University of Colorado must live in dormitories for freshmen women to be constructed by the university with a fund of $800,000 begun here today with a gift of $300,000 by Mrs. Verner Z. Reed, wealthy Denver woman. Announcement of the gift and of the compulsory provisions of the plan was made by President George Norlin.

Dr. Norlin said the university regents at their May meeting approved the plan to construct the dormitories as soon as the additional $500,000 was raised.

The last legislature rejected an appeal of the university for construction of the dormitories and the university authorities then began plans to raise the necessary funds by private subscriptions.

The Greek sororities on the campus will not pledge women students until their second year, according to present plans.

Dr. Norlin said experience of other institutions of learning had shown the plan to be practical and ample funds would be secured from rental of the dormitories.

The Allentown club in the Eastern league is a brand new addition in both city and players. Allentown took the place of Waterbury but the players were recruited.

ASK THE HOME FOLKS ABOUT THIS MEDICINE

Let Them Tell You Why They Think Miller's Herb Extract is the Greatest Tonic Laxtive They Ever Used.

Thousands of Bottles were Sold in Lincoln During Past Few Weeks.

If you are troubled with constipation, stomach disorders, sluggish liver, under weight, have lost your appetite and have that worn-out feeling, why not call and learn about this great Herb Remedy that has received the praise of hundreds of thousands thruout the country? Remember, you cannot expect to have clear, sparkling eyes, rosy cheeks and that quick, snappy movement which is admired by everyone unless the system is kept free of poisonous wastes that accumulate due to faulty elimination.

NOBODY KNOWS HOW THANKFUL I AM FOR HERB EXTRACT

Retired Farmer Says this Great Medicine has Restored him to Perfect Health after Suffering for Years. Wants Others to Know About it.

"Nobody knows how thankful I am for the great Herb Extract Remedy, for it seems to have completely reconstructed my whole system and has relieved me of a stubborn case of constipation and kidney trouble of many years standing, and I am indeed pleased to publicly endorse such a worthy medicine as I have found Herb Extract to be for the benefit of others who may be suffering as 'I was,'" said Mr. Fred Schmidt, Sr., who resides at DeWitt, Nebraska, Route No. 1, in a recent conversation with a special representative from the Herb Juice Medicine Company's Laboratories who has headquarters at Harley's Drug Store.

MR. FRED P. SCHMIDT, SR.

As he continued his story Mr. Schmidt said, "I am now past 77 years old, but must admit that I feel younger and am much more supple, have more vigor and energy than I have in several years. Before taking Herb Extract it seems that I had been failing in health rapidly. It seemed that my whole trouble was based on a very stubborn case of constipation. Unless I would take some sort of a strong purgative my bowels seemed to refuse to act. I was also troubled a great deal with kidney disorder and had to be up and down several times at night, but now since taking this great Herb Extract remedy or Herb Juice as it is caled, I am thankful to say that my troulles have ended. I have only taken a few bottles of this great medicine but my constipated condition, from which I suffered for so many years, has entirely left me. I can rest peacefully the whole night through because my kidney disorder is a thing of the past. I have a splendid appetite, can eat anything I want and enjoy it, and am built up in every way in proportion. As I said in the beginning I certainly am thankful that I found Herb Extract and now that I have found it I never intend to be without it."

It is quick results every sufferer wants and Herb Extract brings results over night as thousands of statements, similar to the above from grateful users indicate. This remarkable preparation contains herbs, leaves and barks that promote gastric juices that are necessary to regulate bowel action and insure good health. Hundreds are calling daily to see the special representative direct from the Herb Juice Medicine Co., who has established headquarters at Harley Drug Store, 11th & O Sts., to learn more of this great medicine that is bringing health and happiness to so many Lincoln citizens.—Adv.

POULTRY WORTH LARGE AMOUNT

Accredited Flocks in Webster County Swell Values.

(Special to The Star.)

RED CLOUD, Neb., May 18—Webster county has twenty-three flocks of state accredited chickens and ranks as one of the leaders in this respect in southern Nebraska, it was found by officers of the Nebraska Poultry Improvement association, which is carrying on this work. All of these Webster flocks have been found to measure up to the standard set by the association in both breed characteristics and in egg production possibilities. Eggs from these flocks are now commanding a premium on the market and as hatching eggs, according to reports being received from the flock owners.

Webster county figures prominently as a poultry community and stands out as one of the leaders in the state. The county has close to 193,000 chickens on its farms. These chickens mean over $161,000 in value to the county, and figuring their egg production, which totals approximately 216,000 dozens, this sum is increased by $180,000.

With the advent of accreditation in this county poultry is taking on noticeable improvement. Already poultry and hatchery interests are being established, one of the most successful hatcheries in Nebraska being located in this county, and is state accredited. This trend of the poultry business in Webster county indicates its importance in its agricultural scheme. Farmers are beginning to think of their chickens as a leading form of live stock, having realized through accreditation that with a little extra care and attention chickens are exceedingly profitable.

(Special to The Star.)

ORD, Neb., May 18—Frank J. Dworak, sr., who first entered business in Ord in 1888, today announced that he had sold the Model grocery to his son, Frank, who will take charge as soon as possible. Mr. Dworak is one of Ord's oldest business men in terms of years of service. He first came to Ord in 1888 and opened his initial store which was known as the "Cesky Obchod." Later his business expanded and he built a large brick building, which he later sold to the Farmers, and he then retired for a few months, only to buy the Model grocery.

About thirty interested dairy farmers have signified their intentions of joining the association. It will be the first one to have ever been organized in this country.

Keep Eyes On Instrument Board.

Watching the oil gauge on the instrument board, the ammeter and the oil level in the crank case should be made a habit, for it is easy to run low on crank case oil and distilled batter water without realizing it, and oil pressure sometimes needs adjusting.

Auto Notes

Brake Adjustment Must Be Perfect.

Bad break adjustments will wear the tires out in no time at all and this may result in a bent front axle. If one front brake is tighter than the other and pressure is applied quickly in an emergency, the front axle is subjected to a twisting strain which even the toughest steel cannot resist.

Installing New Timing Gears.

In the installation of a new set of timing gears, it is imperative that the relative positions of the crankshaft and camshaft be absolutely preserved in order that the timing remain unchanged. One method of achieving this result is to leave the old gears in position until the new set is ready to be attached. One method of anchoring the two shafts is to wedge the flywheel so it cannot turn. The stiffness of the new gears makes the task more difficult.

The cause of a storage battery overheating may be charging too rapidly or not enough solution of distilled water to cover the plates. Results may be buckled plates. The battery temperature should be below 110 degrees.

DESOTO STYLES MEET DEMANDS

Bodies Built to Satisfy Every Need of Critical Motorist.

More car for less money!

That is what automobile manufacturers have been trying to accomplish since the pioneer days of the industry, according to Karl H. Bronson, director of advertising for the De Soto divisions of Chrysler Motors, in a recent interview at Detroit.

"In designing De Soto Six bodies," Mr. Bronson said, "Chrysler engineer's predominating idea was to give greater luxury and more comfort than was ever before found in the field of moderate-priced 6-cylinder cars. That is the principal reason for the universal popularity of De Soto body styles. It explains, too, the great increase in production to keep pace with demands of dealers for new cars from our plant.

"The interiors reflect the studied care taken to provide for the comfort and pleasure of those who demand not only beauty of design but also easy riding qualities and luxurious appointments as necessities in their personal automobile. This roominess and comfort are the keynotes of every interior in each De Soto model. Seats with saddle spring cushions have been scientifically planned to conform to the most restful and healthful sitting postures. There is surplus of head-room and leg-room in front and rear. The soft shading of the upholstery satisfies the eye of the most discriminating and critical.

"In the closed bodies, the upholstery is of genuine, rich mohair, while tan pigskin grain leather has been chosen for the open styles and business coupe. Doors are wide and staunchly constructed, drafts and squeaks being eliminated by large rubber windlaces and stripes to insure an exceptionally close fit to the body."

CELEBRATION BY WYMORE COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. James Wymore Married Fifty-seven Years.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., May 18—Jim Wymore and Miss Mary J. Trager, who as a young lad and lassie during the period immediately following the Civil war, met, wooed and were married on May 19, 1872, are now Mr. and Mrs. James W. Wymore, venerable couple of this city, and are celebrating their fifty-seventh wedding anniversary at their home in west Wymore.

The celebration, as has long been the custom of the couple, will be a quiet one, with only their children and grandchildren about them. The celebration this year comes on Sunday, which was the day of the week in that memorable year when they started life together so long ago.

Mr. Wymore is one of the five remaining Civil war veterans now living in Wymore, and he is a cousin of the late Samuel Wymore, for whom the city was named. He was born in Indiana and is now 87 years old. He fought throughout the war on the Union side in Company "C," 40th Iowa infantry, being present at the siege of Vicksburg, the battles of Pea Ridge and Pine Bluffs, Ark., and several other important conflicts in that vicinity. He at one time served under General U. S. Grant and General Steele.

Mrs. Wymore was born in Ohio and is now 77 years old. The couple are the third oldest couple in Wymore, Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Bradley having 65 years to their credit, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Huston having 58 years, and they have been residents of Wymore for the past 30 years continuously. After their marriage in Iowa they homesteaded 11 miles northeast of Aurora, Neb., in 1873, the country being nothing but wild open prairie, came to Gage county in 1883, and moved to a farm near Wilber in 1888, moved to Pawnee county in 1897, and to Wymore two years later.

They tend their flock of chickens and their garden and lawn shrubbery and live quietly in their home at the edge of town. Their five living children are: Mrs. Effie Keck, Beattie, Kas.; Will A., farmer near Liberty; James Leslie, Wymore blacksmith; Calvin Fred, farmer near Odell, and Melvin Elmo, Wymore carpenter.

FARM LAND SOLD.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., May 18—Otto Smith closed a deal Friday for the sale of his forty-acre tract southeast of the city to Henry Epp for $5,500. The farm has fair improvements. Mr. Epp will soon assume charge of the place.

NEW LIONS CLUB.

(Special to The Star.)

SCANDIA, Kas., May 16—Friday night, May 31, is Lions club charter night in Scandia, when the new organization here will officially receive its charter. Various clubs from over the district will be represented by delegations to play a part in the official installation of the new organization. ## TWO GOLD MEDALS FOR MARYSVILLE

MARYSVILLE, Kas., May 18—Richard Boyle, Marysville high school senior, led the whole state of Kansas for first place in American history in competition with students from all over the state in the examinations last month, and he received a gold medal attesting the honor. First in physiology was also won by a Marshall county girl, Lucille Tilley of Frankfort, who also received a gold medal.

Trace Ancestry To The Revolution

Recently the Betsy Hager chapter, D. A. R., of Grand Island, entertained at the home of Mrs. H. C. Faidley. Fifty members and guests were received. Several misical numbers and minutes as well as a history of the Betsy Hager were given.

Three little girls who have very interesting lineages took part in the program. They were Vilma Alden, who is a direct descendant of John and Priscilla Alden. She appears to the left in the above picture.

Annabel Boyden who is a member of the Crete Society of the Children of the American Revolution, is a daughter of Dr. Boyden of Grand Island. She traces her ancestry not only from two revolutionary ancestors, but from an early colonial governor, Thomas Mayhew, as well. Her picture is on the right. Thomas Mayhew landed at Martha's Vineyard in 1632. Joseph Boyden served in the Revolutionary war and the other revolutionary ancestor is Ruth Wood, who upon discovering the British landing at New Compton, R. I., helped to notify the colonists, who prevented their landing.

Jean Bennison, who is a daughter of Mrs. C. W. Bennison, of Betsy Hager chapter, traces her descent from Ashley Johnson, who served in the war for independence. Ashley Johnson, in turn, was a descendant of Lord Ashley Johnson, to whom King George, early inn the eighteenth century, gave a grant of land in Virginia. This land, upon which the natural rock bridge is located, is still owned by his descendants.

After the program a buffet luncheon was served by Mrs. Neil Gildea and Miss Bertha Patton, who were dressed in colonial costumes. Roses and pink candles formed the table appointments. Ices in moulds of various flowers were served.

COMMANDER EIGHT CONVERTIBLE CABRIOLET, $1645. Six wire wheels and trunk rack standard equipment.

TODAY'S Commander Eight has swept to a popularity eclipsing even that of its predecessor, the car which sped 25,000 miles in 22,968 minutes.

Studebaker, Builder of Champions, holder of every official speed and endurance record for fully equipped stock cars, now sells more 8-cylinder cars than any other manufacturer on earth.

The first Studebaker straight eight was introduced at last year's motor shows. Its champion performance started the nation's swing to Studebaker. Smart, youthful style added still greater impetus. But Studebaker's One-Profit value is the real reason for Studebaker supremacy.

The Commander Eight blends flashing style and supple power with comfort unknown until Studebaker introduced ball bearing spring suspension. Hydraulic shock absorbers further enhance its travel ease. Double-drop frame is lower, costlier, but steadier and safer. Easier, more powerful brakes; steel-core steering wheel; non-shattering windshield—Commander quality makes its One-Profit price quite as remarkable as its performance.

And Commander performance is something you can never forget, once you enjoy it for an hour. May we place a Commander at your disposal?

AGEE SAYS CITY MISSION WORTHY

Urges Lincoln Citizens to Help in Building Campaign.

John H. Agee, president of the Lincoln community chest has given out the following statement concerning the campaign of $18,000 for the People's City Mission.

"The People's City Mission, one of the oldest welfare agencies in the city, is a member of the Lincoln community chest and Council of Social Agencies. By virtue of its membership it becomes a part of a centralized co-operative plan in developing a community welfare program that eliminates duplication and makes for efficiency and economy."

"The community chest only provides funds for current maintenance purposes. Additions to buildings, the new buildings, major improvements, etc., are not, therefore, a part of the chest budget and must be raised separately."

"Mission work—particularly with transients and single men, is a part of every community welfare program. For 20 years the Peoples City Mission has given valuable welfare services in this field. Their work is necessary to the well-being of the community."

"The chest therefore commends this agency to the attention of the public for consideration of gifts to help it provide for more adequate and sanitary quarters for the people is serves."

The campaign executive committee which is headed by A. W. Miller, chairman, reports that fully one-third of the desired amount has been subscribed to date and it is planned that the intensive campaign shall begin early next week. A meeting of business men and the church leaders, both men and women, has been called for Monday noon, at 12 o'clock at a luncheon in the Y. M. C. A. building. The purpose of this meeting is to further the campaign that the balance, approximately $12,000 shall be pledged before the end of the week.

The Peoples City Mission is an incorporated body governed by a board of directors composed of some of Lincoln's leading men and women headed by E. E. Bennett, president, C. P. Russell, vice president, Oz Black, secretary, Miss Elizabeth Smith, treasurer and Rev. T. J. Hinkin, superintendent.

The superintendent, Mr. Hinkin, took up this present work last September, and the work at the mission has increased with such rapidity that the present building is crowded far beyond its capacity and during the past winter homeless men have had to sleep on the floors with inadequate bedding and the facilities for bathing and caring for these men has been taxed to the utmost. On every hand as one goes through the building he can see the need of larger and more commodious quarters.

A. W. Miller, a well-known Lincoln business man heaeds the campaign eexcutive committee of which W. E. Bell, F. R. Lynch, Rev. A. R. Achtemier, and Dr. H. W. Hewitt are the members.

From the amount specified, deductions are to be made covering what Mason has already received.

The following other orders in compensation cases affecting Lincoln people have been issued:

Mrs. Pauline Strauch vs. Miller & Paine and insurance carrier—Claim of additional compensation denied; claimant had previously been paid $547 in weekly installments of $13.33 for injuries sustained in falling from a chair, while working as a janitress.

Rail Commission To Hear Important Cases This Week

Two important hearings before the state railway commission are scheduled for this week, one involving the application of the railroads to change their system of rate fixing on shipments of sand and gravel.

This application will be opposed by the state department of public works on the theory that it will increase the cost of gravel used by the state on highways, and will also reduce competition among pit owners because of rate discrimination. It is also expected that a number of gravel pit owners will appear at the hearing to protest against the proposed change. The hearing will be held at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at the commission offices with Chairman John Curtiss presiding.

Friday morning, the members of the commission will meet with taxicab and drive-it-yourself operators and representatives of the surety companies in an effort to determine the amount of public safety surety the operators must post under the new law. Chairman Curtiss will preside at the hearing.

Thursday, Commissioner Miller will hold a hearing at Dorchester on the application of the Lincoln Telephone company to increase its rates on that exchange.

As Rogers Sees It

PHILADELPHIA, May 18—This Al Capone that is supposed to be field marshal on Chicago's western front—well, in Miami and Chicago and all the other cities he has been received by the mayor, chamber of commerce and daughters of various revolutions, but he blew into our little City of Brotherly Love here Thursday and before his valet could unpack his machine gun, why he had been sentenced to a year in jail for wearing pistols instead of a vest. That's one of the worst blows against our new aristocracy we have had. The Zeppelin landed. The gorilla and the woman are coming over by boat. That kills both vaudeville engagements.

WEAVER MAKING NUMBER TALKS

Governor Will Give Series of Addresses In Next Ten Days.

Five commencement talks to high school graduates, two Memorial day addresses, one to the state G. A. R. encampment, and a luncheon engagement with a chamber of commerce are listed on Governor Weaver's date bok for the next ten days. This is the first time since he was inaugurated last January that the governor has had time to accept any invitations for him to speak at a distance from Lincoln.

Now that he has the legislature off his hands and the important executive appointments disposed of, Mr. Weaver will take a little time off at the capitol and get out over a part of the state. eH does not expect to continue this activity very long, as a number of important matters will be coming up in June and July, demanding his attention.

Following are the places and dates where Governor Weaver is to talk during the remainder of this month:

Monday, May 30.—Commencement, Waterloo, 10:30 a. m.

Tuesday, May 21—G. A. R. encampment, Hastings, evening.

Thursday, May 23.—Commencement, Lexington, evening.

Friday, May 24.—Noonday luncheon, chamber of commerce, Cozad; evening same day, commencement, McCook.

Tuesday, May 28.—Commencement, Blair, evening.

Wednesday, May 29.—Commencement, Weeping Water, evening.

MOST CORN PLANTED.
(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., May 18.—Farmers in this section of the state have been working early and late the past week planting corn. It was estimated Saturday evening that fully 70 per cent of the crop was in the ground. If the weather remains favorable farmers will finish planting early the coming week. Because of late rains the ground is in fine condition for seeding.

W. B. BELL DEAD.

LAS CRUCES, N. T., May 18—(I. N. S.)—William Berry Bell, 88, Indian fighter, stage coach driver and pioneer cowman, was dead here today. Bell aided the famous Kit Carson in subduing the Aapche Indians on the Mevcalero reservation, and participated in the capture of Geronimo, old Indian warrior, who pillaged the countryside in the southwest a quarter of a century ago.

There is no "extra magic," no special or mystic ingredient, in any motor car—Buick included . . . nothing but the basic qualities of performance, appearance, stamina and riding comfort put into the car by the manufacturer.

The reason you get finer performance, finer appearance, finer comfort and longer life in Buick is the very practical fact that the world buys more than twice as many Buicks as any other automobile listing above $1200; and thus makes it possible for Buick to give greater value than other, less favored manufacturers.

You pay no premium when you buy a Buick . . . you get full value for your money. Prove this by testing Buick performance in direct comparison with other cars. Then take advantage of this greater value made possible by the overwhelming demand of the motoring public itself . . . Drive a Buick.

OAKLAND SETS NEW HIGH MARK

118,222 Pontiacs and Oaklands Shipped During First Four Months of 1929.

High Rate of Production Indicates Year to Be Biggest in Company's History.

Nationwide substantiation of the optimistic forecasts for a record in 1929 automobile sales is clearly borne out in a statement just released by W. R. Tracy, vice president in charge of sales for the Oakland Motor Car company. Shipments of Oakland and Pontiac Sixes during the first four months of 1929 totaled 118,222, making a new high record for this manufacturer.

Mr. Tracy said: "April shipments alone totaled 36,384 cars, which is just 76 cars short of the 36,460 shipped in March—the high month in the company's records. But for the fact that there was one less working day than in March, April would have been the greatest mont hin our history.

"Our record shipment of 118,222 cars sold in the same period of 1927 and bettered the 1928 period by 15,591 cars."

Mr. Tracy pointed to the March and April, 1929 sales as an indication of the general market trend, stating that the total for these two months shows a gain close to 30 per cent over March and April of last year.

"The industry as a whole is showing a decided increase in sales during the spring months of 1929. One of the greatest factors in this increase is the replacement market. During 1925 and 1926, a total of 8,736,135 cars and trucks were sold in the United States and Canada. These three and four year cars are now being replaced with new cars, and account in a large measure for the general sales increases throughout the country.

"Production schedules in the Oakland factories are keyed up to keep pace with the increasing demand for the Oakland and Pontiac Sixes that are meeting with particular favor in the medium and low price class. In the low price field particularly, spring buying has been most brisk.

"Our plant has been operating at capacity since January and it now seems probable that we will continue at top speed well into the summer season or for a longer period than ever before."

Noisy Valves.

Improperly adjusted valves will cause the engine to run unevenly and will also give less power and mileage. Adjust valves to proper clearance. Be sure, however, not to get the valevs too tight, as this will cause lack of poewr. Always have the valves free and all of them of the same clearance. This adjustment usually will suffice to produce smoother running and put more pep into the engine.

VIKING OILING SYSTEM ADDS TO LIFE OF MOTOR

Efficient lubrication is the most vital essential of an automobile engine and might be termed the life blood of the motor. In fact there is a close analogy between blood circulation in life and the lubricating system in an automobile engine.

The oil pump is the heart of the system, sending the lubricating oil under pressure through the oil passages, or arteries, to every major moving part and then returning through other veins to the crankcase, or lungs, where it is cleaned before re-entering the pump. The oil pressure gauge corresponds to the pulse by registering the pressure, giving forth by the oil pump.

The vital necessity of the oil system functioning properly at all times was recognized by the designers of the new Viking, the 90-degree, V-type eight cylinder companion car to the Oldsmobile Six. As a result they incorporated the most advanced and proven practices in the new engine.

The Viking lubrication system is full pressure, sending oil under pressure from the pump to all principal parts. The pump, or heart, is located in the rear of the oil pan and draws the oil through a mesh screen and sends it under pressure through passage in the drilled crankshaft is to the connecting rod and main bearings.

Openings in the connecting rod bearings form connections through which the oil is forced up through the length of the rifle-drilled connecting rods to the piston pins. Other oil leads run from the first main crankshaft bearing to the camshaft and rocker arm shaft, both of which are drilled for oil to pass through their entire length to lubricate all bearing surfaces. Valves and the lower portions of the cylinder walls are bathed in a continuous oil spray.

Excessive dilution of the lubricating oil is prevented by a system of crankcase ventilation. This system draws a steady stream of air through the crankcase which carries off gasoline or water vapors which form in all internal combustion engines and might find their way into the oiling system.

Auto Notes

The best way to roughen brake linings that have become glazed is with a wire brush.

Before going down a steep hill on compression, stop for a few minutes at the crest of the hill to cool off the engine.

If the electrical system becomes faulty, see that the battery has sufficient charge, the terminal leads are tight, and the grounded wire makes a good, clean contact.

The clearance between the piston and its snug fitting cylinders must not vary more than five ten-thousandths of an inch, or about one-third the thickness of a butterfly's wing.

The green deposit which sometimes forms around the terminals of the battery indicates a slight leak in the sealing compound, which should be closed up. In the meantime clean off terminals thoroughly and cover with cup grease to prevent further corrosion.

STOCK TESTS FAIR TRIALS

Association Official Says Entries Not "Doctored" by Makers.

Studebaker President Winner in Recent 30,000 Mile World Trials.

How stock is a stock car? Are the stock car rules made by the American Automobile association enforced on passenger cars taking part in long distance record trials? Can the mechanics so alter and adjust stock cars as to increase their speed?

These and other questions are raised and answered in a recent article in Motor Age, well known automobile trade journal to settle the doubts of skeptical motorists who find it hard to believe that the strictly stock cars are capable of the feats which have brought to America such a large share of world speed and endurance honors.

"I realize that there are people who question the absolutely stock status of cars that perform as the Studebaker Presidents did in the recent 30,000 mile run," says A. H. Means, New York City zone supervisor for the contest board of the American Automobile association, under whose direction this and many other test runs were made.

The Studebaker 30,000 mile run was in many respects the most important automotive event ever held under A. A. A. jurisdiction, for the trial established eleven new world records and twenty-three international Class B records. These marks were all certified by the International association of recognized automobile clubs in Paris, of which the A. A. A. is the United States member. Four stock President eight cars made the run, two roadsters and two sedans. The leading roadster completed the 30,000 miles in 26,326 minutes, at an average speed of 68.3 miles per hour.

"Were it humanly possible more accurately, intelligently and minutely to check and examine these stock cars to establish them as such, no stone would be left unturned to do it." Mr. Means states in the Motor Age article.

According to the stock car rules of the A. A. A. contest board, a stock car is a manufacturer's model of a car that is in regular production, is regularly cataloged in the current catalogs of the manufacturer and is identical in technical details and in other respects with the required production of said model as specified in the following rules:

"It is the intent of these rules that a stock car for competitive test or any other form of test shall be a recognized production model of the manufacturer, and that it shall contest only as manufactured, advertised and sold, to the end that the public confidence in stock car contests be improved."

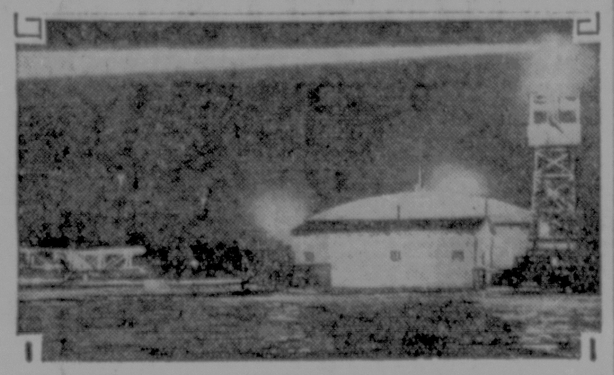

How, then, does the contest board see to it that its rules are obeyed? Actual checking and examining of the cars is done by the Technical Committee of the board. This committee check each car against specifications supplied by the factory to the National Automobile chamber of commerce. These specifications must be accompanied by blueprints showing such essential units as the cylinder head, manifolds, pistons and carburetor. If prints are not available the Technical Committee selects a corresponding car from some dealer's floor for comparison.

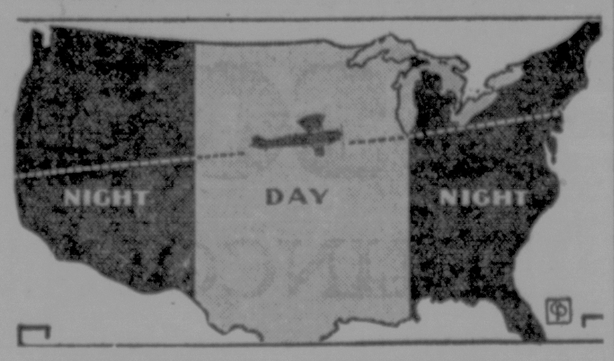

The rules require that a stock car must carry manufacturer's stock equipment as cataloged, advertised and offered for sale. This refers to such parts as windshield, lamps, fenders, bumpers, tire carriers, spare tire, rear traffic signal, windshield wiper, speedometer, clock and any and all other equipment listed. The technical committee makes a check of all such items.

Running in up to 2,500 miles is permitted before a race or trial, and tuning up is permitted "as the average owner would do himself.

A critical observer may point out that there is a chance for a manufacturer to substitute parts or make changes to increase the speed of his cars during the course of a long distance event. That possibility is eliminated by the presence of A. A. A. technical men on duty in the pits every time a car comes in. Every detail of the work done on the car is observed and recorded in permanent form by these men for incorporation in the final report of the run.

GRAHAM-PAIGE IN STIFF TEST

Pulls Through "Impassable" Australian Roads When Others Fail.

Motorists in America who complain of crowded highways and traffic hold-ups may find consolation in contemplating the difficulties of touring in Australia, as revealed in a few extracts from an account in the Brisbane (Queensland) Courier of a round-trip journey between that city and Sydney, a total of 750 miles.

The trip was a vacation outing for J. H. F. Moran, accompanied by his mother and two friends, but the vacation joys were few.

"The party reached Toowoomba," relates the Courier, "where experienced motorists advised the driver it would be a hopeless task to get through to Stanthorpe over the Black Soil plains, which had been soaked by continuous rains; but the tourists decided to venture upon the journey.

"Cars by the score were found hopelessly bogged in the black mud, and weather-bound cars obstructed the road-way and made detours through still boggier soil necessary. Good judgment in driving played a big part in the Graham-Paige sedan's achievement in getting through without the aid of wheel-chains, but the even torque of the engine and the dogged pulling power of the car must have been the deciding factors. Out of the big number of cars that essayed the task, only two, one of which was Mr. Moran's, succeeded in reaching Stanthorpe.

The party finally reached Sydney, after trying experiences, but found even worse conditions on the return trip.

"About fifteen miles from St. Albans ferry," says the Courier, "an unusual scene presented itself. What had been a small water splash on the down trip had grown into a swirling torrent several hundred feet wide. The picture was made complete by a collection of cars, all more or less helpless.

"A car with a long tow rope was operating from the other side. It was driven down far enough to allow the rope to be carried across the stream and hitched to a car, then the towing car would reverse up the hill and tow a car through. One car had essayed the crossing with a corn sack around its radiator, but had halted in the middle with water in its 'innards.' Another car had met a similar fate.

"Mr. Moran decided to attempt the crossing unaided and without taking any precautions such as removing the fan belt and muffling up the radiator. The onlookers prophesied certain failure, but the sedan went through without a hitch. The position of the distributor, which is on top of the engine, must have played its part in keeping dry the most important unit of the engine—the ignition—during the fording of the stream, which was so deep that the floor-boards were well under water."

To Stop Drafts in Car.

The strong circulation of air, felt by occupants on the back seat of an inclosed car, is always a discomfort, especially when one is susceptible to colds. This draft may be traced to an opening between the glass and frame of the rear windows, and then circulating behind the upholstery and coming out at the joining of the back and side sections of the upholstery. This condition may be remedied by a generous stuffing of rags in the corners of the car behind the upholstery.

Schultemen Smear the Dopesheet By Showing Heels to Conference Foes In Annual Carnival.

STATE FIELD, Ames, Ia., May 18—(Special)—The championship banner emblematic of the Big Six conference track and field title was returned to the Nebraska Memorial stadium flagstaff, after a three-year absence, when Coach Henry F. Schulte's Cornhusker track and field men today outscored a brilliant field of performers to bag the 1929 conference meet.

Unusual team strength, which scored points in 14 of the 16 events, enabled the Schultemen to carry home the championship trophy, the quarter-mile and discus being the only events in which the Nebraskans failed to score two points or better.

Dope Neatly Upset.

The victory came as a surprise to many track followers in Big Six circles that had doped Kansas, Oklahoma and Iowa State for top honors and had been disposed to take Nebraska rather lightly, in view of the ragged showing made by the Cornhuskers in the indoor meet.

To win the Big Six outdoor title from one of the most brilliant fields assembled in mid-west conference competition, Nebraska's men performed in top form, the Cornhuskers appearing to be in perfect physical trim and the proper frame of mind to put forth their best efforts. In nearly every event the Nebraska entry came through in stunning fashion and in fact, a few of the youngsters reached into their bag of tricks for that extra punch necessary to bring home unexpected points.

Captured Four Firsts.

The Cornhuskers achieved four first places and a tie for first in their drive for the title. Three sophomores came through with these individual championships, indicating that Nebraska stock will be good for several years to come.

Cobe Tomson, Cornhusker sophomore, captured first place in the broad jump and registered the only new Big Six conference record of the afternoon. He leaped 24 feet, 2 5-8 inches to better the old mark of 23 feet, 11¾ inches, made by Spangler of Kansas in the 1928 meet at the Nebraska stadium. The jump placed him nearly one foot ahead of the second man.

Willis Lamson, another sophomore, opened the afternoon program with a victory in 120-yard high hurdles, having a yard lead over Hager of Iowa State in an exciting finish. Lamson's time shaved within three-tenths of a second of the conference record.

Elmer Faytinger, another sophomore, celebrated his entrance into big time competition by capturing the javelin honors. Faytinger got away a cast of 183 feet, ¾ inches to plant the scarlet and cream banner over seven feet ahead of the nearest competitor.

Ossian Delivers.

The tie for first position, and one of the turning points in the meet, came when Bill Ossian cleared 13 feet, ¾ inches to break into a three-way tie with Soults of Iowa State and Bryce of Oklahoma in the pole vault. Ossian's best pre-meet performance had been 12 feet, 6 inches, but when points were needed today, Ossian cleared 12 feet, 9 inches and 13 feet in heroic style.

The Nebraska 880-yard relay team also set the dopesters back on their heels by taking Kansas and Missouri into camp with a mark of 1 minute 29 9-10 seconds. Lowe edged out Wilcox, Kansas anchor man, in a thrilling race down the home stretch and pitch at the yarn.

Etherton Grabs a Second.

Other high spots of the meet included Etherton's entrance into the two-mile field which brought a second place and tossed a monkey wrench into the Kansas scheme to mop up this event. Fortune of Kansas won the event, but Etherton stayed with him to the finish and beat out Sauerman and "Poco" Frazier of Kansas for second place. "Red" Wendt of Nebraska crowded another Kansan out of fifth place.

Easter and Eller, Husker sprinters, picked up a pair of fourth places in the sprints and Griffin came up with a fourth in the mile. Janculwicz picked off third place in a fast 880-yard run.

Nice Harvest In Hurdles.

With Lamson winning the high hurdles, Nebraska came in with its expected points in the hurdles, Fleming grabbing a third in the high sticks and Krause, Lamson

Islanders Nose Ahead In Ninth

NORTON, Kans., May 18—Dooley's home run in the first half of the ninth with two on gave Grand Island a 5 to 4 win over Norton here today. Norton staged a rally in its half of the ninth to score twice, one short of a tie when McDonald, pinch-hitting for Shafer, hit for three bases. Graham, Norton third baseman, was the fielding star of the game, handling nine assists and one putout without error. Grand Island made three double plays. Score:

PENN'S CREW WINS FROM NAVY'S BOAT

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 19—(I. N. S.)— Navy's twiced-licked varsity crew was beaten today by Rusty Callow's revamped University of Pennsylvania, boat load in as exciting and close a race as ever was witnessed on the Severn river.

Harvard's eight finished third in the triangular event, a length behind the Midshipmen. The race was over a two mile course. Penn's time was 11 minutes 4 seconds.

The Varsity race was a keen battle with the Navy twice leading by 10 feet, but nover more, only to be outchallenged by Penn in the last 20 yards0 in a great spurt by the Quaker bladesmen.

SINGLES TITLE WON BY HUSKER

Heacock of Nebraska Too Good for Finals Foe From Oklahoma.

AMES, Ia., May 18—(Special)—Nebraska won its first tennis title in over 10 years when Charles Heacock, ranking player on the Cornhusker squad, captured the singles championship of the Big Six conference here this afternoon.

Heacock beat out Runkle, Oklahoma ace, in the finals, 6-2, 8-6, 6-2, 6-3.

The Nebraska racqueteer outsteadied Runkle in the four-set match, playing a deliberate back court game which forced the Sooner into errors.

Heacock coasted through the first set, dropped the second and then ran through the last two sets without much trouble.

Doubles Title to Missouri.

Coerver and Landis of Missouri won the doubles title by defeating Thurman and Brown, Oklahoma, in a five-set match, 4-6, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The Missouri team, however, is due for some disciplining when it returns to the Columbia campus. Following their match with Nebraska at Lincoln last Monday, the players neglected to return to school and Athletic Director Chet Brewer received word during the meet here that the boys would be required to do some "explaining" when they return home.

AGGIES RING UP ONE RUN TO WIN

Farmers of Manhattan Shut Out Nebraska By 1-0 Count.

MANHATTAN, Kans., May 18—(Special) Nebraska lost a 1 to 0 pitchers' battle to the Kansas Aggies here today, Armatis and Barre being the opposing moundsmen. Armatis let the Aggies down with five hits and himself got two hits; but the rest of the Nebraska team could account for only two safeties, Barre, who lost a four-hit game at Nebraska, again held the Huskers to four hits.

The Aggies' score came in the fifth, when Ward walked and got to second on McCollums' scratch single. The runners advanced a base on a passed ball and Ward scored on Barre's infield out.

In the ninth, Ward picked Graces' low hit fly off his shoestrings and fell, but came up with the ball. There were no runners on base.

Nebraska's one real scoring threat flivvered in the fourth, when Betts walked and stole second. Grace smacked a long single to center field, but Nigros' throw caught Betts at home when he missed the plate with his slide. The score:

Brass Tacks by Cy Sherman

That Relays Racket. Ruins Tell Sport Tale. Connie Kindly Man. Flippin Passes On.

ADES MOINES, Ia., writer views with alarm the movement originating within the Big Six conference to hang an official ban on that overworked relays racket and the substitution of a scheme for a series of dual and tri-angular meets, the latter leading up to the annual conference meet and the national collegiate outdoor classic.

The Iowa scribe suggests that much of the increased interest in track is due to the spread of the relays idea, and the answer to that is a question, to-wit: Just where is the location of that increased interest in track?

I grant, perhaps, that track interest has grown at the schools where the relay carnivals are being staged, but I certainly deny that any such interest has been in evidence at Nebraska U. or any other Big Six institution with the single exception of Kansas, which decided several years ago to get in the relays game on its own account.

Unvarnished facts of the case are that track interest at Nebraska has been sagging on its flat feet largely because of the demand that Cornhusker cindermen wear out Pullman car wheels making the circuit of the relay meets. As the Nebraska management, somewhat reluctantly, has been catering to said demand, Cornhusker tracksters have had little time for competition within their own circle.

AS for home competition, for the entertainment of Nebraska students and Nebraska followers generally, the Cornhusker program has been little better than a blank. Dual meets have been staged with Kansas Aggies and Oklahoma, but not a single triangular carnival has been on the Lincoln slate. In short, track interest at Nebraska has lagged, the only reason for that being the scarcity of home meets. And the only cure is more meets—a series of dual and tri-angular competes within the Big Six circle.

The writer, as a matter of course, is not in any sense hostile to the Drake relays, which also applies to the Kansas carnival. Neither of these events, however, means a single thing to track at Nebraska U.

It is manifest, therefore, that if the track doctors at the Cornhusker institution know their medicine, they will soon be prescribing a course of treatment providing for more home meets.

Beating the tomtom and blowing the ballyhoo on behalf the Drake relays, for instance, will get Nebraska track nothing in the long run—nothing but oblivion.

THE wise man who once cracked "there is nothing new under the sun," must have included the game of basketball in his observation. For some time, the presumption has been general that Dr. Naismith of Kansas U., formerly of the Springfield Y. M. C. A. training school, was the inventor of basketball, said idea emerging from the doctor's bonnet about 30 years ago.

That presumption, however, is hopelessly wet. Explorers of the ruins of the Mayan civilization in the Yucatan region of old Mexico have discovered that the Mayas were playing basketball a thousand years ago. The ancients took their sport seriously, as they built a stone court nearly 300 feet long and surrounded it with high walls of stone, giving the court an architectural setting beautiful and imposing.

The name of this Mayan game was "tlaityotentli" and the court on which it was played was a "tlachtli." Instead of aiming at a basket, the Mayans sought to toss the ball through a stone ring, 18 inches in circumference, set against a wall about a dozen feet from the stone floor.

In many respects, the Mayan game of "tlaityotentli" must have been quite as lively and interesting as modern basketball, yet it is not on record that the ancients bothered themselves about a discussion of the tip-off or the dribble.

MAJOR league baseball magnates often are accused of hanging the dollar sign all over the national game, yet these magnates

MACKMEN GRAB PAIR OF GAMES

Athletics Tighten Hold On Top Perch; Twice Down Senators.

WASHINGTON, May 18—(U. U.)—The Philadelphia Athletics took a doubleheader from the Washington Senators today, winning the first 5 to 4 and the second 7 to 5. Jones and Earnshaw engaged in a pitchers battle for seven innings in the first game before being relieved. Braxton finished for the Senators and Connie Mack called on Orwell, Rommel and Walberg before earning the victory. The A's won the game in the ninth on Foxx's single and Miller's double. The Griffs' tying run was on third, but they lacked the punch to put it across.

Brown started for the Senators in the second game and was ineffective and the A's pounded him for 11 hits and seven runs in seven innings. Hopkins finished the game and held the A's to one hit.

John Picus Quinn was Connie Mack's mound selection for the second game, and, although allowing the Senators 11 hits in eight innings, kept them well scattered and held the Senators safe in the pinches. Shores relieved Quinn in the ninth, after the Griffs first two men had singled, and held the Griffs to one and the tying runs on the paths. Score of first game:

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Louisville, Ky., May 18—He was bred in old Kentucky, and, boy, you're mighty lucky—if you bet on a horse like Clyde.

Lucky indeed, for Clyde—full name Vandusen, sired by Man O' War—ran the legs out from under a field of 21 horses to win the Kentucky derby this saturated afternoon and repay the faith of his following four times over, while a crowd of 75,000 was stirred to audible amazement at the spectacle.

Hock deep in mud, they were, but Clyde Vandusen seemed to skim the watery surface of the one and a quarter mile course as the aquaplane takes the waves and, as he fled swiftly home to fortune and to fame immortal, the rest of them seemed, by comparison, to struggle in stationary impotence for all the world like flies caught in some housewifely tanglefoot.

Clyde Always In Front.

It wasn't a race. It was a pageant—a sight-seeing tour, with Clyde at the megaphone. Always "on top" virtually from the break of the barrier, he simply went on to run his race as he saw fit, with never a thought to those who wallowed in his rear.

Only once, at the three-eighths pole—was a horse within a length of him. Only once thereafter did a horse approach within two length. This last was at the finish itself, when Naishapur came out of the nowwhere in the stretch to place second.

Blue Grass Pride Fourth.

Panchio was third and Blue Larkspur, Kentucky's own, was fourth. They beat Larkspur, these loyal home folk, down to two to one before the race and he came on the track they chered as only a Kentucky race crowd can cheer the horse of its choice. They laughed, too, in happy anticipation of the blue grass victory that was to come. Even the discomfort of standing ankle deep in mud and absorbing, as the blotter absorbs its ink, the rain that beat down throughout one of the worst days in derby history couldn't restrain their enthusiasm.

Cheers Turn To Groans.

But the race started and the cheer became a suppressed groan, the laugh a sigh. Blue Larkspur, backed as a horse that could run on turf, ice or sandpaper, discovered that the track had him licked. He never was really prominent, which is to say that he never even saw the trail-blazer's flying heels. It is doubtful, in fact, if any horse in the race could furnish an accurate description of these interesting pedics. They were more exclusive than anything on the Downs today and the royal blue bloood of America's aristocracy was in the clubhouse boxes at that.

McAtee Rides Smart Race.

Linus McAtee, being the smart little man he is, just sat still on that horse's back and simply went for a ride. He hand-rode Clyde Vandusen all the way, which accounts partly for the slow time of 2:10 4-5. The terrible track accounted for the rest of it.

Rained down upon through a dismal dispiriting morning, it took another bath at noon and then, just before the race, the heavens opened and poured forth the flood waters of Niagara on one of its good days. As the non-believers fled to the ark, so did 75,000 startled citizens rush for cover before this scourge from the skies. Some escaped, many didn't, and, two minutes later, the track was a track no longer. It was a dank, dripping, opaque, conglomerate stretch of evil-looking mud.

Track Lake of Water.

For 10 feet out from the pole it was a lake into which the posts of the rail disappeared for all the world like the piles of a small fishing pier. Five jumps from the barrier and you couldn't tell the silk of a jockey's shirt from the pigskin of his boots. All you could tell was that Clyde Vandusen was the race horse of the day and you couldn't miss that if you looked at him through smoked glasses.

The winner, owned by Herbert P. Gardner of Amsterdam, N. Y., paid $8 in the machines to those who played him on the nose and earned for his stable a purse of $53,950 and a degree of honor that defies measurement, least of all that which is scaled in mere dollars.

Bradley Drops a Million.

Those who played the winner to place got $3.70 for a $2 ticket and his show price was $3.06. Naishapur paid $4.72 and $3.26 respectively, while Panchio's show price was $3.50. Incidentally, Chaffee Earl, the owner, fell heir to second money of $6,000 by Naishapur's per-

NORFOLK, May 18—Primm held Norfolk to two singles after the first inning today and Fairbury made it two straight from the Elkhorns, 8 to 5. Norfolk made four hits to score as many runs in the opening frame, but thereafter Primm was invincible. Colbert, Fairbury left fielder, collected a triple, a double, two singles and a walk out of his five visits to the plate. Manager Gray of Fairbury was banished during the first inning for protesting Umpire Godsey's decision. Score:

LINKS GO AHEAD IN STATE LOOP

Brownemen Sparkle In Field and Win From Dukes, 3 to 2.

YORK, May 18—Lincoln evened the series with York today, taking the second game, 3 to 2, and regaining the lead in the State league race. Wilman held the Links to nine hits, but an error in the seventh inning produced the winning run. The Links scored twice in the sixth, when Lippold's drive bounced away from Bolen in centerfield. York got hits off Spickerman. Campbell and Lebsock led the attack with three blows each. Baltzell's fielding featured. York ran its string of double plays to six. The score:

Basque Battler Cocked and Primed Take Max to Cleaning

Paolino Predicts Big Fritz From Berlin In For Thorough Pasting

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, May 18—Paolino, the big ax and knuckle man of the Pyrennes, regards the coming tilt with Max Schmeling as occasion for little more than a yawn.

"He wik," quoth the Basque in his limited English, "ver' wik," he added, tapping his chin, his stomach and then, with a significant grimace, he pointed toward the cardiac region. "Wik," in Paolino's English means not so good at taking it and maybe not so game, either.

Plots Quick Knockout.

"I knock heem—kwik," added Paolino. And that's where he halted in speaking Americanese. After that he sprayed Spanish comments upon one of his managers and that party, being gifted converted it into Anglo-Saxon forms:

"Paolino says," explained the manager, "that Schmeling is not so hot. He asks, what has he done? Who has he killed? Ah, nobody but Risko. But that night Risko was no good—just a fat boy who was not trained. So thinks Boalino. And Paolino say that, even so, Risko had Schmeling what you call 'woozy,' is it not?"

Explodes His Spanish.

Paolino broke into the translation there. With grins and scowls, a waving of hands and a rocking of his head, he exploded a lot of Spanish in the face of his manager. The manager reeled, recoiled and then bombarded in English:

"Paolino says Schmeling is not so much a puncher. And maybe Max has a glass jaw. Paolino says he hears Max likes the fighters to rush at him so that he can hit them coming in. Well, says Paolino, I will rush in at Max all right, but I'll be going so fast that I will run him right back under the bed of his home in Germany!

That Great, Big Laugh.

"Paolino he laughs when he hears people say Max will knock him out. He says he gets hit a lot but nobody hits him solid and that, if Godfrey could not him him solid, and the other fellows could not, it is a great laugh for people to say Max will do it.

"Schmeling can't hit like Harry Wills, Godfrey, Otto Von Porat, K. O. Christner and those other boys that Paolino has fought. Those men could not drive Paolino back, and Paolino laughs when people say that Max, who never knocked out anybody, but a lot of bums (excepting Risko and he was a bum that night), is going to put him to sleep.

"Yes, Paolino laughs very loud."

Still More Spanish.

The manager smiled at Paolino. Paolino beamed back and then launched into more Spanish. As soon as the manager had grabbed a load of it, and put it through his language transformer, he halted Paolino and said:

"It is a very big laugh to Paolino, this fight with Schmeling. He says Gypsy Daniels knocked out Max and so did Larry Gaines. Those boys aren't any better than third or fourth-raters and their worst weakness is hitting. They cannot punch hard enough to make a cream pie look like anything but an nice cream pie all ready to eat. And, says Paolino, if those men can knoc kout Max, why, he, Paolino, would die of shame—maybe he would commit suicide a couple of times—if he cannot do the same thing and do it better.'

Too Strong and Tough.

"Paolino says he is too strong for Max and too tough. He says he will just jump out at Max and get close to him and throw all the punches he can think of. He says if Max backs up, he will follow him and keep right on following him and"——

Just then Paolino interrupted again. The manager harkened, then explained:

"Ah, yes, Paolino he has bought a life preserver. What for, you ask? Well, Paolino he thinks that when he starts rushing, Max will jump out of the ring and out of the town, and into the ocean on his way back to Germany! Paolino will follow. Now, you see, if he has no life preserver, he cannot punch because he must use his hands to swim. So he has the preserver that keeps him afloat and leaves his arms free, so he can keep on punching at Max in the Atlantic and score the knockout which he has promised his Basque countrymen."

RECALLS FEATS BY OLD-TIMERS

Hubbell's No-Hit Display Revives Memories of Other Days.

BY LES CONKLIN.

NEW YORK, May 18—(I. N. S.)—Pitching feats of hurlers of another generation have been recalled by the performance of Carl Hubbell, youthful southpaw of the New York Giants, in twirling a no-hit, no-run game against the Pittsburgh Pirates here recently.

Nearly three years have elapsed since a big leaguer last turned the trick. It was on August 21, 1926, that Ted Lyons of the White Sox held the Boston Red Sox hitless and runless. And no National league hurler has performed the exploit since Dazzy Vance's classic effort against the Phillies Sept. 13, 1925.

The advent of the "rabbit ball," the mania for home run hitting and the fact that pitchers no longer are allowed to discolor the ball have made a non-hit game a rare event indeed.

Other Hitless Games.

Hubbell's no-hit game was the 107th pitched in the big leagues. The first one was hurled by George Washington Bradley in 1876. Pitching for St. Louis, Bradley blanked Hartford, 2 to 0.

In 1880 there was a bumper crop of no-hit games. In beating Cleveland June 12 of that year, John Richmond of the Worcester club in the National league did not allow a single batter to reach first base. Five days later, John Montgomery Ward of the Providence team, in the same league beat Buffalo, not a Bison reaching first.

Larry Corcoran of the old Chicago White Stockings hurled three no-hit games within a space of five years. He performed the stunt against Boston in 1880, Worcester in 1882 and Providence in 1884.

Corcoran and Young.

The record of three no-hit games is shared by Corcoran and the famous Cy Young. One of Young's efforts, when he pitched the Boston Red Sox to a 3 to 0 victory over the Athletics on May 5, 1904, was a perfect performance, not a Philadelphia batter reaching first base. Cy pitched his first no-hit game against Cincinnati in 1897, when he was with Cleveland, and his last against the Yankees in 1908, when he was with the Red Sox.

Young's feats were more impressive than Corcoran's because Cy pitched from a distance of 60 feet, six inches, while the rubber was only 50 feet from the plate in Larry's time.

Two Games Each.

Big league boxmen who pitched two no-hit games included the following:

Galvin of Buffalo in 1880 and 1884; Terry of the Brooklyns in 1885 and 1886; Breitenstein of St. Louis and Cincinnati in 1891 and 1898; Mathewson of the Giants in 1901 and 1905; Addie Joss of Cleveland in 1908 and 1910; Tom Hughes of the Yanks and Braves in 1910 and 1916; and Hub Leonard of the Boston Red Sox in 1916 and 1918. Since Leonard pitched his no-hit games no southpaw turned in a no-hit game until Hubbell blanked the Pirates this spring.

Discovered By Kinsella.

With such an auspicious start, Hubbell should enjoy a big year with the Giants. His classic against the Pirates was his third straight win of the season. The Oklahoma southpaw's chief assets are his screw ball, his fast one and his control. He won 10 games and lost six last fall, when he was used mainly as a relief pitcher.

Both Hubbell and Denver Bill Walker, another promising New York southpaw, were dug up by Dick Kinsella of Springfield, Ill., the eagle-eyed scout of the Giants. As a result if their success any twirler unearthed by Kinsella in the future will be given a thorough tryout by the Giants, even if he has only one arm and a wooden leg to boot.

LINCOLN FIRST IN CINDER TEST

Capital City Hi First In League Track Fest By Close Margin.

HOW THEY SCORED.

|---|---|
| Lincoln | 51½ |
| Havelock | 50 |
| Jackson high (Uni Place) | 28½ |
| Wesleyan high | 10½ |
| College View | 10 |
| Bethany | 3½ |

Teachers College high did not place.

Seven meet records were shattered in Greater Lincoln league track and field competition when Lincoln high cinder artists captured their fourth consecutive conference title at Memorial stadium Saturday afternoon. The Red and Black, minus the services of its point-makers in the state meet of last week, scored 50½ points to edge out Havelock by a point and a half in the final compilation.

Havelock annexed seven first places, while Lincoln scored four and Jackson high, Wesleyan high and College View one apiece. Ability to register second, third, and fourth places figured heavily in the capital city victory.

Hansen High Man.

Captain Bernhardt Hansen of Havelock was high point man with victories in 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes. The Engineer flash established a new record of 23.5 seconds in the furlong race, clipping more than a second off the old record, made by himself last spring. He also lowered the 440 yard mark by two-tenths of a second, setting a new record of 54.8 seconds. The summary:

Summary of Results.

100-yard dash—Won by Hansen, Havelock; second, Rea, Lincoln; third, Pixley, Jackson high; fourth, Fawcett, Havelock. Time, 10.5 seconds.

220-yard dash (first heat)—Won by Hansen, Havelock; second, Fulcher, Lincoln; third, Nelson, Lincoln; fourth, Fawcett, Havelock. Time, 23.5 seconds.

440-yard dash—Won by Hansen, Havelock; second, Reid, Jackson high; third, McDonald, Lincoln; fourth, Everett, Lincoln. Time, 54.5 seconds. (Betters meet record of 54.8 seconds set by Fulcher, Lincoln, in 1928.)

Mile run—Won by Scott, College View; second, Larsen, Havelock; third, Mellon, Havelock; fourth, tie between Butcher, of Lincoln and Johnson, Bethany. (Stump, Lincoln, who placed first disqualified. Both Stump and Scott bettered mile meet record, but no time was taken on Scott's mark.)

120-yard high hurdles—Won by Masterson, Lincoln; second, Shuman, Bethany; third, Malcom, Havelock; fourth, Riggs, Havelock. Time, 17.7 seconds. (Betters meet record of 17.8 seconds set by Sawyer, Lincoln, in 1926.)

Giants Break Even With Boston Club

BOSTON, May 18—(U.P.)—Mel Ott's home run in the tenth inning of the second game gave the New York Giants an even break in a double-header today with the Bostons Braves. The Giants lost the first game, 5 to 4, and took the second, 6 o 5. Bill Walker started for New York, Judd completing the game. Lindstrom hit a home run for New York in the third.

In the first game, Ott's home run in the ninth tied the score. The Braves filled the bases in their half of the frame and Leach caught Dugan's apparently foul fly. Richbourg scoring from third with the winning run. Bob Smith hurled creditable ball for the Braves in the first contest. Scare of first game:

could well go to school and take lessons from most of the players.

Clubowners of the American league pow-wowed recently and then announced that the "most valuable player award" of $1,000 had been wiped off the books. No explanation was forthcoming, but the answer is easy—the moguls were weary of the business of passing out special rewards to unappreciative players and decided to call the plan off.

Catcher Mickey Cochrane of the Philadelphia Americans is the gay gent who may take the blame for the action of the owners. Mickey was the American loop's "most valuable player" last year. After pocketing his thousand cartwheels, Mickey proceeded to cultivate an acute attack of holdout fever, declining to sign until Connie Mack, one of the kindliest men organized baseball ever has known, came across with a round increase in 1929 salary.

Connie isn't much given to the habit of popping off for publication, but it may be taken for granted that the decision of the magnates to abandon the award was inspired by the Philadelphia club owner.

IN thus referring to Mr. Mack as one of the fine characters in baseball, the writer knows whereof he speaks. An even 20 years ago, when Donald C. Despain and Lee Stoner were owning and guiding the destinies of Lincoln's Western league club, the local management purchased the release of Pitcher John Fox from a club in Pennsylvania.

The next move, following the purchase, was an effort to get Fox signed to a Lincoln contract. For no special reason, however, the purchased pitcher was not in a mood to get down on the dotted line. Frequent letters were exchanged, but the mails brought no signed contract from Pitcher John.

About that time, the national association of minor leagues held its annual convention in Chicago. Don Despain was present on behalf of the Lincoln club, as were most of the major league club owners, Connie Mack included.

Despain and Mack were parties to a casual introduction in the lobby of a Chicago hotel. Don's head was working and he lost no time in asking the tall Philadelphian if he felt inclined to help in some way toward getting the Fox matter squared.

THE conversation, which occurred in the writer's presence, was brief, as Connie Mack quickly gave assent. Most assuredly, he would aid Despain in any way within his power. Pitcher Fox, all the while, was at his winter home in Reading, Pa., a short trip distant from the Quaker metropolis, and within a week after returning east Connie had made the jump to Reading, convinced the pitcher that he was standing in his own way and had Fox's name on a contract, on salary terms that Despain was highly pleased to approve.

More than that Connie declined to accept a penny by way of covering his personal expenses on the journey to Reading and return. As a major league magnate, who had been through the baseball mill and knew the troubles which beset a minor league club, Connie was pleased to help—and at his own expense.

ANOTHER famed Cornhusker football warrior has gone over the hill to follow the long trail which knows no ending. Johnny Bender, immortalized by old-timers in the Nebraska camp, passed on last summer, stricken while apparently in robust health, and now Dr. George A. Flippin, plunging halfback of the period when football at Nebraska was in its swaddling clothes, has been summoned.

Death of Dr. Flippin at his home in Stromsburg, Neb., the other day, leveled a grid gladiator whose prowess in Nebraska moleskins, during the early '90s, earned him a rating as one of the great halfbacks in Cornhusker history.

Coursing through his veins was the blood the black race. "Flip" was a negro—a marked man for every mucker during a time when college football was ferociously rough—but that mattered not to Flippin, who took every knock with never a flinch. The need of the moment was to put the ball across the opposition's goal and, in almost every crisis, "Flip" was the plunger—the line-smasher on whom Nebraska most relied.

Careless commentators and critics have been wont to question the physical courage of the negro race, but I never did—because it was my rare pleasure to see George Flippin play football on behalf of the Nebraska cause in the days when the gridiron game tried men's souls—when a cleat or a clenched fist were almost constant hurdles in his path.

Flippin has passed, and so has Bender—Flippin the indomitable and Bender the brilliant. Memory has enshrined them as Cornhusker immortals.

Coast Miss Still Supreme In Tennis

PARIS, May 18—(U. P.)—France assumed a two to one lead over the United States today in the first of the Franco-American women's team tennis matches at the new Rolland Garros stadium at Auteuil.

Helen Wills was the only one of the American players to score a victory. She defeated Mme. La Faurie with ease, 6-0, 6-2, leading from the first and never extending herself. The other singles match and the one doubles match played went to France.

Edith Cross, who lost two matches to Holland in recent international play at The Hague, fell before the driving attack of Mme. Mathieu in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2, while Miss Marjorie Morrill and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy lost to Mme. Bordes and Mlle. Barbier, 6-3, 8-6.

The features of the day's play were the controlled strength and perfect stroking exhibited by Miss Wills, and the great, if losing, fight waged by Mrs. Bundy, who was an American champion before many of her team mates were born.

Miss Wills, for the first time, joined the group of American stockingless tennis players and it appears that the United States delegation may introduce the bare leg fad at the all-English matches in Wimbledon.

NEBRASKA OPEN ON TURKEY DAY

Huskers In Position To Date a Big Team For Final Game.

AMES, Ia., May 18—(Special)—The policy of playing a Big Six conference football opponent Thanksgiving day will not be followed by Nebraska during the 1930 and 1931 seasons, according to schedules announced today at a session of the athletic directors of the Big Six conference.

The program of games arranged for the Huskers in 1930 leaves the date open for the scheduling of some big eastern team, while the tentative 1931 draft under consideration leaves room for a non-conference Turkey day opponent.

Missouri In November.

The Kansas Aggies appeared in Lincoln last Thanksgiving day and the Iowa State Cyclones will be at the Memorial stadium on the final game next fall. Nebraska authorities, however, feel that future schedules will be strengthened by the booking of some attractive non-conference opponent for the final.

The 1930 Nebraska football schedule also brings the Missouri game to a later date—Nov. 15, the contest being played in Lincoln. Nebraska conference schedule for 1930 follows:

The 1930 Schedule.

Oct. 11—Oklahoma at Norman.
Oct. 18—Iowa State at Ames.
Nov. 8—Kansas in Lincoln.
Nov. 15—Missouri in Lincoln.
Nov. 22—Kansas Aggies in Lincoln.

Two frosh football games were booked by Athletic Director H. D. Gish to comprise the Nebraska freshman grid card for next fall.

The Husker yearlings will entertain the Missouri frosh at Lincoln Nov. 9, the open date on the varsity schedule, and the Nebraska first-year will travel to Norman to meet the Oklahoma team Oct. 26 or Nov. 16.

Cross Country Dates.

Faculty representatives voted the annual conference cross country championships to Nebraska, the event being held Thanksgiving day as an added attraction to the Nebraska—Iowa State game.

Cross country dates scheduled for next fall:

Oct. 26—Nebraska at Missouri.
Nov. 2—Kansas at Nebraska.
Nov. 9—Oklahoma at Nebraska.

The Nebraska basketball slate for 1930 follows:

The Basketball Book.

Jan. 10—Kansas Aggies at Manhattan.
Jan. 17—Missouri at Columbia.
Jan. 22—Iowa State at Ames.
Jan. 25—Oklahoma at Lincoln.
Feb. 1—Kansas Aggies at Lincoln.
Feb. 8—Oklahoma at Norman.
Feb. 10—Kansas at Lawrence.
Feb. 15—Missouri at Lincoln.
Feb. 22—Iowa State at Lincoln.
Feb. 29—Kansas at Lincoln.

Nothing definite was accomplished toward the selection of the site for the conference indoor and outdoor championships. The directors and faculty representatives favored Missouri for the indoor meet in the event the Mizzou fieldhouse is completed in time. In case the indoor plant at Columbia is not ready, the meet probably will be taken to the Ak-Sar-Ben coliseum at Omaha.

Grover Boosts Lincoln.

If Missouri is unable to handle the indoor meet, the sentiment appears to be to take the outdoor track fest to Missouri.

Several, however, favored Lincoln, one of the strongest Nebraska boosters being Jack Grover, veteran referee and track star, who told the coaches and faculty men that Lincoln was the "live" track city on the circuit and should have the conference meet each year.

The conference wrestling championships were voted to Kansas Aggies and will be held next March 7 and 8.

Faculty Men Talkative.

Faculty representatives in session today continued to spend considerable time discussing ways and means of stabilizing coaching positions. The faculty men generally were agreed that coaches should be free from interference of townspeople, alumni and others, but the "rub" appeared just how this would be accomplished.

The faculty delegates also spent some time discussing just what requisites were necessary for a good coach. The necessary factors, they generally agreed, included winning a reasonable number of games and ability to hold the confidence and respect of his men.

M. F. Ahearn and Dr. H. H. King of the Kansas Aggies were elected chairmen of the athletic directors and faculty delegates, respectively, in accordance with the plan of rotating the offices.

Bucs Pound Ball; Defeat Cardinals

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 18—(U. P.)—The Pittsburgh Pirates won the concluding game of the series today with the St. Louis Cardinals, 6 to 3. The Cardinals got eight hits off Fussell and Kremer, while the Pirates were getting 11 hits off Sherdel. Comorosky, Pirate left fielder, got a home run in the second innings. The score:

BLUE GRASS PRIZE TO CLYDE VANDSUON

formance, while Panchio brought in $3,000 to the exchequer of W. T. Waggoner. The sum of $1,000 went with Blue Larkspur's fourth place, but, if E. R. Bradley bothered collecting it, he probably means to use it for hair cut money. He lost close to a million, they say, backing the horse that selected the derby to discover that it could not run in the mud.

Kentucky's Dark Day.

It was a dark day for Kentucky, indeed, yet honors there had to be in plenty and Kentucky got its share. Eastern-owned though he might be, Vandusen has done his racing in the middle west and quite a bit of it in Kentucky, at that. So it wasn't exactly an alien victory, at that. In fact, Kentucky was ready to be very big about it. It was willing to allow the east to claim the owner; all it asked was to be allowed to claim the horse.

It didn't matter that Illinois had an equal claim as the scene of many of his triumphs. A horse that can race the derby distance as Vandusen did today is worth claiming and Kentucky is not the state to deny itself anything in the guise of equine greatness.

Glowing With Pride.

Incidentally California scored with Naishapur and Texas with Panchio, so, rightfully enough, the spoils followed the four winds of the compass.

To Owner Gardner and Jockey McAtee, however, there was only one honor in the wide world today and they glowed with the very feel of it as the former stood courteously at the stewards' stand and the latter proudly sat his great colt to receive the inevitable rewards from Governor Fiem D. Sampson. For the owner, it was the massive gold cup, the $53,960 purse and the felicitations that one sportsman always tenders another. For the jockey, it was the clamor of the crowd, hailing his perfect handling of a perfect horse.

Roses for Clyde.

And for the horse it was the collar of roses that goes only to a big stake winner, an offering that was accepted with a proud arching of Clyde Vandusen's intelligent head. He seemingly sensed the fact that this was his reward and he knew full well that he deserved more than these strange figures on two legs ever could do for him.

Less than an hour later, the Gardner party was on its way out of town, quietly celebrating its victory. McAtee compared the horse to old Rosebud and said he was the most docile animal it ever had been his privilege to handle.

Like a Rocking Chair.

"Just like riding a rocking chair," he said. "All I had to do was let him run. At the three-quarters pole, however, I thought I'd see what he had and I let him out a bit.

"He almost ran away from me. I knew then that nothing on four legs could catch us."

The stretch run, therefore, was simply a romp, with the winner's lead of two lengths never questioned. The battle was in the rest of the field. The onrushing Naishapur was three lengths in front of Panchio at the pay-off and the latter headed blue Larkspur by a nose.

How They Trailed Home.

The rest of them trailed home in the following order: Windy City, Voltear, The Nut, Folking, Karl Eitel, Upset Lad, Calf Roper, Minotar, Bay Beauty, Chicatie, Paul Bunyan, Essare, Lord Bradaelbane, Ben McChree, the only filly in the field, Chip, Prince Pat and Paraphrase.

Barring the performance of Blue Larkspur and Minotar, the race was strictly to form. It was "form" for Clyde Van Dusen to win in the mud; it was "form" for Naishapur to come in the stretch.

Larkspur Not a Mudder.

Panchio may have run ahead of his past performances, but he never was a bad bet, at that. As for Blue Larkspur, he didn't deny "form." He simply established it—for his next race in the mud. Minotaur, never better than ninth, did likewise, although previously he had run well in the gumbo.

Still, as I have said, there was no other horse beside Van Dusen on the track. Only once was his ultimate victory open to question. That was at the barrier itself, where he was away ninth. Panchio was "on top" at this immature moment. He stayed there for perhaps a dozen strides, maybe less. For Clyde Van Dusen was coming too fast on the outside to accurately estimate the moment at which Panchio was leading and the moment in which he ceased to lead, definitely and forever henceforth.

Clyde Quickly Ahead.

Suffice it to say that Van Dusen rushed right to the pace over Panchio, Essare and The Nut and that, to all purposes, was the end of this horse race. It went on, as a matter of record, for a mile and a quarter happened

Feather Champion Owner of World's Strongest Heart

Routis Wins Plaudits of Man of Science as a Marvelous Machine

CHICAGO, May 18—(I. N. S.)—The most perfect heart in the world!

It is owned by Andre Routis, featherweight boxing champion, in the opinion of Dr. E. T. Brandt, official physician of the Illinois boxing commission.

Most Perfect In World.

"Routis is the most perfectly cut ball-bearing fighting machine science could conceive," declared Dr. Brand, who examined the French ring star here before his bout with Tony Canzeneri of New York.

"This dynamic French boy has the most perfect heart I have ever examined in any human in my years of medical experience and I believe he has the most perfect heart in the world," said the commission physician.

Dr. Brand believes that Routis is capable of boxing from 15 to 20 rounds without any unusual exertion, such as would be felt by the normal pugilist.

Able Keep Up Pace.

"I can understand how Routis maintains his extreme aggressiveness round after round, going hamer and tongs all the time," said Dr. Brand. "His heart does not seem to be the least disturbed by long sessions with the gloves. He is the sort who can box a long distance of rounds and retain his strength and speed in its fullest measure and, moreover, he would finish a long bout breathing just as easily as he started."

Examined After Battle.

Interested in reports he had received of Routis, Dr. Brand arranged to look over the super-human pugilist imediately after he stepped from the ring after a speedy workout.

"I was absolutely astonished," the doctor said after the examination at the side of the ring. "I found he was just as much at ease and his heart was almost as calm as I would expect to find it normally before he had undergone those exertions in the ring. Routis has a truly remarkable heart."

Baseball Averages.

American League.

The Tigers increased their lead in batting by 10 points during the week and the A's dropped 10, make the figures at the close of Wednesday games read .326 and .297, a long lead for the time being. The erratic White Sox maintained an even pace in percentage, but their hits are not as productive as are those of the winners. The Blackburne crew is third at .285.

Mack's pitchers put the team in first place, despite the drop in hitting. Thus far the A's have allowed less than four runs per game. Wasnington's opponents have counted only 101 runs in 21 games, but the Senators have not yet found their batting eyes. They have scored but 92 runs and are batting .254.

Tigers Busy Scorers.

Action is the watchword at Detroit. In 28 games, the Jungaleers have counted 173 times and allowed opponents 147 runs. They are far in front in nearly all departments of the attack. The Indians are last in fielding, but first in double plays with 31 to their credit.

"Round" Robert Fothergill has taken the batting lead from Charlie Jamieson, their marks reading .409 and .395. Captain Kamm of the White Sox is third and Bud Clancy is tied for fourth. Excellent pitching and the stick work of this pair have prevented the Pale Hose from falling out of the league.

Gehringer Leads In Runs.

Charlie Gehringer has dropped only a point in a week and ties with Clancy. The Detroit second-sacker deals in runs in wholesale lots and to date has deposited 31 in Bucky Harris' bag. He has also made 42 hits, one more than Marty McManus. Gehringer has 70 total bases, while Alexander and Heilmann have driven in 29 and 28 runs, respectively. Excepting Gehrig's eight home runs, there is not much left for the rest of the sluggers. Stolen bases count but little, but Averill and R. Johnson, the two Pacific coast stars, have five each.

Phil Todt has seven sacrifices and Pitcher George Uhle is still going strong with six straight victories. American league averages, games of last Wednesday included, follow:

National League.

Notable changes have occurred in the team work in the National during the last week. The Phils gained nine points during the week, advancing from third to first place in the batting table with a mark of .298. The Cubs are now second, after losing nine points, with a mark of .295, while the Reds have come from fifth to third place, their figures reading .292. The Giants have lost 11 points, along with three games out of four, and now rest uneasily in fifth place, just two points ahead of the fast coming Pirates who are at the .277 mark, as against .251 a week ago.

Cubs Best On Defense.

Chicago is the best defensive club, opposing teams being able to gather but 4.40 runs per game. Pop flies continue to fall in the near-by bleacher seats and in this feature New York leads by one homer over the Cubs, the count reading 24 and 23; 141 so-called round trip hits have been made this far, enough for a season; 29 of them came in the last seven days. The Cards lead in triples with 19 and Chicago in two-baggers with 52.

The Reds have turned 32 double plays in 24 games a pace that will set a new record if maintained.

Four Above .400.

Four regulars, Stephenson, Frisch, O'Farrell and Friberg are batting better than .400. The figures reading 418, 417, 414 and 413. Chick Hafey has driven 24 champs across the platter while Hack Wilson and Grimm are but a step behind with 23 each. Shephenson's 11 doubles and five triples give him 61 total bases while Cuyler gets the same by virtue of eight two baggers, three triples and four homers.

Burleigh Grimes tops the hurlers with five straight victories, all honestly earned, as the 22 opponents' runs in 59 innings show. Jess Haines has won four straight and Pat Malone five out of six. Malone has whiffed 31 batters in 56 rounds and Vance 30 in 44. National league averages, last Wednesday's games included, follow:

The Sportlight

By Grantland Rice

THE LONE EASTERN BARRIER.

The far west has been cleaning up the east with fairly steadily regularity through late years. Stanford or California or U. S. C. has been taking charge of the eastern intercollegiate games at Cambridge or Franklin field. Last summer California's big crew rowed away from the rest in the east at Poughkeepsie, and then in the Olympic eliminations. California will soon be headed east again and if California is to be stopped, the answer seems to be Columbia. Glendon's fast crew has already shown enough speed. If it can stand up under the four-mile test, there will be something to watch at Poughkeepsie, where at this moment the entire show seems to be Columbia and California. If Columbia's fast crew can't stop the far western charge, there is small likelihood that any other university can turn the trick.

THE HARDER GOAL.

Recently some 250 golfers met at Muirfield and Gullane to qualify and decide the fate of the British open.

It is a far different story over here, where the goal is much harder to reach.

Over here there are 8,000,000 square miles to be accounted for. In place of 250 entries there will be something between 1,100 and 1,200. It is for this reason that qualifying rounds must be played in many different sections—north, south, east and west.

There will be just one survivor on the afternoon of June 29, and he will be the survivor of some 1,200 shock troops.

Walter Hagen has accomplished a marvelous performance in winning four British opens, but winning the U. S. open is now the high spot in golf.

It is the toughest of all golfing jobs. In addition to all the star professionals there will be such amateurs as Bobby Jones, George Voight, George Von Elm, Chick Evans, Jess Sweetser, Harrison Johnston and others to consider. Over here it is not so much a battle against the elements. Cold winds and rains rarely attack a June tournament.

The fact that no golfer has repeated over here for seventeen years, shows how strong the barrier is. To be the sole entry left out of 1,200 starters from the best in the game is something to shoot at.

ROCKNE'S ANGLE.

Dear Sir: They were telling this Rockne story at the Ohio relays. When Elmer Leyden, fullback of the Horsemen, finished school, he came to Rockne for advice. He was undecided as to whether to take up coaching or become a bond salesman.

"What are the requirements of the jobs?" he asked Rockne.

"To be a successful bond salesman," Knute replied, "you have to be well dressed and dumb. To be a successful coach it is not necessary to dress quite so well."

RED T.

A fanatic writes in to suggest that it might be just as well to keep an eye on St. Louis in the National league race. Why no? St. Louis won in 1927, came close to winning in 1928 and came back to win in 1929. Any team that has Haines and Alexander pitching, with Frisch and Botomley around the infield, is no slight part of a set-up. The Cardinal lineup may not quite figure with the Cubs, but it won't be so far away when the final standing of the clubs is thrown into print.

"You might think," writes H. K. F., "that with a million targets to shoot at we would get a better run of heavyweighs han he game knows today. That much money usually draws out something to look at." You might think so, but it wouldn't mean anything. Apparently most of the heavyweights can't see why they should be bothered wih any real fighting for only $1,000,000. They'll take a bow for that much loose change, but not much more.

This situation is almost bound to change in the near future. If the present crop still insist upon the dance and grapple, the tug and halul, there will be others coming along willing to take a chance and wing a few shots in the general direction of the enemy. And when a few of these arrive most of those now hanging around will jump over the ropes or take up another line of work.

Nebraska HORSES and HORSEMEN

by "Columbus"

PACTOLUS, 2:12¾, one of the truly great stallions owned in Nebraska, was named after a great river in Lydia. That was the stream in which Midas, a king of Phrygia, washed himself when he turned into gold whatever he touched. Mercurius, p., 2:20¼, another stallion owned in Nebraska, was named after a celebrated god of antiquity whose services were made use of by other Grecian gods to carry messages.

By Shively of Tulsa, Okla., in letter of recent date, says: "You will have those Nebraska people thinking I am an old man; as old as J. B. Chandler, Gus Hart, Fred Robare or other old-time trainers in that state. Sometimes I feel about that old, but really I am not. Judge Maxey, 2:24½, is at Danforth Farm, Washington, Ill., a stable companion of Bingen Silk, 2:07¼. The Judge was purchased by George Davis of this city, who thought it better to leave the horse in Illinois this season."

Knowing that Mr. Davis is a good business man, it may be wrong to offer a criticism, but it seems to the writer that Judge Maxey should be in Nebraska, the state where he made his reputation as a sire of trotters and where he has a large following among breeders, trainers and owners. Judge Maxey came to Nebraska an unknown horse and we had the privilege of looking him over that first season. So well did we like the horse that we ventured telling Mr. Gould that Judge Maxey would succeed as a sire of speed, for the reason that his blood lines would cross favorably with the prevailing lines found in Nebraska. Such proved to true and it is our opinion that no greater mistake was ever made by Nebraska breeders than allowing Sorrento Todd and Judge Maxey to leave this state, as both stallions were sires of desirable foals and that is the sort breeders should strive to produce.

A NEW SIRE that has not been mentioned in The Star is Archdale Hall, 66052, sire of the pacing gelding Archie W., 2:20. Archdale Hall, bred by N. J. Ronin, Fremont, Neb., is a son of Archdale, 37034, and his dam Hannah Hall, by Walnut Hall, 2:08¼, is fast becoming a noted dam of speed. Archdale Hall was only three years old when he sired Archie W., 2:20, and should add to his list with years.

Only recently we were reading in The Star of James Lee, winner of an entire program of races at Louisville, Ky., in 1907, six in number. That recalled Tod Sloan, greatest of all riders in the estimation of many capable horsemen. At Gravesend, N. Y., in 1898, Tod Sloan won an entire program of races, five in number, and that was the first time in the history of the turf that such a performance had taken place. It was no uncommon thing for Sloan to ride four winners the same day, as he was a royal jockey, having a remarkable knowledge of pace.

Budweiser, p., 2:07¼, bred by John Holmbeck, Pickrel, Neb., was sired by Roy Norva, a son of Norval Chief, 2:19¼, that was bred by John Wagner, Beatrice. Bess, dam of Budweiser, was also dam of Ben Norval, p., 2:13¼, atone time thought to be a certain 2:10 performer. Bess was sired by Dr. Vincent, by St. Vincent, 2:15½. Dr. Vincent was brought to Beatrice by C. W. Murray, a successful horseman who was with the Danforth Farm, Washington, Ill., several years. Dr. Vincent is represented by Midford Vincent, 2:18¼, and the dam of Budweiser and Ben Norval.

Budweiser was owned by a member of the Mumford family of Gage county, but was not the only speed merchant owned by that horse-loving family. We recall that the day Budweiser won at Lincoln from a splendid field of pacers, over 30 members of the Mumford family were found rooting for their favorite. That was no easy race for Budweiser, as he was racing against four 2:10 pacers, three of them owned in this state and the other in Iowa.

AN ADDITIONAL new sire for Nebraska is Billy Todd, by Sorrento Todd, 2:11, bred by Fred C. Horth, Shelton, Neb. Billy Todd, sire of the trotting mare Ida Todd (4), 2:17¼, carries back through his dam to an early-day pacing stallion—Burlock, 2:20½, by Red Wilkes, 1749, owned for several years in Lincoln by R. C. Outcalt and represented in the standard list by Nick Duff, 2:22½, and Minnie Cotton, 2:22, bred jointly by C. E. Cotton, Syracuse, Neb., and Mr. Outcalt; also by Thelbert, 2:27¼, and Leland W., 2:22¼. We can find no foal of Burlock that was foaled later than 1900 and for that reason believe the dam of Billy Todd must have been quite an old mare when she was bred to Sorrento Todd in 1911.

C. W. Adams, Pueblo, Colo., advises that his two-year-old (in 1928) pacer Rex Silk, 2:17, by Bingen Silk, 2:07¼, holds the Colorado state record for age and gait. Rex Silk was trained and raced by Jimmy Lyon, a horseman well known to Nebraska race-goers, as he was with Roy Owen one season and later raced the stable owned by D. Schilling of Pueblo, at Lincoln and Omaha. Rex Silk was bred by the late Ed Gould, Kearney, his dam Bertha McKinney, by McKinney, 2:11¼, having previously produced that fast pacer Kinney Silk, 2:07¾, as well as other standard performers.

A recent study of Nebraska-bred brood mares, made for a statistical table published in the Horse Review, proved that as yet this state has nothing in the way of a native brood mare with 10 standard performers to her credit. However, we learned that six mares bred in this state are dams of five or more trotters and pacers with standard records and that possibly one may yet join the select band of mares having 10 standard performers to their credit, that one being Dudie Archdale, 2:03¼, fastest trotter bred in this state and greatest money winner, either trotter or pacer.

THOSE six mares are: Dudie Archdale, 2:03¼, by Archdale, dam of seven, five of them having records of 2:10 or better. In addition, Dudie Archdale has two foals racing in Europe, both winners during 1929, that by every right should be included, but their records are not recognized by the American Trotting Register association, owing to the fact that harness racing across the water is largely at distances more than a mile. Of race winners, however, Dudie Archdale now has nine, and two other foals owned in Europe are considered very desirable.

Other mares are: Catherine S., by Pactolus, dam of five trotters and one pacer; Wingold, 2:25½, by Patronage, dam of six trotters and two pacers; Mrs. Tmolus, by Pactolus, dam of six trotters and one pacer; Miss Robey, 2:11¼, by Pactolus, dam of four trotters and one pacer, and Josie, by Norway Chief, p., 2:23, dam of five pacers.

Several mares, owned in this state but bred elsewhere, are dams of five or more standard performers, among them Bertha McKinney, mentioned in a preceding item, which is dam of three trotters and two pacers.

Possibly the greatest dam of speed owned in Nebraska was Addiola Mack, by McKinney, 2:11¼, dam by Direct, p., 2:05½, owned at Midway Farm, Kearney. That mare is dam of five trotters and four pacers, all nine acquiring records after Addiola Mack was purchased by Mr. Ed. Gould. The fastest performer produced by Addiola Mack was Mack Silk, p., 2:08, bred at Midway Farm.

NO SUCH band of brood mares as Mr. Gould had at Midway Farm was ever found at a western breeding establishment and among them were several whose blood lines were traced beyond the twentieth generation. Annola, by Expedition, 2:15¾, traced directly to her twenty-third dam, The Montague mare, owned in England. Cecil Spier, by Directum Spier, 2:11¼, traced to The Layton Barb mare, her twenty-third dam, and The Layton Barb mare was the twenty-first dam of Devil's Imp, by Dare Devil, 2:09, another mare owned by Mr. Gould. The Layton Barb mare appears in so many pedigrees of American trotters that it is reasonable to presume she was far more than an ordinary animal.

The fact that she was Barb, rather than an Arabian, is greatly in her favor, as the greatest horse in the history of English breeding was The Godolphin Arabian, a Barb horse rather than an Arabian. The Barb horse came from Northern Africa, mostly from Morocco, and that is thought to be the home of The Godolphin Arabian, as he resembled that type of horse.

Writing of that horse the late John H. Wallace, greatest of all students of the trotter, said: "The Godolphin Arabian was altogether the greatest horse of his century. He was to the English race horse what Rysdyk's Hambletonian is to the American trotter. Neither of them was ever in a race, but each of them stood immeasurably superior to all others of his day as a progenitor of speed, at his own gait. So great was the reputation of The Godolphin Arabian that even Englishmen know far more about him than they do about King George II, during whose reign that horse gained his greatest reputation as a sire."

SO FAR as we are able to learn, the first mare owned in Nebraska to become the dam of four trotters was Red Rose, by Jester D., owned at Keystone Farm, Benson, Red Rose, foaled 1883, was bred by S. T. Kennedy, Maryville, Mo. Her dam, Miss Fanny, was sired by Merchant, son of Belmont, and her granddam, Kate T., was sired by Mambrino Patchen. As Jester D. was sired by Almont, one may readily learn that Red Rose was exceedingly well bred, as Almont, Belmont and Mambrino Patchen were famous family-building stallions. Red Rose was dam of Contralto, 2:10; The Baritone, 2:11¾; Guy, 2:12; The Bishop (2), 2:28¾, and Eliza K. p., 2:11¼. In addition to five standard performers, Red Rose was further represented by Guy, sire of one, and Concerto, dame of one.

Concerto, by The Conqueror, 2:12¼, an own sister to Contralto, 2:10, and The Baritone, 2:11¾, etc., also bred by W. A. Paxton, jr., Benson, is the dam of Native Conqueror, 2:13¼, and Marion Gratton, p., 2:18¼, both bred by Ed Allen, living at Marion, Ia., at the time, but now of Des Moines. Concerto passed to the ownership of Allen after failing to stand training as a trotter. As Contralto was exported to Europe, where she was raced for some time over tracks in Austria, Germany and Italy, we have no record of her success as a brood mare, but if put to such purpose it stands to reason that she must have been successful as a producer of speed.

RECENTLY it was mentioned in "Nebraska Horses and Horsemen" that racing would be more of a certainty if it could be determined just what a horse would do the next time it started in a race. In that item we referred to a conversation had with a veteran breeder and trainer of thoroughbreds, the party in mind being Dan Covington, living at Gaylord, Kan., many years, and father of Aleck and George Covington, greatest jockeys of their day.

A press dispatch, published in the daily papers of May 11, brought to mind the truth of our statement and this is what we read:

"Jamaica, N. Y., May 10.—Coots, owned by H P Whitney, after making a great showing of his field in the Montana Handicap and having the race well in hand, ran out on the stretch and, before Robertson could get him under control, was last and hopelessly beaten."

Once more was demonstrated the value of a biblical observation, that "The race is not always to the swift." It also further illustrates the uncertainties of racing, something we were writing of in the issue of The Star referred to.

Nebraska "Tiger Man" Puts Trust Wrestlers On the Pan

Pesek Flays Combine; Forced Go Australia In Quest of Opponent

BY COPELAND C. BURG.

CHICAGO, May 18—(I. N. S.)—Have you heard the bedtime story of one John Pesek, Tiger Man of Nebraska, involving the last stand of the Prairie Peseks against America's greatest violation of the Sherman act—the so-called wrestling trust?

It seems there are two persons, namely Mr. Pesek and his manager, Mr. Al Haft of Columbus, Ohio, who believe Mr. Pesek is the world's heavyweight wrestling champion. Mr. Pesek's monogrammed letterheads admit as much and more, while the Tiger Man opines Mr. Gus Sonnenberg is just another "big bum."

Mad At Sonnenberg.

Sonnenberg, the former Dartmouth college football star, acknowledged champion and wearer of the tiara, mythical belts and silk-lined bathrobe that go with the heavyweight mat title, "butted" his way to the title in the opinion of Pesek and now as a grand climax has refused $10,000 to expose his body to the claws of the gent from the plains where the River Platte rolleth.

Mr. Stecher and Mr. Lewis, two other big toe and head crushing individuals, have also refused to meet him, "Tiger" Pesek avows.

Mr. Pesek is very much disgusted and has decided to leave the wrestling game in these United States flat on its back.

He is sailing in June for that far-away Australia, where he will engage the leading wrestlers and any stray kangaroo athletes that want to test his strength and agility.

WHEN HE RETURNS.

"But mind you," said Mr. Pesek, just as the hero always does at the end of the second act, "when I return from Australia I am going to again insist on a match with Sonnenberg, as I feel my program in Australia will convince American wrestling fans I am the greatest of them all—the greatest since the days of Gotch."

And by way of emphasis the Tiger man added, as he threw another pair of embroidered trunks into his travelling bag:

"There has been enough of this family, trust or syndicate wrestling. Let's see Lewis, Stecher and Sonnenberg get into the ring with a good tough American, instead of rolling around on the mat with a lot of pot-bellied foreigners."

BRUINS TIGHTEN TOP PLACE GRIP

Root Hurls Brilliantly for Cubs In Shutting Reds, 7 to 0.

CHICAGO, May 18.—(UP)—The Chicago Cubs took a firmer grip on first place when they won the second and final game of the series from Cincinnati here today, 7 to 0. The game was played in football weather. The Cubs pounded Jakie May for four hits and as many runs in the fourth inning. Root held the Reds to six hits. Despite the cold, Approximately 15,000 saw the game. The score:

CLEAN SWEEP BY AMERICAN TEAM

Yankees Decline to Give Down In Cup Clashes With Canadians.

MONTREAL, Quebec, May 18.—(I. N. S.)—The United States Davis cup team made a clean sweep of all their matches against Canada by winning both singles here this afternoon on the Mount Royal courts.

John Van Ryn, the American flash, allowed his Canadian opponent, Dr. Jack Wright, but two games in their three-set match. The final count was 6-1, 6-0, 6-1.

Van Ryn played sterling tennis and battered down all efforts on the part of the sporting medic to defend himself. The match was played in whirlwind style, lasting less than an hour.

By special permission, the Americans substituted Wilmer Allison for John Hennessey and Wilmer didn't disappoint 'em.

Allison Downs Crocker.

He came through a tough battle, fighting up from behind and defeated his Canadian antagonist, the noted, hard-hitting Willard Crocker, by 2-6, 6-4, 10-8, 4-6, 6-2.

Although the first round was won yesterday by the Americans and today's matches served as an anti-climax, the "battle royal" between Allison and Crocker brought the crowded stands to their feet with applause.

Allison defeated his hard hitting opponent by his persistent net play, killing off nearly everything the doctor had to offer.

HAIG PULLS NEW ONE OUT OF BAG

Sir Walter Fixes Own Dates When He Plays With Prince.

LONDON, May 18—(I. N. S.)—"The prince—Oh, he's a fine chap. I like him and I think we got along fine together."

This comment emanated tonight from another member of royalty, one Walter Hagen, king in the realm of British golfdom, after a two-ball foursome on the exclusive Swinley Forest course, near Ascot, today in which the Prince of Wales and the "Haig" were paired against Sir Phillip Sasson and Audrey Boomer, another profesional.

Casually, as though he were talking of the quality of his cigar, the debonair winner of the British open championship discused the merits and defects of the prince's golf.

"I think he's a pretty good prospect for an amateur," said Hagen. "He's a first-rate putter. He has a nice easy swing and a good follow through on his drive.

Stands Up To His Ball.

"In both wooden and iron shots, he stands up to the ball nicely. But he hasn't as much confidence in his iron shots as he has in his wooden clubs.

"I like the way he studies each shot scientifically, both before and after making it. He is remarkably in earnest when playing.

"There is nothing starch about the prince. You should have heard him when he rubbed a smot. Just like any golfer, and right to the point.

"He certainly made a good partner. He talked all the way around in a democratic fashion. I just called him 'partner' when addressing him most of the time."

Sets His Own Dates.

Hagen toyed with a siphon of fizz water as he talked.

"I'm sorry I couldn't accept his invitation to play again Monday. I told him I had to go to the continent to play, but would be glad to take him when I returned.

Rather typical of the cocky "Sir Walter." Millionaires the British isles over have dreamed vainly of being invited to play with the Prince of Wales. Hagen, however, sets his own golfing dates, princes notwithstanding.

PIPGRAS HURLS ONE-HIT GAME

Yankees Take Brace In Winning Twin Bill From Red Sox.

NEW YORK, May 18—(U. P.)—The New York Yankees today took both ends of a doubleheader from the Boston Red Sox 5 to 2 and 5 to 0.

George Pipgras missed a no-hit game in the second contest by the narrowest of margins. Taitt's scratch single off Pipgras' glove in the second was the only Boston safety registered and only two other men reached first base, both on passes. Pipgras fanned eight. Lary hit a homer in the fifth.

In the first game, the Yankees broke their five-game losing streak behind good pitching by Herb Pennock. Bill Dickey's home run in the fifth scored Lary with the tying run and the Yanks got to Danny MacFayden for four runs and the ball game in the next frame. Score of first game:

DRAMA IN LIFE OF "SUNNY JIM"

Luck Breaks In Favor of Man Who Built Race Track at Tijuana.

Coffroth In Charge of Two Million Project In Old Mexico.

NEW YORK, May 18—"Taps" has sounded over the race track that Jim Coffroth built years ago in the then almost unheard of Tijuana, Mexico.

Its passing reawakens memories of the courage of Coffroth, his faith in the face of 10,000 jeers, and how neither fire, nor storm, nor floods, revolutions, war and pestilence could make him quit.

There is romance in the story of "Sunny Jim" Coffroth and Tijuana; romance and drama, thrills and comedy and pathos, too. None like it was ever written before; in sportdom there cannot be anything to match it. And through the fabric of the tale is spun the indomitable will and the fighting heart of a man who faced a hundred misfortunes that would have made any other human quit—but he never quit!

Smiled At Adversity.

Coffroth smiled in face of adversity—and carried on. The reward is his. For now he becomes the dominating turf mind in the new Agua Caliente race track that will replace the old wooden structure with its weather-beaten stands, its old rambling barns—and its memories.

In his earlier years, Coffroth was the premier fight promoter of America. For more than a decade he staged ring duels in and around San Francisco that have become classics. Every champion of the heavies, except John L. Sullivan, fought under his banner. He paired the lightweights from Joe Gans' day unto Benny Lecnard's. Close to 40 fistic kings defended their laurels with "Sunny Jim" as the impresario.

Appointed By Wilson.

When the war broke out and the government sanctioned the staging of elaborate fistic spectacles to raise funds for soldiers, President Woodrow Wilson appointed Coffroth to take charge of the herculean job. And so gloriously did he perform the task that John D. Rockefeller, sr., had a trophy struck for him.

Coffroth, with boxing legislated out of existence and seeking some outlet for his tremendous energy, harkened to a suggestion that he build a race track in Tijuana, just across the border from San Diego. Coffroth admits that he hardly knew the difference then between a claiming race and a judge's pagoda. Smart men called his venture suicidal. But Coffroth believed in the proposition and he believed in himself—and he went ahead.

Had Hard Sledding.

Nearly 15 years ago he built his track. Those early years were brutal. "Sunny Jim" could attract few owners, few good horses and jockeys, to his remote track. Racing then lacked class at Tijuana. He ran afoul of a revolution in Lower California. Then the war hit him a jolt because it forced him to close his track. Disaster behind him and seeming disaster ahead, he plugged along, buoyant and ever optimistic, and reopened in 1920.

In the time since then, unkind fate hammered him fiercely and his track as well. Floods, fires, terrific storms, a "flu" epidemic—all of them hit him. But they never swerved Jimmy Coffroth from his purpose to continue operation of that track.

Luck Turned His Way.

As the years went on, all the legions of hoodoo tired of their task in beating a man who couldn't be beaten. Finally, fortune took a turn for him.

Success came in such a way that he was able to recoup his earlier losses, reap a profit, and then increase the Coffroth Handicap purse from $4,000 gradually up to $100,000—the richest stake in the world!

The Tijuana track, once the most obscure on the American continent, came to be the meeting place each winter for the wealth, the beauty and the aristocracy, not only of California but from all corners of the earth.

Two Million Dollar Plant.

The track now is being dismantled. Its last race has been staged; its last bugle call has echoed in the limbo of bygones. For Coffroth has linked hands with a group that built Agua Caliente's hotel and casino a few miles from the site of the old track. The new group is erecting a $2,000,000 plant that will be ready for winter racing in 1929-30.

It is only fitting that "Sunny Jim," who fought for 15 terrible years to make Tijuana a racing center—who fought on his own courage when his various mates faltered and quit—should now achieve the reward of appointment as the guiding genius in what undoubtedly will be the mostthe most magnificent race course in the new world.

Woodmen vs. Waverly In Sunday Ball Game

Woodmen 969 will take on the Waverly team in a baseball game this afternoon at 2:30 on the field at Seventeenth and Holdrege streets. Sullivan and Hergert will be in the points for the Woodmen, while Hamlow and Kyle will be the battery for Waverly.

The Woodmen aggregation is slated to perform at Table Rock Sunday, May 26.

Colored Teams In Action.

Lincoln has two teams of negro ball tossers—Colored Giants and the Keystone Cubs. Both will be in action today on local diamonds. The Giants will stack up against the Amend Grocers at 2:30 on the F street park diamond, while the Cubs will tackle the Security Benefit Association team at 2:30 on university diamond No. 4. North Tenth street.

CRETE HIGH WINS IN COUNTY MEET

CRETE, Neb., May 19—Crete high school finished in first place today in the Saline county track and field meet, with Friend a close second. Crete's point total was 54 1-3, while Friend registered 48. Wilber 23 5-6 and Tobias 9 1-3. Six teams competed and seven meet records were broken. Littrell, Wilber sprinter, ran the century in 10 flat and the 440 dash in 53.2. Kuskie of Friend won the high hurdles in 16.6; Shepard skipped over the low hurdles in 26 seconds, and Crete's half-mile relay team was timed in 1:37.4. Kuskie was high point man for the day.

Yanks In Dumps; Big Bam Injured

NEW YORK, May 18 — One of the troubles with the New York Yankees these days is Babe Ruth.

Handicapped by an injured wrist, Ruth is playing far below form and the result is demoralizing to the entire Yankee team. Unless Ruth's wrist shows improvement soon, Miller Huggins may be forced to give him a badly needed rest.

"As Ruth goes, so go the Yanks," is one of baseball's truest axioms. It is better for Ruth to be hobbling around the outfield or swinging 'Big Bertha" with one hand than to have no Ruth at all.

Unable Grip His Bat.

Ruth's injury prevents him from gripping a bat with any force and, as a result, he is popping up and striking out in the pinches.

With their weak hitting and weird pitching, the Yanks can ill afford to lose Ruth at this stage of the race, but it may be an absolute necessity if they are to have him later on when they may even need him worse.

Ruth will stay in the game 10 times longer than the ordinary player. Few fans will forget his marvelous exhibition in the last world series, when he played through the series with a lame knee which would have laid any ordinary athlete on the shelf.

Babe On Way Out.

In many quarters, the belief is prevalent that this will be Ruth's last succesful season in the major leagues. Ruth's play to date certainly is the basis for the conclusion that he is at least heading towards the end.

Granted that Ruth's wrist has handicapped him, it must also be acknowledged that injuries will play a large part in bringing Babe's career to a close. Ruth has always placed a tremendous burden on his physique and nature is certain to exact its penalty.

Copper Leads In Distance Grind

BIG SPRINGS, Tex., May 18—(I. N. S.)—Forging to the front in a desperate run over mud-soaked roads today, Johnny Salo, the flying cop of Passaic, N. J., took the lead in C. C. Pyle's cross country derby. He replaced Pete Gavuzzi, bearded Italian and loyal subject of King George of England, who has led the pavement pounders since they passed through the state of Ohio.

Salo and Giusto Umek reached Big Springs together, following a hard days' grind over the heavy roads from Colorado, Texas. They made the 43 miles in the time of 6:09.4. Gavuzzi was third in today's lap running it in 6:49.30.

The grind of the Arizona desert is yet ahead and the men have not saved themselves in their trek across the broad expanse of Texas. The first four in elapsed time were:

Johnny Salo, Passaic, N. J., 325:36.02.

Pete Gavuzzi, England, 325:40.32.

Sam Rischman, New York, 356:09.20.

Paul Simpson, Burlington, N. C., 356:41.28.

TURNESA PLUCK DECIDES MATCH

Yankee Beats Britisher In Thousand Guineas Tournament.

MOORTOWN, Eng., May 18—(U. P.)—Joe Turnesa, who barely qualified for the British open championship match play, today carried the United States to victory in the finals of the Yorkshire Evening News thousand guineas professional tournament here.

Turnesa fighting a dogged uphill battle, scored a magnificent victory over Herbert Jolly, slender British professional to win the tournament, defeating the Briton one up on the thirty-seventh hole, after having been three down on the thirty-fourth tee.

Facing the necessity of winning three consecutive holes, the plucky Turnesa called upon all the golf at his command, took expert advantage of every misplay of his opponent and turned the trick.

Holes a 35-Footer.

He started the first 18 holes at a championship clip, winning the first two holes and halving the third. He holed a 35-foot putt on the second green.

Jolly was not discouraged, however, and had the American one down going to the eighth tee. It looked as though Jolly would increase his lead on the eighth green, when he laid Turnesa a dead stymie, but Joe successfully negotiated an intricate shot with his niblick, winning the hole and evening the match.

Turnesa Two Down.

They fought back and forth on the incoming morning nine. Turnesa finally cracked for the moment at the sixteenth and seventeenth holes. He found a ditch on both holes, allowing Jolly to finish the morning two up.

Turnesa set out in pursuit as the afternoon started, winning the nineteenth when Jolly's tee shot found a bunker and evening the match at the twenty-first. He fell behind again, due to weak putting, finally reaching the thirty-fourth tee with his opponent dormie three.

Jolly Blows Easy Putt.

It looked like the end for the United States, but Turnesa played the hole perfectly and Jolly missed the 18-inch putt which would have meant a half and victory. He was still dormie two, however.

Jolly's second shot on the thirty-sitxh landed deep in a bunker, giving Turnesa the chance he sought, and the match was evened.

Both played nice shots to the green on the extra hole, reaching home in two. Turnesa was away at the edge of the green, but sank his putt for a three.

This placed Jolly with his back to the wall. His ball refused to drop and the match was over.

Turnesa shot an approximate 74-73 for a 147 and Jolly's approximate score was 69-75—144.

PUEBLO, Colo., May 18—(I. N. S.)—A drastic shakeup in the Pueblo Western league baseball club was indicated tonight when it was announced in Wichita, Kas., that Cotton Tirney had resigned as manager of the club.

Spencer Abbott, president and owner of the club, dissatisfied with the showing the Steelworkers have made, said he would probably take over the managership himself for the remainder of the season, intimating that a number of changes would be made in the personnel immediately.

Youthful Stars In Davis Cup Competition.

This year's American Davis cup team probably will see younger players than have been on the team for some years. Big Bill Tilden and Little Bill Johnson had so dominated the tennis world that the young people had a hard fight to get recognition. Now they are having their day. Fritz Mercur (left, John Hennessey (center) and Wilmer Allison (right), all just over the college age were snapped in Montreal practicing for the first round of the Davis cup matches with Canada. The Americans won the match from Canada, and will compete against Japan in the second round.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

By International News Service

NEW YORK, May 18

The stock market was unsettled at the opening today by over-night predictions of an advance in reserve bank rediscount rates ,to follow the boosting of the San Francisco and Minneapolis rates.

A few of the market leaders moved upward at the opening. General Electric gaining 1½ at 291 and St. Joseph Lead 2 points at 74.

The steel and copper stocks were slightly irregular, with Anaconda Copper down ½ point at 127; U. S. Steel down ¾ at 176; Bethlehem down ½ at 106⅜; American Smelting down ⅛ at 101⅛; Andes down ½ at 31¼.

International Tel. led the high-priced specialties, with a decline of 3¾ at 260¼. United Corporation was down ⅝ at 67. The rails were generally steady, with Northern Pacific up ½ at 90½; Missouri Pacific up ¼ at 91⅝; Erie down ¼ at 72¼; New Haven up ¼ at 99¼. Oils were firm, with the Pure Oil up ⅝ at 28⅝; Sinclair down 1-8 at 37⅞; Texas Company unchanged at 65; Royal Dutch up ¼ at 52¾. Curtiss Aero was a favorite in the first period, with a 3 point jump to 157½.

A rally in the railroad stocks and specialties near the end of the most inactive and featureless half-sessions of the year today restored a good part of the early losses and the market on the whole wound up not far from where it started.

The early selling had been based upon the spread of rumors of higher reserve bank rates, but no one had any positive information on the subject and the bears were glad enough to cover their tracks when stocks refused to go down.

The airplane stocks were featured by an 8-point jump in Curtiss to 162½. New Haven led the rails with a 2½ point jump to 101¾ and Postum was in demand around 79, up 2½. The steels and coppers lost more ground than they were able to make up. It was a professional market from beginning to end, with a turnover of approximately a million and a quarter shares.

Industrial stocks were unsettled in the short session of the market today by the renewal of country-wide discussion of the money situation, principally in the bankers' conventions. Wall street heard today that the reserve board was finally convinced of the necessity of higher rediscount rates, to "stop speculation" and would approve the marking up of the New York and Chicago rates next week.

A flurry of speculative selling carrier prices of most of the active industrials downward, the steels, coppers, specialties and many of the motor shares moving off 1 to 3 points. The Airplain stocks made a firm stand, Curtiss advancing about 7 points to 161, and the Electrical manufacturing shares moved upward a point or two at the start.

The bears had a comparatively easy time in pounding downward the prices of the active stocks which rallied so handsomely in the last two sessions. Anaconda Copper dropped back 3 points to 125 and United States Steel lost 2 points. The Advance Rumley shares were again under selling pressure, the common dropping 8 points to 52¼ and the preferred 7 points to 63. The ground was shaken from under a number of the speculative favorites of the week, including United Corp and Radio but they received fairly good support and net losses were comparatively small.

Another drop in wheat prices to $1.01 a bushel at Chicago, the lowest price in 5 years, was an unsettling factor the week end business report noted a slackening of retail trade, due to the bad weather, but no let-down in manufacturing.

Every Car You See On the Road

—IS A USED CAR—

THINK OF THAT!

The Only New Cars Are In the Salesrooms.

EVERY CAR THAT PASSES YOUR HOME TODAY is a USED CAR, and the only difference between them is that some are second hand and others are first-hand.

"SECOND-HAND" refers only to change in ownership and implies nothing as to condition. The man with a "SECOND-HAND" car may have the better car of the two.

AND ANOTHER POINT TOO— New cars carry a nationally advertised selling price set by the manufacturer to show a profit for HIMSELF— THE DISTRIBUTOR — and the LOCAL DEALER.

A LEGITIMATE AUTOMOBILE DEALER has just one thing to guard —that's his REPUTATION. This is the one business that depends in no degree on transient trade. We have to live among those we do business with.

That's why the other class of dealers don't stay long in business—at all—or in any one town for any great length of time. They can't. So, when you try to settle the question of NEW CAR vs. USED CAR, let nothing but your pocketbook be your guide—but guide your pocketbook to a reliable dealer. You can be safe in either case.

Pinocchio.

I—Pinocchio, the little wooden doll, passes a Marionette theater. The Marionettes recognize their brother and call to him to join their merry band. Great excitement arises and the stage manager appears to see what has made such a commotion. He discovers Pinocchio and threatens to put him in the fire for having disturbed his theater. IV.—An interpretation of the imagery of Indian Art-In-Life. "The color mixer createth the world with the music of his drum, and paineth the Year with his light."

"I am the Middle Place.
I am the central man.
The life of the four winds is my breathing life.
All colors unite to illuminate me."

"Four are the Terraced mountains that uphold the heaven in that land, and four are the colors that pattern the life of man—the four colors of the wheel of day and the four colors of the circle of earth."

"There the Indian man maketh him beads that are symbols of earth's quarters and of the place of man's life, central in the world."

"There the Indian woman adorneth her Potter's work with symbols of the life that falleth from heaven and of the life of earth that ariseth responsive thereto."

University Choral Union Gives Cantata Thursday

Cadman's "The Father of Waters" Will Be Presented At Memorial Hall.

"The Father of Waters," an American cantata by Charles Wakefield Cadman, will be presented by the Choral Union of the University of Nebraska Thursday morning at 11 a. m. in Memorial hall, under the direction of Howard Kirkpatrick.

This is a new Cadman work, founded upon a series of episodes in early American history, relating to the discovery of the Mississippi river. Mr. Cadman used the medium of a "historian," to connect the episodes of the story. Mr. Kirkpatrick's story of the cantata follows:

Beginning at the source of this great river (Itaska) the librettist describes the "Cedars and hemlocks and aspens, that circle the verge of Itaska."

Indians sing of the "Father of all running waters," saying, "The ages held it sacred; only the Red man knew the bright majestic flood."

Then an historic incident is related by De Soto's men, as they intone a dramatic song, lamenting that their brave leader should lie under the waters of the great river, "Buried in secret at midnight." Indian women weave a spell in a charming corn song,

Laughing in the painted dawning,
Swaying in the gilded noonday,
Rustling in the tinted evening."

Now come the French explorers from across an unknown sea, sailing from sunny shores into an unknown river. They sing,

Bright the stream, fair the sky,
Broad the land beyond all knowing."

Then a touch of sentiment, "As a mother on her children smiles, so the great river gathers to her breast all the nations of the earth, who come seeking a home in this fair land."

As time goes on and hordes of hardy adventurers seek these shores, the white man gradually becomes master along the great river, and the Redman is forced to find new hunting grounds. This change is reflected in a sad song of the Indian mothers, "Willow, willow," as they bid farewell to the river.

Now the historian indulges in a touch of sentiment and introduces the "First white lovers," which situation Mr. Cadman has utilized to develop a highly effective duet, "Look in the Water, O, My Love, and Read the Hope of a Watching Star."

Then comes war, and this tranquil scene is rudely broken by a fine dramatic chorus,

"War and desolation,
Destruction and disaster,
Havoc and pestilence,
Despair and hatred."

The story now follows the Mississippi to the southland. The music of the black man is heard as the women sing, "When Night Comes Down, While Yet the Sunset Lingers." The men take up the song in "Full Moon in Louisiana." Cadman swings into a characteristic melody that is likely to catch the popular fancy.

Thus is rounded out a highly agreeable and entertaining hour of music, the work closing in a splendid semi-patriotic chorus, "Spirit of Freedom."

The premiere of this work took place about a year ago as a part of a great May festival at Harrisburg, Pa. The University Choral union has the pleasure of the first presentation in the middle west.

A New Bread for LINCOLN

MADE ACCORDING to U.S. GOVT. STANDARDS

OUT of the world of bread baking comes a NEW loaf for the housewives of this vicinity. It is a bread more flavorsome than any you have yet tasted—more nourishing than you ever thought bread could be.

This new bread is different because it is made different. Pure, wholesome milk has been added to the other high quality ingredients to give it a new creamy-white color, a more flavorsome, nourishing quality.

The United States Government set the standard by which this milk bread is made—a standard which requires that at least one-third of the liquid used be whole milk. This standard insures you a bread in which the food value is greatly increased. A bread more completely digestible and assimilable and, therefore, especially valuable as a part of the diets of both children and adults. A bread with a highly improved flavor, texture, color and keeping quality.

For Your Protection!

The government standard requires that pure, whole milk compose one-third of the liquid used in making milk bread. It also requires that EVERY ingredient meet the strict standard of the pure food law. Thus does the blending of pure, whole milk with other high quality ingredients give this bread its greater health qualities.

COME SHOP with MODERN EVE

At Arthurs

THE co-eds are selecting dresses and coats for every summer occasion. The little sleeveless silks of pastel coloring have been the choice of some for those afternoon occasions just before graduation. Some are finding just the adorable flowered chiffon they've wanted for evening occasions. Those tailored ensembles, smart suits and coats furnish just the completeness their wardrobes need for daytime wear. And the co-eds have another reason—you know at Arthur's everything is priced within the limits of a school girl's purse.

Mrs. Champe Says:

"THE Ridnour Beauty Shop operators are famous for creating the most natural and becoming of permanents. Using the Nestle and Frederic machines. We successfully rewave over your partially grown out permanent. Our operators are all experts with many years of experience in permanent waving. Your complete permanent for $5." Ridnour's Beauty Shop; Mrs. Champe, manager; Tenth and O. Phone, B6871.

They Say American Orientals

HAVE the same appearance as imported orientals. The colors used, the patterns and the finish is almost identical to the real oriental, but the price is very much lower. Griswold-Comstock, Inc., accross from the Lincoln hotel, has a new shipment of the Gulistan Deluxe. At first glance you would take these rugs to be genuine orientals. They do not look like machine made rugs at all and even experts find it hard to tell the difference. They have the same rich silky appearance you find in the expensive weaves of the orient; the jewel-like colors, shimmer and change-tone, fiving a luxurious effect never seen in rugs of this type before.

Champe Says:

"THE smart new hair dress with the many clever individual touches that you see your friends wearing was done at Champe's Finger Wave Shop by Miss "Jo", expert finger waver (recently of our Omaha shop). Come in to this popular shop at any hour of the day and you will meet some of your friends here. Your shampoo and finger wave for $1; your hair cut, 50 cents." Champe's Finger Wave Shop, 1227 N st., (downstairs). Phone, B5173.

After a Visit

TO the Mary Jane Garment Shop where I saw those huge sewing machines turning out pretty summer frocks of organdy, batiste and voile, as well as big orders of nurses' uniforms, soda fountain jackets, etc., I know Lincoln people would be glad to know of such a place in Lincoln. The dresses may be purchased in their salesrooms and the uniforms may be ordered.

Those Permanents

THE graduates are getting at Eula Phenix's beauty shop, 901 Security Mutual building, certainly look like natural wave. She is particular that every finger wave and permanent suits your type. Shampoo and fingerwave, $1; permanents, $5. Phone, B3464.

Champe Says:

"THE appreciative testimony of sixty thousand satisfied customers is your assurance of our knowledge of hair textures; the skill and experience of our operators in permanent waving is your guarantee of a perfect permanent every time. Champe's permanent waves are known far and near for their lasting beauty and, no matter where you go, who does it or what you pay, you cannot get a better permanent than Champe's give you at their year round price of $5." Champe's Beauty Shop, 1229 N street (upstairs). Phone, B2650.

You Rave

AT your bargain when you've found an adorable dress of flat crepe for only $10, but what you'll do when you find dress and coat both for $10 I'll leave you to imagine. I was amazed to find those clever pastel colored flat crepe dresses with woolen coats of same color to match for only $10. Of course it was during my visit to Coltoin's that this discovery was made. I also found bewitching white woolen basket weave coats selling for $12.75, and I thought how clever these would be for those spending their summers in Nebraska or places where the weather is changeable and in the midst of summer you need some added wrap. These last few days of school will see many other beautiful frocks and dresses for the campus from Colton's for they cater to school girl trade.

For evening—white champagne - yellow pastels, true pink, sapphire-blues, navy blues, pale water-green, and of course, black.

Let Me See—

NOW on your vacation you'll want one of those soft pliable sport felts for tennis and golf — then an adorable honeycomb turban for daytime wear; a huge hair flop with lace and flower trim for your sheer and chiffon frocks, probably a colorful fur body felt to match your jersey. Do you know all of these beauties are crushable and you'll need only one hat box to pack them all. But the extremely nice feature is the low price I found on these in Gold's pattern hat section. section. Make your selections during their expansion sale next week.

It's a Silk-Like

MATERIAL and yet resembles jersey in the fit. These clever suits I discovered at Herpolsheimer's selling for only $4.95 and I thought how adorable they weer for sports wear and the many occasions demanding the graduate's time. In one of these suits she can live the whole day and feel sure of being properly attired if she is downtown in the morning, at bridge in the afternoon or at an informal dance at night. Some with striped jackets, or a tweed-like mixture of coloring, and they may be obtained in almost every shade.

Your Summer Flannel

FROCKS may be of any pastel coloring and still be sure of matching it with an inexpensive colorful and white felt hat to correspond. Herpolsheimer's have a fine new shipment of pastel felts from $1.95 to $5. Also included in this fine display are white panama toyos, brimless or with adorable poke shapes. These are $2.95 and $3.95.

HARRIS-GOAR'S is showing a fine big assortment of strap watches. These are of American and Swiss movements, and there are ten different styles for ladies and men, selling for $15, $20 and $25. They are pricing ladies' pen and pencil sets, hand tooled bags and vanity cases very reasonably during graduation season. And remember, you can buy any of these gifts for only 29c down during the anniversary sale. Harris-Goar's, 1330 O street.

Prairie Schooner

IS the name of that clever new book nook in the Security Mutual building, at 122 North Twelfth. Besides a huge stock of brand new books for sale they have in connection with this a circulating library, where one may rent the very newest books published at 3 cents per day. I found such issues as Sinclair Lewis' "Dodgeworth"; Sedgwick's "Dark Hester"; "The Six Mrs. Greens," by Rea, and "This Poor Player," by Watkins, as well as many other new stories. Many mystery thrillers are among these. Then, too, for some discriminating readers are to be found many volumes of non-fiction renting for 5 cents a day.

A census of Fifth avenue retail shops indicates that sprays, single flowers and garlands are receiving about equal attention, each effect depending entirely, as reported by buyers, on the type frock and manner in which it is to be worn. The gardenia is given prominence almost exclusively, for day and evening wear, and reflects the current color vogue in accenting eggeshell and delicate cream tones merging to the suntan shades. The violet is given second choice, also emphasized in white and cream tones vying with the natural purple tones. Field flowers boutonnieres for the street costume are sponsored as well as the orchid arranged in a natural corsage.

Moire and transparent velvet are the favored fabrics, with some panne velvet featured. Colors cover a wide range of high shades. Glowing tones of bleu are emphasized in velvet, while cerise and chartreuse are more frequent in moire. One clinging, transparent velvet cape is shown in a soft burnt orange. A few daytime models of the semi-sports type are shown in white with unlined coats with one exception, when a three-quarter coat is lined with silk. A new and interesting fabric is featured in these costumes. It is loosely woven, though sturdy in texture, and is almost transparent so that unlined coats and dresses have a sher, summery quality without the formality given by sheer crepe. Tie silk is also shown in this type of suit, a blue and white brocaded silk being used for a three-quarter coat while the accompanying one-piece dress is of plain white.

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

Self-Confidence Is Based On Knowledge, But Self-Assurance Is Often a Form of Bluffing — The Bachelor-Observer Gives Advice to Parents.

The Simple Man.

It is often observed that the truly great man is the simple man, the man who does not do things to create an effect, who does not adopt grandiloquent airs, who has taste for the simple, fine things.

Moreover the man whose name stands high in the annals of achievement, is usually not the dazzling, brilliant man, but the man who is thinking all the time and dares to express himself in little, unusual ways.

What goes for the man also goes for the woman.

The successful person is never an echo. He is a thinker on his own account. He has the courage of his convictions. He dares to be original. With his daring backed up with the right kind of self-confidence—not self assurance—he is an individual who possesses initiative and courage to persist.

Many a poseur has daring and self assurance which he attempts to express through conspicuous mannerisms. Self assurance is something else again. It is an unwarranted belief in our own powers. It is the conviction that we can do something as well or better than someone else when we have not prepared ourselves for such supremacy. It leads ot bluffing and attempting to hoodwink the public.

But ours is a pretty discerning public, after all. It can be fooled only for a brief period of time, then it sees through all subterfuge and pretense and goes about its quest for the real, genuine article.

The men who play notably good golf are the ones who can gauge their shots to a nicety. To overreach is as fatal as to underreach. The man who has quiet self confidence because he knows what his own powers are, does not hesitate to start responsible undertakings. He knows what he can do and proceeds to quietly do it. To recognize the main issue and not lose sight of it; to make the will-power serve in strongly sustained effort; to dare to be yourself are the fundamentals.

The Bachelor Advises.

"It takes an old maid to give advice on how to raise children." This is a cynicism often vocalized, referring disdainfully to educators and psychologists who venture to be authorities on child training without having themselves possessed children of their own.

In today's Mail a bachelor asserts himself quite vigorously upon the training of children. And I, for one, affirm his right to have opinions along these lines, even though no child calls him father.

His discussion introduces the problem of whether the rod is a necessary or an advisable adjunct in the training of a child. You may read his letter to gain his viewpoint.

The point I wish to make is that the child himself shows if he is the product of wise training or not.

The child who is hysterical and excitable and rude and sullen is not the well-disciplined child. I can usually detect the child who is handled with the rod at home. When from under his parent's eyes he does naughty things just for the sheer joy of expressing his freedom, not from any enjoyment he gains from the deeds themselves. When his parents are near he is abject and sullen and unnatural or else he dons a defiant, happen-what-may air and resorts to impudence even while he ducks and shivers from the blow that will follow.

The child who is disciplined through reasoning methods is no angel. He is often a lively child who gets in much mischief. But it is the mischief of a different brand, the normal outlet of a fun-loving child. He can be reasoned with and will listen to the advice of an adult.

Take for example a group of boys out ringing door bells. They are motivated by a desire for excitement. At one house, a man comes to the door and says, "boys, there is a sick woman in this house; let's not annoy her." The boys hidden in the bushes respond in a varying manner. One boy says, "Aw, let's tease the old crab; he can't catch us." His only thought is to get all the excitement he can get without being caught at it.

Another boy says "Oh let's go on in the next block; I wouldn't want my mother annoyed if she were sick; it's no fun here."

Which of those two boys do you suppose is the one who gets whipped at home?

Dear Minerva: I suppose I am out of order, as a bachelor, to attempt to advise parents. But I am going to do it just the same. I live with my mother in a neighborhood of children, the spanked and the un-spanked and it is difficult for me to see how a mother can go on whipping her children, in this enlightened age, and not see that she makes little heathens of them.

Sometimes I believe the human race never will understand its own offspring, never.

My idea is that the wise parent makes companions of the children, keeping their confidence even to the extent of overlooking little misdeeds. Thereby they reserve the right to advise and influence these children in the later, important issues. Mass education now days takes care of a not of the training of children, if parents don't spoil the effects at home. Give a child plenty of constructive interests, keep his body healthy and clean, and he will make his own morals and manners in the right manner.

The eminent Dr. Watson believes the child should be taken from its parents at the age of two. I don't believe that, generally speaking. But I do grant that some children are hampered rather than helped by their parents.

Have you spanking parents ever made a critical survey among your friends or neighbors? I trust not. It is the bachelor observers who do that. One one side of me is a sweet tempered, interesting lad. His mother is not a virtuso of the lash. On the other side is a querulous, repressed, unhappy lad whose mother whips him fo r ever offense or fancied offense. It is the whimpering surly lad who is the neighborhood terror—behind his mother's back.

A BACHELOR WHO OBSERVES.

In Verse.

A short time ago someone wrote a letter objecting to the drab person who makes no effort to brighten her personal appearance, nor the corners of the world which are hers.

Another letter friend today answer this appeal in several verses, which carry an undercurrent of both some and nonsense:

Daub on the rouge and powder,
Don colors bright and gay,
Swell out your chest, ye dames subdued,
And prance along life's way.
'Tis sin to be so dark and drab,
'Tis sin to dress so plain:
Curtail your dresses at both ends,
Then shorten them again.

Wear gowns of flaming scarlet,
You know, that's all the rage;
Just dance and flirt and giggle,
And try to hide your age.
Thus doing, none will snub you,
Or leave you in the cold:
You must never act downtrodden,
But should cut a dash that's bold.

Don't go about in tears, old dear,
That makes your nose get red;
Plunge boldly in the social swim,
And always use your head.
Life gives us many wallops,
Sometimes she knocks us down,
But she'll only kick you harder
If you dress in drab or brown.

Be gay and you'll be popular,
There's nothing else that counts:
Who lacks in popularity
To zero just amounts.
So please don't look folorn, old dear,
Don't look so drab and plain;
Add to the joy of nations,
And you'll ne'er get snubbed again.

—ARDENT.

Loves Her Home.

Dear Minerva: I just finished reading the letter from "Louella" and would love to meet her and try being friends, if it could so be arranged, I don't believe you change addresses. But I'm sending you my address to keep on file so if "Louella" care to get acquainted maybe she will write to you again and then my letter can be forwarded.

"Louella" sounds as though she were interested in all kinds of sports and a good time and I don't believe she would be one-half as willing to admit she had made a mistake of marriage, if someone else tried to tell her of that mistake.

Don't be a quitter, Luella. Pep up a bit and get acquainted. Make yourself enjoy your home as well as the shows, parties and such like. Find a hobby to occupy part of your time.

I'm only twenty-two, have been married three years, have a son of whom I'm very proud and a husband I think as much of now as the day we were married. I love to play various games. I swim, go to the movies, to parties and would love to help "Louella" get acquainted and interested once again. I enjoy my home most of all. Just Twenty-two.

Tragedy Of Timidity.

Do you suffer from stage-fright? Some people do all their lives, affecting them even in the ordinary exchange of conversation in everyday life.

A letter from "Mrs. D. F." today implores us to agree with her that it is cruelty to demand that a timid child make public talks in school. Her little girl of twelve comes home from school in a condition that her mother describes as "a nervous wreck" after she has had to recite in school before a roomful of children. Her mother appealed to the teacher to excuse the child from such exhibitions, fearing for her health. The teacher refused, saying she needed to overcome her excessive timidity. And the mother complains of the teacher's cruelty.

My opinion is that the teacher is not cruel, but kindly firm and entirely in the right. I believe it is the mother who is holding the child back from overcoming her fear, through misplaced sympathy.

It is a real tragedy for an adult to suffer from stage-fright. It is possible and even easy for the child to overcome this fear, if handled with courageous firmness. But the struggle for the adult is a much graver one.

Nowadays every man and woman needs to be able to speak before an audience. Issues are met in just that way. It is necessary to be able to speak with calmness and force. The sooner the fear of speaking in public is overcome the better for this child, and for everyone.

The Boy In Love.

Is it possible for a boy of 17 to be in love?

Yes—and no.

A boy signing his name as "Caught" says he is 17 years of age and has been in love with a school girl friend for two years. She deigns to notice him sometimes and keeps him in hot water all the time. She knows her power over him, evidently, for she runs around with all the boys yet demands that he make no dates with any girl but her.

The boy helplessly tries to please her and is happy when she smiles and miserable when she frowns and doesn't quite know what to do about it. He wishes he were older so he could settle the matter by proposing to her and getting a definite answer.

The boy's affair has lasted much longer than that of the average boy. He is probably the bashful type does not make friends easily and so clings desperately to this one girl, whose favors are sometimes given him. It isn't love, just a childish infatuation ,also a demonstration that he is weaker and more susceptible than the girl.

My advice is for him to pretend to ignore the girl and enjoy the companionship of other girls; to force himself to do this; until the pretense will haze become a reality.

What do the readers say?

A Selfish Wooer.

Dear Minerva: I have been reading your Mail and I have been getting advice from it indirectly which has helped me a lot. I have a problem that I've been trying to solve for some time, but I find that I, too, need your advice.

Now I am a girl who, I might say, wishes for nothing. I have a car and I am popular with my sex and the other also, but there is one thing that I really want advice on. I have been going with a young man for two months whom I love very much, and he says he loves me, but during all this time he has never taken me anywhere, not even to a show. I have become engaged to him and have promised to marry him, but I have no ring. He is afraid that he would not be able to get me a ring that he would like me to have. He never takes me anyplace and yet he is jealous when I go with other fellows. He has a strong fascination for me and if he treated me fairly I would love him. But all the time I am unhappy because he acts so queerly with me. He wants to pet me and make a fuss over me and that is all. Please advise me what to do. I hope I haven't bored you.—PUZZLED.

A.—You haven't bored me in the least. I want to advise you to break with this man before you go any farther. I believe penuriousness and selfishness in a man to be faults that are most humiliating and heartbreaking to a girl. I have all the sympathy in the world for a boy who has his own way to make and has to economize. Sometimes girls do not realize the difficulties of such a boy. But this man is evidently selfish and just plain tight. You will never be happy married to him. He will accept everything from you and give nothing in return. He will make you feel like a beggar if you ask even for necessities. When a man is stingy with the girl he is courting, she may be very sure he will be twice as stingy when they are married. The thought comes to my mind that he may have no intention whatever of marrying you, but is using the engagement merely as an excuse to win the caresses which seem to stand for all that you mean to him.

Questions Answered Briefly.

K. K.: I would advise you to go to the public library and ask the reference librarian for a copy of rules on parliamentary order.

Joline: Electricity is the only permanent method I know of, but there are many creams to be procured at drug stores which assist in keeping superflous hair away.

Lillian and Carrie: The couple you ask about have no children. Both of them recently appeared in a stage play and both appear occasionally in movels.

Tiny: One reason why you are not popular with the boys is probably the condition of your complexion, as you stated in your letter. If you do not care enough about your appearance to control your diet and improve your complexion, you are probably careless in other matters of personal attention.

Twilah: A tendency to inherit this disease may exist, but if the individual keeps in excellent health, it does not necessarily follow that he will contract it. He must ever be on the safeguard, however.

L. B. M.:A few girl's names beginning with "R" are: Ruth, Rosita, Roberta, Rose, Rhoda, Rita, Rebecca, Rachael and Ramona.

Picnics Proving Popular

Fraternities Also Hold Farewell Affairs and Plan For Round-up.

Although the bogey of final examinations is just around the corner, university students are making the end of the social season quite lively with house dances and picnics. Most of the fraternity and sorority groups are concentrating on plans for round-up week and the return of alumni.

Phi Kappa Psi will entertain sixty couples at a house dance on Saturday evening. Mrs. L. M. Van De Carr and Mrs. O. C. Morton will chaperone the party. Guests from Omaha at the dance will include, James Cox, Leroy Dust, Dave Noble, and Paul Stauffer. Harold Grosshans, of York and Herbert Meyer of Grand Island are also expected to attend.

A farewell party for the seniors will be given by Sigma Nu on Saturday evening at the chapter house. Spring decorations will be featured and the first floor will be lighted indirectly with hidden lights. Harriet Cruise Kemmer will sing during intermision. Captain and Mrs. H. Y. Lyon and Captain and Mrs. R. G. Lehman will chaperone and fifty couples will attend.

Hold Picnic At Crete.

A picnic for fifty couples was given by Kappa Sigma yesterday at Crete. They left at 4 o'clock and returned after dancing at a hall in Crete. # Farm Tenants Look Forward To Ownership

Socio-Economic Surveys in Nebraska Show Renters Are About Same Kind of Farmers as Owner-Neighbors

Methods of acquiring farm ownership

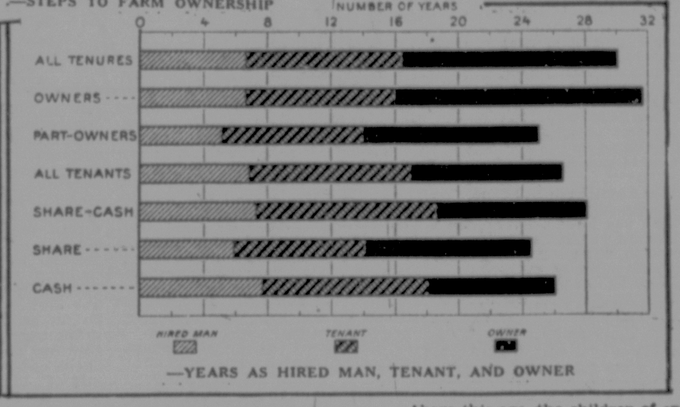

Over forty per cent of all land owning farmers studied were born on farms

—WHERE THE FACTS CAME FROM

Each dot indicates an area in which tenancy and ownership were compared. About 125 farms were usually studied in an area.

The farmer tenancy stage has occurred more frequently than any other except the farm boy stage among the farmers studied.

—YEARS AS HIRED MAN, TENANT, AND OWNER

BY LULU MAE COE.

Nebraska farm tenants usually, although not always, succeed in climbing the farm "ladder," whose most frequent rungs are farm boyhood, hired man on father's or some other farm, marriage to a farm girl, ownership, retirement, and landlord, finds J. O. Rankin, associate professor rural economics, in a compilation of statistics gathered in a study of tenure in the state.

The ladder most frequently climbed to farm ownership in Nebraska has been the farm boy and tenant stages. In contrast to the 29.7 per cent advancing in that fashion, 25.2 per cent climbed from farm boy through paid farm laborer to tenant and owner, 14.8 per cent from farm boy to owner, 5.5 per cent by the farm boy, hired laborer states to ownership, and 4.2 advanced through farm boy, labor elsewhere than the farm, farm laborer, and tenancy, to ownership. Only one-seventh of the Nebraska land owners studied were able to take the short cut to ownership which omits the farm laborer and farm tenant stages and goes directly from farm boy to farm owner.

Ownership and Tenancy.

Tenure is the right by which farm or other land is held, and its most important forms are ownership and tenancy. Owners are divided into owners, part-owners, who own some land and rent additional acres, and managers, who have never operated much more than 1 per cent of Nebraska farms. The mortgaged-owner is classified as a full-owner, and not a part-owner.

Tenants are subdivided into cash, share, and share-cash, the latter being by far the most numerous in Nebraska. The share-cash tenant rents a part of his land for a share, usually of grain, but pays cash for some part, such as the pasture, which cannot be so readily handled upon a share basis.

While popular indictments of tenancy include soil robbing, lack of interest in public improvements and civic affairs, and impermanence, Mr. Rankin finds Nebraska has a remarkably high grade, stable, tenantry.

"It differs remarkably little from the general owner personnel, except that the tenants are eight or ten years younger and move about once every seven or eight years instead of an average of once every fourteen or fifteen years, as in case of owners.

"The tenants have reached an average maturity of about 35 years. About one-third of them are sons, sons-in-law, or other fairly close relatives of their landlords."

Kinsmen Tenants Best.

Mr. Rankin points out that kinsmen tenants, generally born and reared in the community, have as a rule the keenest interest in community matters and in the permanent agriculture of the farms they operate. With a greater expectancy of life and the hope of becoming owners, there is little reason for them to engage in mining agriculture. This tenancy has its drawbacks, the difficulty of getting rid of poor tenant or a poor landlord and of family differences of opinion.

Fully one-third of Nebraska farm tenants are more or less closely related to their landlords, Mr. Rankin found. Forty per cent of the farms are operated by their owner, 13.5 per cent by part owners, and 13 per cent by kinsman tenants, making about two-thirds of Nebraska farms under tenures which should involve no very serious tenure problem, unless it be that of mortgage debt.

In this socio-economic survey of about 1,500 farms and their farm homes, Mr. Rankin noticed that tenants and their wives had just a little advantage over owners and part-owners and their wives in average number of school grades of education completed, doubtless because the tenants were enough younger to have had the benefit of better schools. The children of owners, part-owners, and tenants showed about the same grade of advancement in school year by year up to the age of 15, Mr. Rankin stated. Above this age, the children of owners show distinctly greater educational advancement than those of part-owners or tenants.

Houses Worth Less.

The average tenant's house is worth only a little more than half that of the owner, or about two-thirds as much as that of the part-owner. The house value varies greatly from section to section but averages $1,800-$2,400 among owners, $2,200 among part-owners, and $1,400 among tenants. The tenant's home is about twenty years old instead of fourteen as in the case of part owners, or eighteen, the average years of the owners' homes, and has only six rooms instead of seven.

"These differences in size and age are not enough to account for the difference in value," Mr. Rankin states, "so original construction or state of repair must be important causes of difference in value."

Nearly all the doors and windows of tenants' houses were screened, and practically as many of the back porches and front porches as in the case of either part owners or owners. Less than half as many tenants as owners had indoor sanitary systems, although farm homes of all tenures are low in modern conveniences. There is a gradual increase in these conveniences in farm homes, but no statistics on those in different types of farm homes have been collected. In such matters as location, drainage, pleasing view, garden, windbreaks around the home, the tenants are practically as well off as any one else.

Few Fruit Trees Planted.

The tenants' farms are not as well provided with small fruits and fruit trees, Mr. Rankin found, and he feels this might be remedied, as tenants remain about seven or eight years on the same farm. A tenant might plant small fruit on moving to the farm, and benefit during his stay, Mr. Rankin feels. Only about two-fifths of the owners and part-owners and about a quarter of the tenants have small fruits.

"The landlord might do much to encourage the practice in order to secure better tenants and to keep them longer. Of course, the tenants who stay even ten or fifteen years are usually on year-to-year contracts, and can not really be sure they will remain long enough to benefit even from small fruits of their own planting."

In his survey, Mr. Rankin has found that the homes of tenants are well above minimum health requirements in size, at least, and probably, in other particulars, although he again mentions that there is room for improvement in modern ventilation and sanitation. He found little or no house or ground overcrowding, and apparently no reason for room overcrowding, although it may in some cases result from heating too small a portion of the house in winter. However, he doubts that even seasonal over-crowding occurs.

"Food consumption of Nebraska farm tenants leaves much less to be desired than housing conditions," Mr. Rankin says.

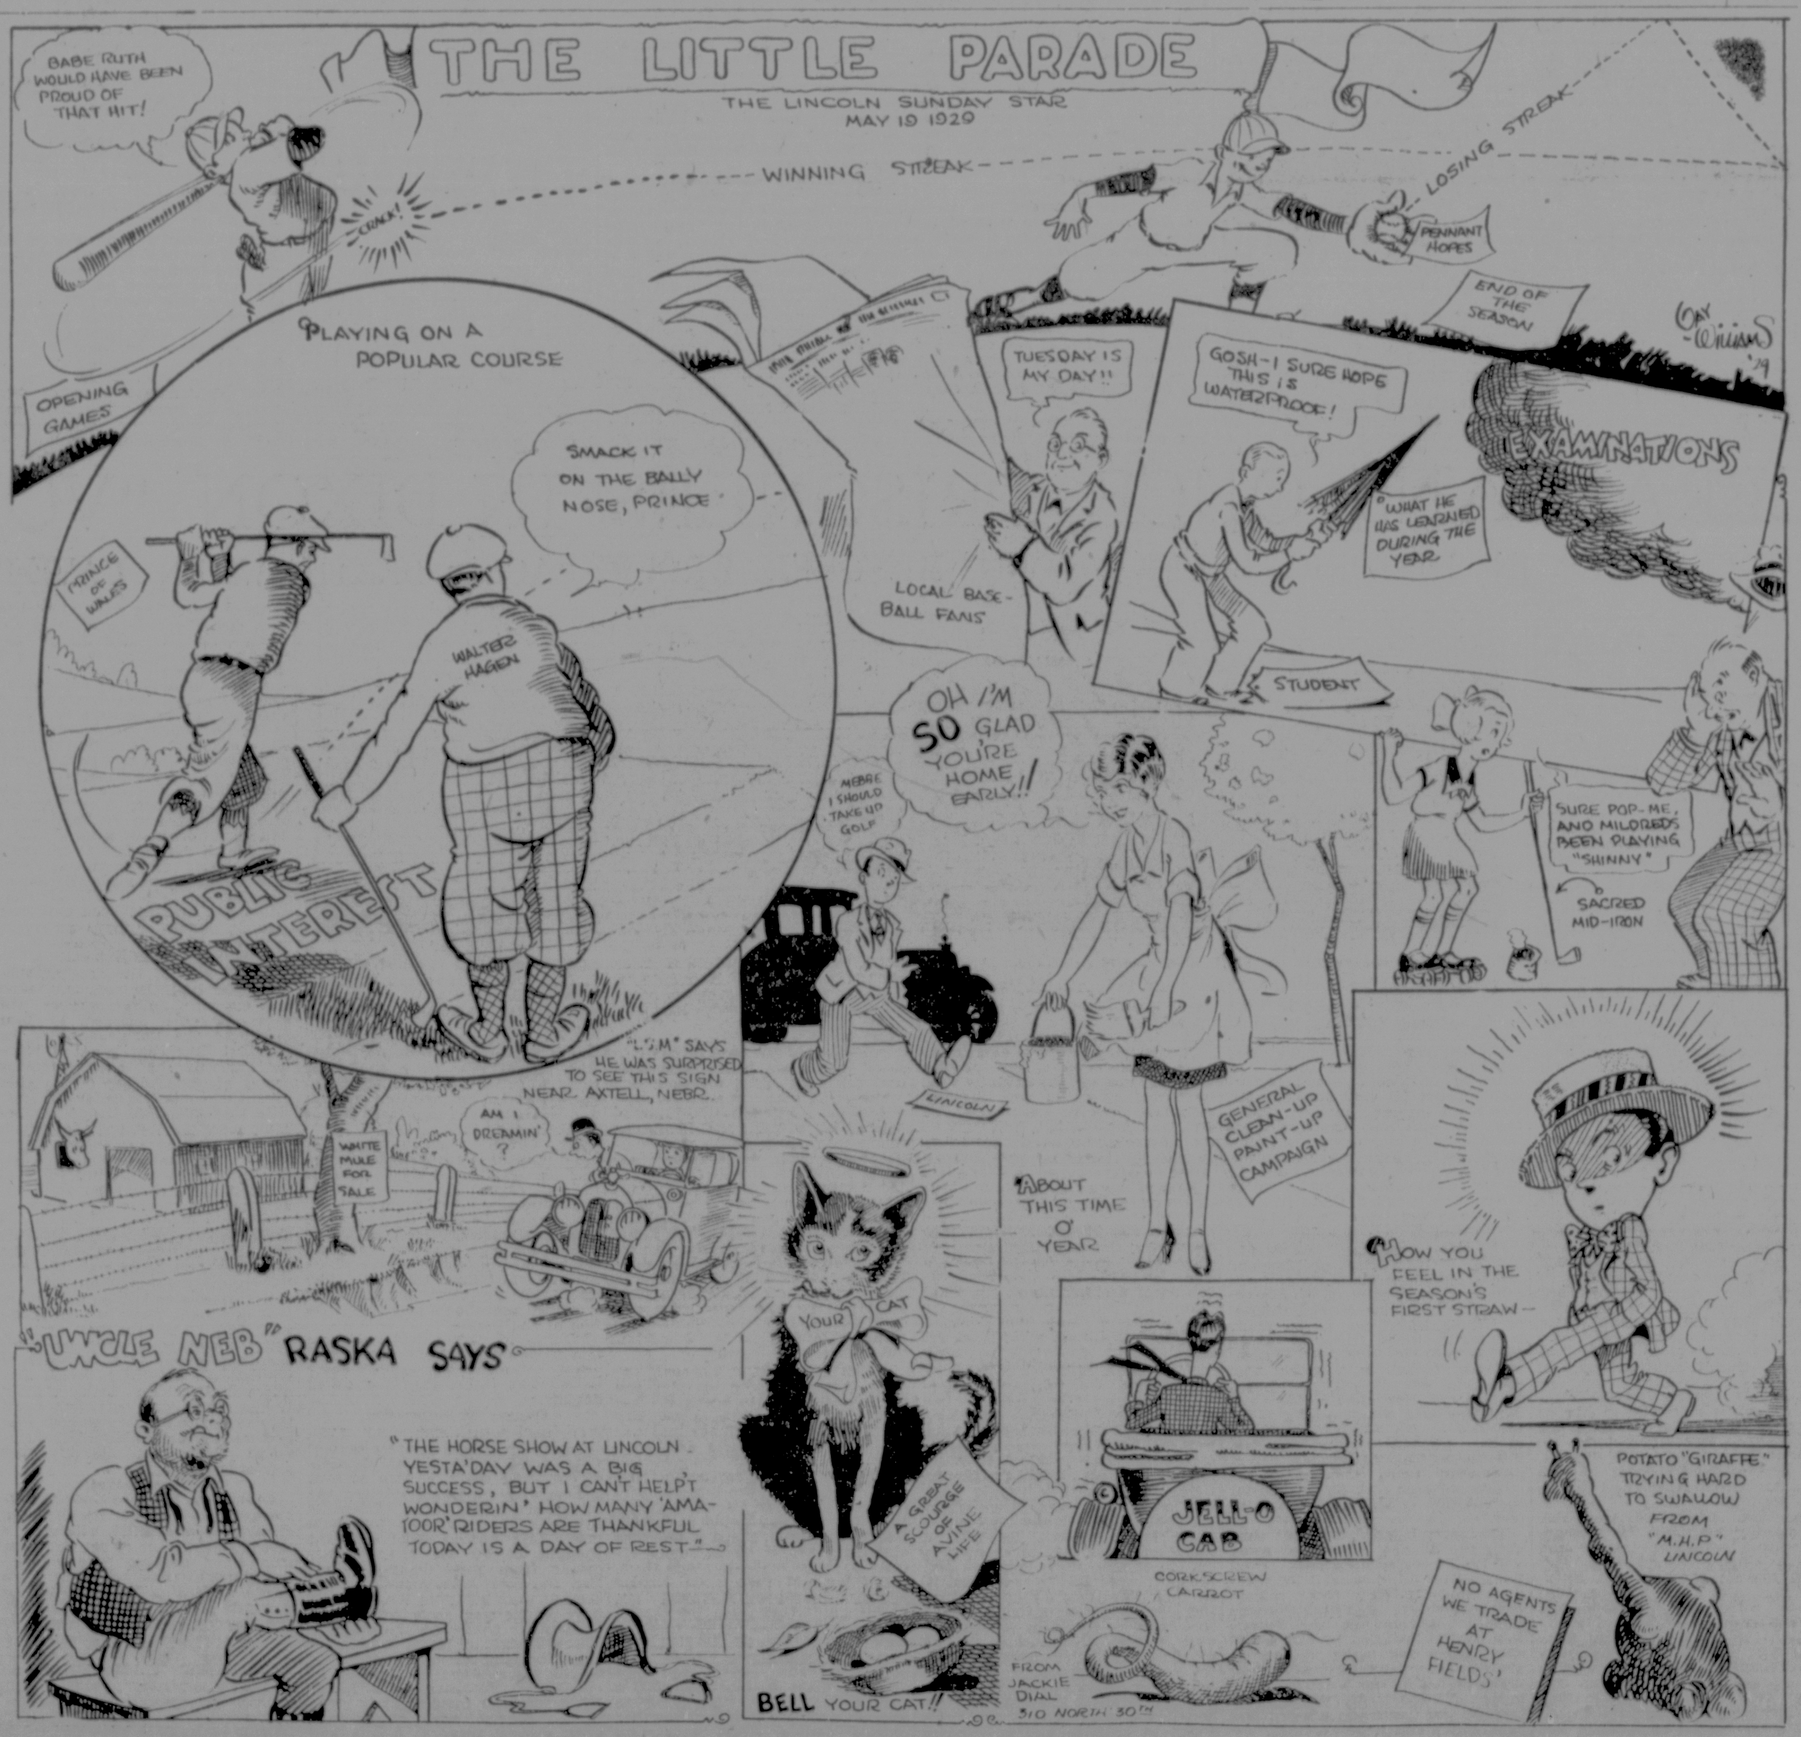

"This is true whether one considers quantity, quality or equality with the neighbors."

Food Home Produced.

Careful tabulations of the budgets of several hundred farm homes showed that they were using more than one and one-quarter tons of food per man per year, man being the generic term including women and children. This consumption is about a quarter of a ton more than the average farm home, and more than twice as much as the city wage-earner's home.

Over two-thirds of the food was home produced, owners, part-owners, and tenants producing 70 per cent, and the hired men about 40 per cent of their food. About two-thirds of this food, in money value, is in the form of ani-

STATE ONCE COMPRISED EIGHT COUNTIES

FEW CAN RECALL NAMES

All But One Took Titles From Democrats.

There is an interesting story in connection with the naming of each of the original counties in the territory of Nebraska despite the fact that few today can even tell the number of counties that there were in the beginning. Some of the facts about the naming of the "original eight"—Burt, Cass, Dodge, Douglas, Forney, Pierce, Richardson and Washington—have been uncovered by N. C. Abbott, superintendent of the state school for the blind at Nebraska City. Below is given in part an address which he prepared on this subject.

N. C. ABBOTT.

Who is not well aware that the United States originally consisted of thirteen states that had, previous to their struggle for independence, been colonies of Great Britain; that these original states have increased under our federal plan, to forty-eight states, with a federal district, Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippines, and some other possessions thrown in for good measure. Not a school boy beyond the sixth grade, who does not know this. Most school children in the intermediate grades can readily name these original thirteen states.

While the foregoing statement is true, it is also likely true that very few can tell both the original number of counties in the territory of Nebraska and how many counties the state now has. And a sixth-grader who might give this information would be looked upon as somewhat of a freak.

The number at the present time is ninety-three and the original number was eight. Seven of these eight bordered on the Missouri river and were named in order, beginning at the north, Burt, Washington, Douglas, Cass, Pierce, Forney and Richardson. Joining Washington on the west was Dodge. Every one of the original eight counties, save Washington, was named for a democratic statesman or politician, of greater or less renown, then living.

Nebraska A Vast Empire.

These sparsely settled counties were only outposts of civilization on the outskirts of a vast empire lying behind to the north and west. Nebraska at the time of territorial organization stretched away northward to Canada and westward to the peak of the Rocky mountains; and included parts, or all, of the present states of Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado. The settlements of whites, save a rare exception, or two, were along the Missouri, or a short distance up the Platte, and mostly at crossing places on the great stream, comprising Decatur, Omaha, Bellevue, Plattsmouth, Nebraska City, Brownville, and possibly one or two others. It was natural that this vast region sloping from the western mountain peaks down to the Missouri should take the name of the stream that drains the whole; for, the Indian name of the stream now called the Platte has been only slightly changed to make Nebraska, a word that carries the conception of shallow and plainland.

Reverting now to the original counties in the proclamation of Acting Governor Thomas B. Cuming, Burt took its name from Francis Burt of South Carolina, the first governor of the territory. He served as governor only two days, though he had been at Bellevue, sick, for two weeks. Practically the only evidence of his ever having reached this region is the survival of his name in this one of our richest agricultural counties. Burt came from a prominent, fiery, slave-holding southern family that believed firmly in the peculiar institution. It is futile, but an interesting speculation as to what his influence might have been, had he lived, on Nebraska. He came, the evidence of personal letters shows, not as a carpet-bagger; but to make Nebraska his permanent home.

Earlier History.

His earlier history is interesting. At 25, he sat in the famous nullification convention of his home state, 1832, and continued to be returned to the state legislature till in 1844, he was elected state treasurer. Retiring from that office he served four years as an editorial writer. He then returned to the state legislature and a constitutional convention. From a place as third auditor of the United States treasury he was appointed by President Franklin Pierce, as governor of the new territory.

An extraordinary tribute was paid to Washington and indicates the hold of the father of his country then as now, in that one county was named after him. Even though those early partisans had chiefly in mind the paying of tribute to their own leaders of the day they stepped aside to perpetuate the name on new soil of him who was first in war; first in peace; and first in the hearts of his countrymen.

Douglas county was named for Stephen A. Douglas, then senator from Illinois, rival of Abraham Lincoln in both love and politics, who loomed big in national affairs at the time and who, through his squatter sovereignty theory, was conniving at the introduction of slavery upon Nebraska soil. The terrific struggle over this question and the shedding of blood was carried on largely within the confines of Kansas on account of its nearer geographical position to the south and on account of the escapade of John Brown. In this state negro slavery was rather an academic question. So far as is known Nebraska City is the only community in the state enjoying the rather questionable distinction of having witnessed a sale of human chattels; and the rather honorable distinction of being a station of the underground railroad.

Cass Long Prominent.

Cass county, in its naming, honored Lewis Cass, United States senator from Michigan, who had been prominent nationally a third of a century, taking an active part in the war of 1812.

There is a fascination in the biography of this Puritan of New Hampshire, who crossed the Alleghaneys afoot; served as legislator in Ohio; investigated Aaron Burr; was an Indian fighter early in last century; captured and held prisoner by the British in the war of 1812; became famous as the great civil and military governor of Michigan.

Twice he served in the cabinet of a president—secretary of war under Jackson; of state under Buchanan. Thrice he was chosen United States senator from Michigan.

In 1844 he and Martin Van Buren were tied up in a long deadlock for the nomination for president, a deadlock broken finally by the nomination of James K. Polk. In 1848, receiving the nomination he was defeated by Zachary Taylor. In 1852 he led the balloting for forty-nine times losing the nomination under the two-thirds rule.

To Nebraskans it is of interest that from Lewis Cass, J. Sterling Morton, one of the outstanding characters of Nebraska, received much of his political inspiration. A large painting of Cass hangs in the district court room at Plattsmouth, given by the protonym himself to Morton; and in turn, passed on to the county bearing the name. It was at the dedication of the Cass county court house, May 23, 1892, that Morton made this memorable gift.

Lost and Picked Up.

Pierce county, honoring Franklin Pierce, the president, joined Cass on the south. Pierce was one of the third or fourth rate men, who have, through a combination of fortuitous circumstances, been catapulted into an executive job much too big for them to handle. It was not due, however, to his lack of strength as an executive that Otoe county discarded his name and took on that of a tribe of Indians who were roaming these hills and valleys at the time of the coming of the pale-face. It was brought about by an unfair apportionment, as the people believed, in delegates to the first territorial legislature by Acting Governor Thomas B. Cuming, who succeeded Burt for a short time. Four years later the discarded name Pierce was accepted by the county which now bears it.

Following the Missouri southward next what was then Pierce county there was Forney, also changed in name at the first legislative session in 1855. It became Nemaha. The actuating motive for the change was essentially the same as in the case of Otoe county. The actuating case of Otoe county. The activities of a great juornalist-politician, comparable with such men as Greeley, Dana, and Bowles, are called to mind. John W. Forney was a power at Lancaster and Philadelphia, in his native state, before he became editor of the organ of the Northern Democracy at Washington, in addition to his duties as clerk of the house of representatives. With the rise of the republican party he left the democracy; became the close intimate friend of Abraham Lincoln; editor of the official republican organ; served as clerk first of the house and later as secretary of the senate while the republicans were in power, returning to Philadelphia to become, under President Grant, collector of the port. In the celebrated campaign of Garfield versus Hancock, Forney returned to the democratic party, passing away in the next year.

Southeastern County.

Richardson, in the southeastern corner of Nebraska, took its name from William A. Richardson, at the time congressman from Quincy, Illinois district, later succeeding Izard as third territorial governor, and serving as chief executive for less than a year. Richardson had reported out of committee a bill in 1852 for organization of Nebraska with essentially the boundaries it now has. Living almost the whole of 1858 in Nebraska he went back to his Illinois home and was

Farm Tenants In Nebraska Look Forward To Ownership

mal products, one-fifth in groceries and the remainder quite evenly divided between fruits and vegetables. In clothing, there was little difference apparently attributable to tenure.

In participation in community enterprises, the Nebraska farm tenant is not markedly deficient, whatever may be true of tenants elsewhere, and in some particulars is more active than the owners, probably because he and his household are younger by about ten years. The tenant lives practically as close to town as the owner, on the average, and practically as close to school, church, and other community facilities.

Activities About Same.

Tenants are apparently only slightly below owners in church, farmers organization, and lodge memberships, and church attendance, but distinctly above them in Sunday school attendance. Both are below part-owners in all these particulars except lodge members. Tenants' wives stand out a little above owners' wives in church and Sunday school attendance, but a little below them in membership in church, lodge, and women's societies. The tenants' children stand a little above those of owners in church membership and Sunday school attendance, and distinctly above them in church attendance, Mr. Rankin states.

Tenants attend about as many picnics, fairs, games, parties and celebrations as the man who has the title to his land. They also go to more movies than the owner, almost as many as the part-owner.

According to Mr. Rankin, the tenant and part-owner have about an hour longer working day than the full-owner, especially in summer. The average Nebraska farm work day is a little over eleven hours—a little less than ten in winter, and thirteen in summer, regardless of Sundays, rainy days, slack days, which are not work days.

Tenancy did not appear to affect the wife's indoor work as much as that of her husband, but there is a fairly distinct tendency for the tenant's wife to do more of her own baking, washing, ironing, sewing, both under and outer garments for herself, children, and husband. Nearly all the women care for chickens and gardens, about one-quarter care for livestock, about two-fifths milk, but only about one-sixth work in the fields.

Take Fewer Papers.

Tenants subscribe for a smaller number of farm papers, daily, and weekly newspapers, and general family magazines. However, large numbers of them take women's magazines and children's periodicals, the latter exceeding those of the owners, possibly because so much larger proportion of the owners' children have passed beyond the children's periodical stage.

Mr. Rankin found that tenants farm larger acreages than owners and hire more men to help, but employ less household help. A larger percentage of this land is under the plow, but the improvements are a distinctly smaller percentage of the total value of the tenants' farm and equipment than in case of the farm operated by its owner.

"The tenant is operating a larger acreage with less livestock, machinery, and funds on hand as well as a poorer house and barn. The difference in livestock is in cattle, hogs, and poultry, rather than in horses. In fact, the tenants' greater acreage under the plow results in his having more horses per farm than the man who operates his own farm.

"The tenant's farm stands less than 10 per cent below the owner-operated farm in value per acre, in spite of its poorer buildings. Tenants have only about half as great an investment in cattle and hogs per hundred acres farmed as owners, but about one and one-half times as great investment in horses and mules. This is in terms of value per hundred acres of total acreage in farms. Tenants have, however, about the same investment in implements per hundred acres of tilled land as have owners.

Almost half of the farms of the United States and two-thirds of those in Nebraska are more or less completely under the landlord's control, if part-owner farms as well as tenant farms are included.

Outlook Is Uplook.

The tenants' outlook is generally assumed to be an uplook, Mr. Rankin states. That is, he looks forward and upward to being a mortgaged-owner and possibly a debt-free owner, and in the course of time to retirement as a landlord with one or more sons, sons-in-law, or others as his tenants, and common observation brings out that this is generally the case.

A study of the family history of nearly 600 tenants has showed Mr. Rankin that nine out of ten of them were farmers' sons and that eight out of nine of these farmer fathers were owners at the time of dath or retirement, but that some of them were tenants.

"This at least fainly suggests, although does not very definitely prove," Mr. Rankin states, "the presence of a permanent tenant class.

"On the other hand, twelve or fifteen per cent of these tenants already owned land, obtained mainly by purchase, but in a few cases by inheritance, gifts, or marriage, and n three cases by homesteading."

About two tenants out of every three expect to become home owners, and less than one-sixth of all tenants studied already owned land.

FOUR NEBRASKANS ONCE PRISONERS IN DIXON "VOLCANO"

WHILE EXPLORING CREVICES IN HISTORIC BLUFF ALONG MISSOURI, GROUP FACED DEATH WHEN CAVE-IN CLOSED EXIT

BY HARRY L. PETERSON AND WILLIAM HUSE.

The celebrated Dixon county "volcano," or more properly what is left of it, rears its crest on the bluffs bordering the Missouri river twelve miles northwest of the town of Ponca.

Feted in Indian legend and paleface yarn the famous promontory is not as prominent today as it was many years ago. In 1878 the rapacious current of the Big Muddy cut to the base of the bluff and undermined the great mound and swept the greater portion of it away. Now the Missouri has withdrawn and changed its course so much that it flows more than a mile from the great mound, as if shrinking from the once smoking monster.

The glory of the volcano is gone, it passed with the cataclysmic avalanche caused by the mighty river. But story and Indian legend remain perpetuating on printed pages that which is lost in physical topography.

But this story is not to be an eulogy to the old volcano, but rather is one of the many tales connected with the historic bluff that was first seen by Lewis and Clark in 1804.

Explorers Hunting Gas.

Four men set out from Ponca in the fall of 1877 to explore the bluffs along the Missouri river north of the town for the avowed purpose of finding a paying vein of coal.

Their quest was not based on supposition, because for nearly twenty years before discoveries of coal had been made along the base of the bluffs and during the succeeding years no less than ten different shafts were worked, though for the most part with discouraging results. But these particular men had allowed no stories of failure to discourage them. They were E. N. Vance, C. G. Andrews, M. S. Brown and J. B. Green, liveryman for the party.

These men had determined to make a thorough investigation of the bluffs near the volcano and possibly of the volcano itself. Setting out by team and buggy from Ponca early in the morning they reached Ionia, a frontier town on the river bottom a short distance east of the mound, before noon. There they left their rig and taking their instruments, such as compass, chain, and diamond-point drill, they struck out for the scene of their investigation.

Sow Veins of Coal.

They spent the day in scrambling about the volcano noting its varied phenomena; the little funnels which emitted murky clouds of smoke, the jets of vapor that arose at intervals, the low rumblings which could be heard at times, its location and proximity to the river and its numerous bluish, red and yellow geological formations. Towards evening as they were wandering back along the bluffs they took particular notice of the formation of the rocks and the many curious petrifications. They had found a number of evidences of coal and at the base of the bluffs they saw the eighteen inch vein which extended the length of the bluffs and had been the cause for the earlier diggings. As night came on they rested for a short time at the foot of a rocky eminence.

Suddenly to their amazement they heard faint musical sounds, which continued for a long time, died away and then commenced again. It seemed unearthly yet it was actually music that they heard. From whence it came they had not the slightest idea but it seemed to issue from a crevice at the base of the rock. This astonishing thing was worthy of immediate investigation. The crevice in question was near at hand and taking their picks two of the party began digging to discover if possible the cause of this unheard of mystery.

The fissure from which the sounds came, seemed to be an irregular fracture in the rocks mostly perpendicular and about eight inches in width. A few blows from the pick upon the soft rock enlarged the crevice considerably and it was seen that the opening widened as it extended into the bluff.

Passageway Widens.

They took turns digging and made good progress. As they went forward they found themselves in a ragged and rapidly widening seam, the direction of which from the entrance was southeasterly, and was simply one of the innumerable network of fissures which intersect the bluffs especially in the vicinity of the volcano. Soon the men had to light their lamps to light their way into the interior. The passage had widened to such an extent that they had to do little digging.

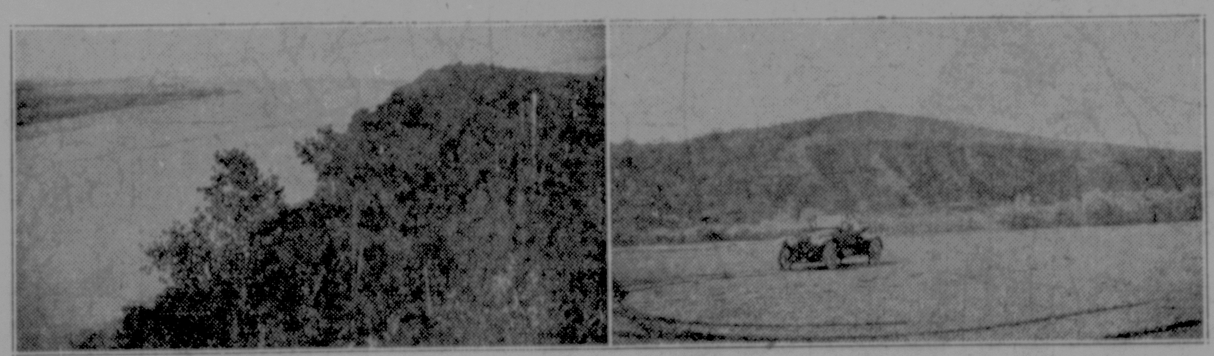

They had progressed something like seventy feet when the passageway abruptly became smaller and it was with difficulty that they could squeeze through. At intervals they heard the same musical sounds which had startled and puzzled them at the beginning.

When they had gone about forty yards they found the fissure intersected nearly at right angles by a still narrower crevice. From this break in the rock the musical sounds which had started them on their quest seemed to emanate and could be heard with much greater distinctness. So clear were the tones of different musical instruments could be distinguished. Mr. Green on listening intently stated that the different melodies were those usually played by the Ponca band. Yet, they reasoned, that could not be possible on account of the great distance of 12 miles. Green also recalled that this was the band's usual practice night.

Explains Phenomenon.

"If such is the case," stated Mr. Vance, "this musical phenomenon can be explained. As in all volcanic countries this region is permeated by an infinite number of fissures or breaks which act as so many pneumatic tubes, through which sounds may be conveyed a great distance. It had been shown that even low sounds may be heard miles away. Now then if the band is playing near some opening as for instance a well which has subterranean passages leading out and intersecting this natural system of pneumatic tubes underlying the county we need seek no further for the solution of this apparent mystery."

The party listened for some time until the distant music died away and finally ceased altogether. Even though they could account for them the sounds in their rocky retreat were strange and interesting. Vance's explanation regarding the sounds were further verified by the sound of a distant bell, which was recognized by Green as the Ponca curfew, evidently ringing for 9 o'clock. The tones of the bell reverberated through the fissures in a weird and unearthly manner.

On the left is a view of the bluffs along the Missouri river a mile or so below the old Ionia volcano. These bluffs have yielded iron pyrites, quartz, mica, sulphur, and coal, and layer upon layer of sea shells can be found along and extending into the bluffs. A view of the volcano is shown on the right. The Missouri cut into the bluff, as seen in the picture, and left the face steep and rocky. The bar in the foreground shows that the river has retreated. It was at the base of the bluff that the four men found the fissure leading into the interior.

The men went on intending to explore to the end of the passage which seemed not far away. As the traveled they noted the different rock and mineral formations and occasionally perceived, thin veins of coal, from six to ten inches thick. In one spot they saw a vast accumulation of copperas, at another place a kind of yellow clay which Vance said would make a valuable mineral paint if properly mixed with oil. And perhaps still more wonderful they found lavers and formations of shells, thus proving beyond all doubt that the bluffs had once been the bottom of a great inland sea. Thus examining their discoveries the party advanced slowly until they had pentrated the bluff more than 200 feet.

Rock Blocked Fissure.

Gradually the passageway narrowed so that the explorers had great difficulty in forcing their way. Yet through sheer curiosity they kept on. Then they came to a large rock which had fallen from overhead and almost blocked the fissure. Here is where they should have turned back but beyond the rock by the light of their lamps they saw a much larger cavern. So with a couple of picks they broke away a portion of the intervening rock and presently were able to crawl past it. In their eagerness to get forward they did not notice as they loosened the boulder that the supporting walls trembled and not until too late did they notice their danger. With the rock, or keystone as it might have been called because of its position, broken so it no longer supported the great weight the walls began to crumble and only hasty scrambling on the part of the men saved them from being crushed as the rock walls caved together.

One could hardly imagine a more unfortunate situation than that in which the adventurous gentlemen found themselves. With their outlet to the outer world closed they were buried, it appeared, beneath 150 feet of rock. The new passage which now appeared to be a fatal prison was a little wider than the one they had traversed but it did not appear to be very long.

All realized that something must be done at once if they were to escape from their rocky tomb alive. They had no food with them and even now one of their lamps was going out and the other would last but a short time longer.

Unable To Break Through.

Mr. Andrews seized his pick and wildly endeavored to break his way through. A dozen blows showed how utterly foolish and unavailing was the attempt. It seemed as though they were effectually trapped and it was with deepest foreboding that they contemplated the dungeon surrounding them. Mr. Green suggested that they probably would be missed, searched for, their place of entrance discovered and if so strenuous efforts would be made to reach them.

But hope of such good fortune was soon dashed to the ground. Mr. Vance stated that from his examination of the slope of the rocks as they passed through, he felt sure that the passageway must have closed its entire length and that even the outer opening was only a narrow seam now. Hence there was not a chance in a hundred that outside parties would ever find traces of their whereabouts. That they would ever reach the outer world alive he said would depend to a great extent on their own courage and initiative and to a large extent on their good luck.

Mr. Green, whose presence of mind under the awful circumstances was remarkable, set about examining the cavern for another outlet. The others saw the wisdom of his action and followed suit. At the fartherest extremity Green struck the slate wall with his pick and was amazed at the hollow sound which issued from behind the wall. Two more vigorous blows and the wall crumbled revealing a long continuation of the fissure.

"Going in deeper does not seem like it would lead out," Vance said grimly, "but we will explore every passageway rather than give up in despair."

Danger of Suffocation.

On they went. The rough walls, veined with irregular layers of coal slate stone and occasional deposits of clay and shells, as rich as ever geologically, no longer received the attention of Mr. Vance. Scientific things held no interest for them now. Life was at stake, and the thought of all was on a speedy escape from their dreadful tomb. Had the rock walls enclosing them been of pure gold they would gladly have exchanged them for a safe deliverance from their situation.

The thought of being buried alive is a horrifying one and the anxieties of the adventurers can readily be imagined. Yet each by a heroic effort stoutly maintained a bold front. Slowly and despairingly they moved forward, a hunderd yards or more. The walls which had been nearly parallel contracted abruptly and soon the fissure became so narrow that they dragged themselves along with difficulty, and were in danger of suffocation. The imprisoned men were about to abandon further exertion and yield to the fate which seemed inevitable when suddenly the walls expanded into a wide and magnificent cavern. The roof was lofty and from it descending to the floor were seen immense stalactites whose covering of quartz blazed in the light of the lamp like mirrors of silver.

It was a grand sight, one which under other circumstances would have delighted the eye of the geologist. But in their unfortunate condition the brilliant splendors were scarcely noticed and the adventurers pressed wearily forward.

Approached Volcano.

At the end of the dazzling subterranean hall the members found and entered another crevice the course of which seemed to bear nearly to the northeast. Now for the first time they heard at regular intervals the low, throbbing sound of the volcano which they concluded could not be far off.

As they advanced the sounds became more distinct and the noxious fumes of sulphurous vapor, at first hardly discernable, soon by their growing intensity, warned them of the riapproach toward the abyss underlying the volcanic field. Ere long, far in the distance through the dense vapors they caught glimpses of a chaos of flame and smoke. The heat now had become intense and the suffocating fumes on top of it utterly precluded further advance in that direction. There was no alternative but to retrace their way.

Yet where could they go. Were they imprisoned in a labyrinth of interminable lengths in which they might wander for weeks without finding their way out? How could they expect to keep on wtihout food and water? Should they kill themselves rather than die of slow starvation?

Discovered Water.

As the men revolved these desperate questions in their minds Green discovered in a little hollow of a rock a quantity of water. Suffering from thirst as they were the discovery was extremely welcome. Then Vance noticed to the right of the pool and running northerly a narrow opening whose sides and bottom had evidently been smoothed by action of water. On his suggestion the party changed its course into the new passage, which in contrast to the irregular fissures they had previously followed presented an easy pathway to their feet.

During their advance they came to additional pools of water and they finally became so numerous gradually became deeper. All this time their course had been away volcano and the coolness of the water added much to their strength and their courage and spirits rose. that they formed a channel which from the fire and sulphur of the Deeper and deeper the channel became until it seemed that their retreat in this direction was to be cut off also. Despair settled over the little group once more, all except Mr. Vance. He for the first time since their incarceration seemed encouraged and very hopeful.

"It is my opinion," he said, "that channel leading from the Missouri we have struck the subterranean river to the volcanic fires. Through this channel when the river is high water finds its way to the abyss of fire and sulphur and then other conditions being favorable an eruption of the volcano results. The surface of the water shows us the height of the river. So unless I am very greatly mistaken we have a good chance of escaping from this dungeon. When we can walk no further we will swim. It is our only hope."

Forced to Swim.

Vance then took the lead into the fast deepening channel. Soon the water rose to their shoulders and they began swimming for their lives. The lamp went out and they were left in impenetrable darkness.

To make matters worse they discovered that the roof of the cavern gradually sloped downward as they proceeded and now was within a short distance of the surface of the water and must soon sink beneath it.

This threatening danger added a new horror to their fearful predicament, and climaxed the despair which seemed the natural culmination of the night's disastrous experiences.

Then a shout from Mr. Vance called their attention to what appeared to be a faint point of light far in front of them. As they swam toward it they became aware that the roof of the passage was descending more and more, until between it and the surface of the water scarcely a hand's breath intervened. But the light now gleamed brightly like a star of hope. A few minutes more and they emerged from their water prison which opened into the river.

As they climbed out on the bank they saw the sun coming up and realized that they had been wandering all night in the subterranean solitudes, but they hardly gave it a thought so joyful were they for their deliverance.

PLAN STATUE RED CLOUD AT PIONEERS PARK

HONOR FOR CHIEF IS ASKED

Monument Would Be Fit Companion To Buffalo.

BY FRED FASSETT.

A life size statue of a buffalo in bronze, the gift of John F. Harris and Mrs. Harris of New York and Palm Beach, to the city, will grace a prominent knoll inside the eastern entrance to Pioneers park. As a companion piece a life size figure of old Chief Red Cloud, one of the most noted ndians known to the middlewest, may be placed on another sightly point.

Mr. Harris has already provided for the figure of the buffalo, he having commissioned a noted French sculptor to design the model. This has been done and the sculptor's own pen sketch of the animal has been received in Lincoln by George Woods, a lifelong friend of the donor. A letter accompanying the sketch says that a small model will soon be sent to Mr. Harris, "and the completed model from which the statue will be made," will follow later, the designer said in his letter to the donor. He added that after the arrival of the model about three months will be required to complete the molding.

The dimensions of the figure and the pedestal on which it will be mounted were given by the sculptor in the metric system. Reduced into the American standard of measurement they show the figure itself will be 5½ feet high at the shoulders. It will be 9 feet long from the end of the nose to the tip of the tail and stands 8½ feet above the groundd, including the pedestal, which is 4 feet wide and 9 feet in length.

In his letter to Mr. Woods, Mr. Harris asked his friend to receive bids on the pedestal and send him the figures. As he did not specify the material prices will be asked on granite, that having been designated by the sculptor as the best kind of stone.

The knoll on which the figure is to stand is not more than 300 feet inside the east entrance to the park. From it a beautiful perspective of the city is had. On the one hand is the business district, flanked on the right by the massive tower of the new capitol. Here and there sections of the residential districts are glimpsed through the dense foliage of the trees. In the foreground the state hospital looms above the crest of a long line of trees tracing the course of Haines branch, a creek which flows through the southern environs of the park.

Leading to the statue from the northeast and southeast are two lanes. They are lined with Moline elms at the foot of which lilacs have been planted, a different color for each lane.

On the brow of the knoll is a circular drive, inside of which will be the buffalo surrounded by a few, a very few flowers, all native Nebraska varieties. Branching to the northwest and southwest from the circle are two other lanes. Like the others these are lined with elms and lilacs, the latter of a still different color for each.

The lane to the southwest drops down off the brow of the knoll and eventually finds its way to the children's playground over a long winding trail. That to the northwest also finds its way to the playground, but not before it has meandered up hill and down dale and over some of the most gorgeous scenic sections of the park. It is long and winding, and twists hither and yon in gracefully sweeping curves which bring one back almost to the buffalo which comes into plain view. From here also can be seen a small dam, a part of the southwest drive that forms a little lake nestling at the foot of the hill.

This northwest drive tops a ridge that might with justice be called the second elevation of the park. It is not as high as two other places on the extreme west side, out is considerably above the level of the knoll on which the buffalo will be. From this ridge another view of the city is had along with vistas of the park never thought of until seen from here.

On the ridge there is one spot that seems to be higher than any of the others. It is this place that has been chosen tentatively as the site for the statue of Red Cloud. Those cherishing the hope that the figure will materialize some day believe that it should be faced to the east. The hand and arm would be raised above the level of the head, and extended toward the rising sun as though in benediction and approval of the uses to which this virgin tract is to be converted, for it is the intent to make the park an all time "happy hunting ground" for Boy Scouts.

On the hills and in the valleys, by the lakesides, and beside the outcroppings of glacial formations, the boys will be taught Indian lore, and pioneer history. They also will be told of the glaciers which, in the years long gone, pushed their noses almost to the Blue river.

Suggestion that a statue of Red Cloud grace the park came first from W. A. Luke, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. Since then others of the association have taken to the idea, and members of Charles A. Fraley post of the V. F. W., have taken it up, as have several prominent individuals, and officials of the scouts. They probably are more enthusiastic over the proposal than any other.

If a bronze statue cannot be had, the promoters will be satisfied with stone or some other material. A statue of a Black Hawk Indian in cement has been built in Illinois and is said to be entirely satisfactory to those who sponsored it, both from the point of solidity and beauty.

As it is believed the buffalo will have a remarkable influence in teaching the lore of the pioneer in whose honor the park was given to Lincoln, so it is believed a statue to Chief Red Cloud will "perpetuate the memory of an Indian whose influence was a factor in framing the history of Nebraska and the central west. More so, perhaps, than any other red man this section has known."

Chief Red Cloud was called "the white Indian." He was a master diplomat and a friend of the whites. "The Lord made me an Indian, but not a reservation Indian," he is quoted as saying. When he found he could not retain to his people his beloved Republican valley, he yielded and withdrew to the Platte. Did he go on the warpath? Not he. Instead, he negotiated a treaty between his tribes and the government, and so far as he is concerned, it was never broken.

With the changing times and the onward press of civilization, Red Cloud and his people finally went onto the Pine Ridge reservation. Here he ended his days, loved and respected by every white man who knew him.

For a time Red Cloud lived near Chadron. At that time W. A. Luke was a boy but knew the chief, and on more than one occasion posed with him for photographs. A. E. Sheldon, another Lincoln man, also knew the chief, and has many photos of him in the state historical society collection. These were taken by Mr. Sheldon.

In his later years Chief Red Cloud became well known to many of the earlier settlers and in the cities as well. He had a wide acquaintance in Omaha, where he often went. On one occasion he and Sitting Bull, Sioux chief, Spotted Tail and an interpreter had their photos taken in a group. The original negative is now in the possession of the state historical society.

Plans for the erection of a monument to Chief Red Cloud are still in the formative stage. Those who are interested in it, however, are of the opinion that once they broach the matter to the people of the city they will have no trouble raising the funds to complete the work.

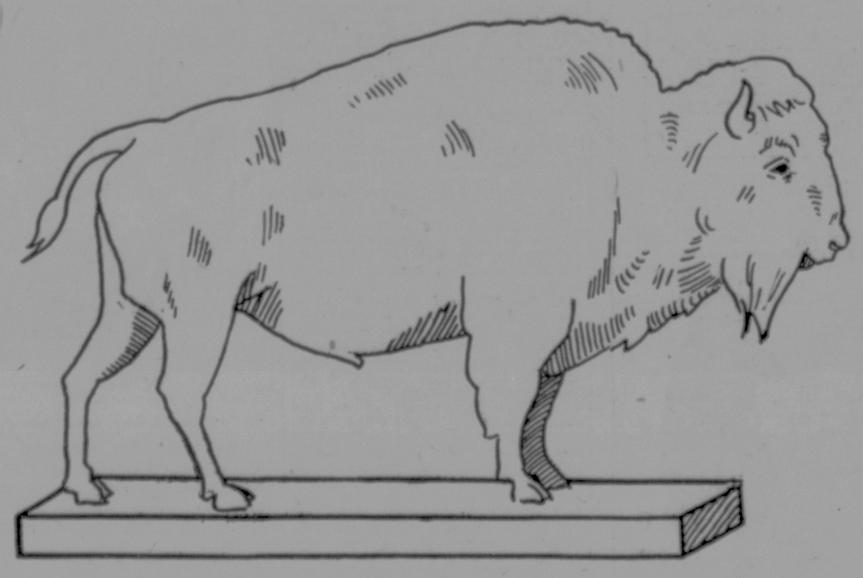

There is no doubt about the attitude of the present management of the city's park department, toward the project. Commissioner Bair is enthusiastic at the prospect.

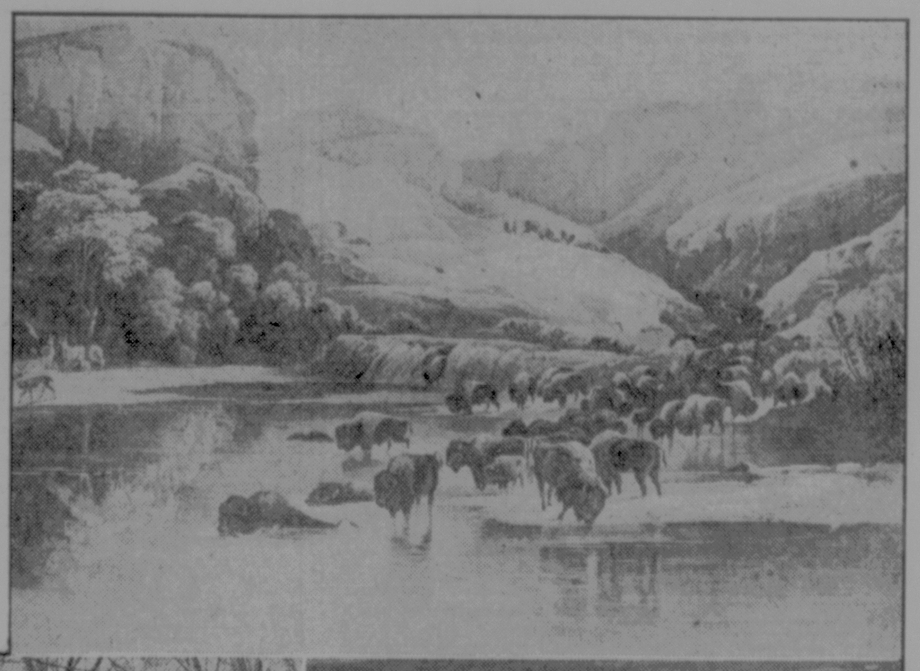

"I can conceive of nothing that would be more fitting as a companion piece to the Buffalo that Mr. Harris will give the park than a memorial to an Indian. And no Indian seems to be more deserving of the honor than Chief Red Cloud," he says.

"It is fitting that his statue should grace Pioneer park because Red Cloud, if I remember my history correctly, was one with the pioneers of the state, and was their friend. His was the friendship that many times saved bloodshed.

"That a statue should be erected to Red Cloud as a companion piece to the buffalo is still more fitting. None loved to hunt more than he, but his was not the desire of hunting just for the mere pleasure of slaughter. It was for meat that he killed, and the hides made robes than which there were none better."

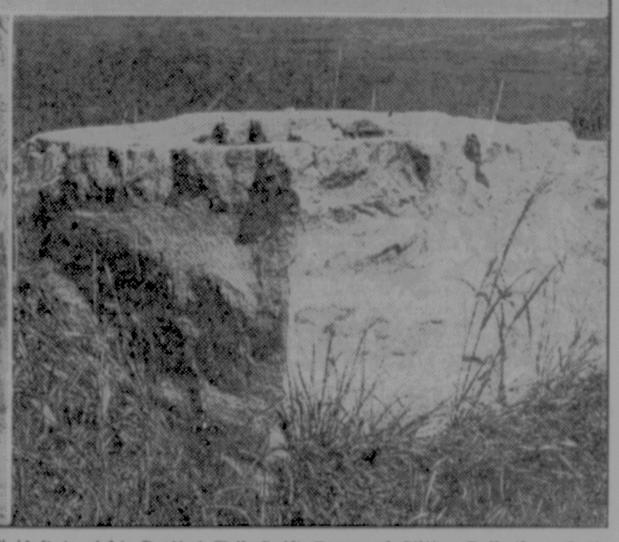

Mr. Bair added the opinion that if the statue could be erected by popular subscription it would be an expression of appreciation for a man among men, be he Indian or white man.

The buffalo and Indian are closely associated wit hthe history fo Pioneers park, and as a tribute to the pioneers of the state, John F. Harris, who gave the park to the city, will present a bronze statue of a bison to the park department for use in the grounds.

Now there is talk of building a statue honoring Chief Red Cloud, an Indian born in Nebraska, and whose name is forever indelibly stamped upon its records.

At the right is a glacier rock, many of which are found in Pioneers park, outcroppings of glacial formations being found in several places. It is used by the courtesy of the conservation and soil survey department of the University of Nebraska.

Preparations Are Underway For Opening Of Ninth Season At Camp Kiwanis On Blue River Near Milford

Camp Kiwanis at Milford opens for its tenth annual season, June 9. It is located on the Blue river, eighteen miles from Lincoln and one mile from Milford, and is under the auspices of the Lincoln community chest and the management of the Camp Fire Girls' council, supervised by Miss Ethel May Woods, camp director. All girls are welcome at Kiwanis, and may register for one or more periods at the Camp Fire office, 307 Sharp building.

The counsellors for the coming season include: (1) Miss Ethel Mae Woods, Camp Fire executive and camp director; (2) Mrs. M. C. Burgess, camp matron; (3) Gertrude Holland, assistant swimming and camp craft counsellor; (4) Norma Lewis, archery and tennis; (5) Foster Matchett, life guard and swimming instructor; (6) Dorothy Swartz, nature, counsellor; (7) Madonna Brady, assistant in handcraft; (8) Martha Whitford, Falls City, music and dramatics; (9) Berniece Hoffman, counsellor at Magic Hill; (10) Marie Snavely, counsellor at Magic Hill and assistant in swimming; (11) Josephine Orr, head swimming counsellor; (12) Ruth Fulk, business manager; (13) Dorothy Weaver, director of dramatics; (14) Georgania Bocker, assistant swimming counsellor; (15) Lucile Ackerman, camp craft counsellor. Ruth George, the nurse, is not shown. The upper picture is an air-plane view of Camp Kiwanis.

Camp activities include handcraft, nature study, campcraft, horseback riding, archery, tennis, swimming, dramatics and music. The program is in full accord with the character building program endorsed by the Lincoln council of social agencies and the community chest, and is intended to build clean minds and bodies by utilizing the summer vacation time of Lincoln girls under the direction of trained leaders.

The Kiwanis club has made it possible for the water program to occupy an important part in camp activities, by constructing an excellent cement pool last year with an adequate filtration system and regular fresh water supply.

Regular visiting days for parents and others interested in the work will be Thursday and Sunday, with a special program each Thursday evening during the 1929 camping season, which embraces ten periods, closing late in August.

ORIGINALLY EIGHT COUNTIES IN STATE

promptly returned to congress from his old district. He later resigned his seat in the national house of representatives to fill out the unexpired term of his friend and political mentor, Stephen A. Douglas, in the federal senate.

Augustus Caesar Dodge, for whom Dodge county was named, had the unique distinction of serving in the United States house of representatives as delegate from Iowa at the same time as his father, Henry, who represented with similar rank the adjoining territory of Wisconsin. Later, after admission of these territories to statehood, they again served together in the United States senate. Augustus was the first to serve as delegate; but his father was chosen first as senator. The father served nine years in the upper branch of congress, the son, seven.

Jessie Benton and Augustus.

On account of the names of this county and its capital this little incident may have additional interest. After Thomas Hart Benton had presented the credentials of Augustus to the senate, Jessie Benton Fremont, in her winsome manner, said, in congratulating the newly made solon:

"General, I am sure you will be the best-behaved man in the senate, on the ground that a dutiful son will be exceedingly decorous in the immediate presence of his father."

On the bill for the admission of Kansas and Nebraska, Henry voted against the proposition, though Augustus was sponsoring it, under the leadership of Douglas. There was explosive oratory, perhaps more fiery than ever again to be heard in congress. Though Augustus championed the bill, with squatter rights sovereignty attached yet he was no doughface. When Senator A. G. Brown, of Mississippi, sneered at manual work done by white hands, the senior senator from Iowa responded:

"Sir, I tell the senator from Mississippi—I speak it on the floor of the United States senate, in presence of my father, who will attest its truth—that I have performed and do perform when at home all of these menial services to which that senator referred in terms so grating to my feelings."

FRYING THE FAT.

Another week has passed during which it has not been apparent that the central west has made any progress toward a revision of the tariff to afford adequate protection for basic farm products.

The most glaring example of injustice is found in the failure to raise the duty on livestock. The tariff on cattle on the hoof was left at the same figure it was fixed in the present law. No one needs to be told that owing to the scarcity of beef in America, and the subsequent high prices, the present duty is insufficient to shut out thousands of head of Canadian and Mexican cattle. Every day furnishes evidence the American cattle grower is being compelled to fight against competition from these countries.

Before the proposed tariff law will fit the needs of the American cattle raiser, the duties on livestock and on dressed beef must be advanced to a point where Canada and Mexico cannot afford to ship in. What has been done? The duty on dressed beef has been raised. Every pound of beef that passes through the great packing establishments of the United States, then, gets added protection. But the cattleman, selling his choice beef to the packers, must compete with foreign-produced cattle. Indirectly he may benefit slightly as a result of the added duty on dressed and canned beef but if the packers can get a portion of their supply from America's neighbors, it is a certain cinch they will pay no more than is necessary to attract cattle from Canada and Mexico to the United States. It will be a case of putting the price at a point where the foreigner can afford to pay shipping costs and tariff and still sell at a small profit. No matter if America is short 12,000,000 head of cattle—prices will not rise accordingly if Mexico and Canada can be drawn upon for a part of the supply.

Very frequently the profit in cattle raising has been realized from the sale of hides. Hides are on the free list today. They are left on the free list in the new tariff bill which has been proposed. They are there because the shoe manufacturer wants to buy his leather as cheaply as possible. He happens to be a member of the dominant industrial bloc.

These two specific instances are illustrative of the situation which confronts the farmer. He was promised much and given little. He was told if he would be patient, his case would be handsomely cared for in a revision of the tariff. And now what has he received. It is questionable whether the increase in the duty on corn is sufficient to shut out Argentine importations, which have amounted to approximately 70,000,000 bushels annually. He is robbed of his market for his cheaper grades of corn, to be manufactured into commercial alcohol, because blackstrap is permitted to come in duty free.

This special session of congress will be valuable for the central west for one reason if for no other. He will know how much reliance he can place in the republican party and its pledges. If ever an administration was obligated to deal fairly with the farmer this one is. It made fulsome pledges which are not fulfilled in the tariff law as it has been drawn. The discrimination against the central west will be even more pronounced than it was unless changes are made in the bill. In its present form the industrial groups have marched off with the bulk of the swag just as they have in the past. The only thing which stands between them and success is President Hoover and the congressmen representing the farming states of the corn belt.

NEW CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTS.

It is generally assumed that Nebraska will lose one congressman as a result of the 1930 federal census and the reapportionment of house members among the various states to be based upon that enumeration. This does not mean that Nebraska is not growing in population, but that the increase is less rapid here than elsewhere.

The last census in 1920 listed this state as having slightly fewer than 1,300,000 inhabitants, which was a gain of about 104,000 over the tally made in 1910. Despite some economic factors which have been unfavorable in recent years, the expectation is that the coming canvas will reveal approximately 1,500,000 persons living within the borders of Nebraska.

That number, however, would not be enough to maintain the state's present representation of six members in the lower branch of congress. Should the national census show a total population of 122,000,000, which is a conservative estimate, the new allotment of congressmen will be made on a basis of one for every 280,000 people. Nebraska would thus be entitled to five congressmen and a fraction over. The fraction would be a minor one, and undoubtedly some other state with a bigger block of voters would be given preference over us in the redistribution.

So it appears that the Cornhusker commonwealth must reconcile itself to the loss of one congressman, and consequently one vote in the electoral college, and have its influence in national affairs correspondingly diminished. In the senate, of course, there will be no change; each state is entitled to two members of that body, regardless of its size or population.

Either the next legislature of Nebraska, or the present one if called in special session, will be faced with the task of redistricting the state for five congressmen instead of six.

Whenever that is done, the people have a right to expect that partisan political considerations will be put aside and the divisions formed in such a way that each will comprise a compact area. There will be attempts, no doubt, to lay them out with a view to party advantage. Such a project, in fact, was undertaken in the recent legislature session, but it was so raw that even the political cabal in control did not care to sponsor it.

Should it be found necessary to enlarge the first congressional district, the proper way to do so is by taking in the closest counties on the north and west, which are Saunders, Seward, Gage, and possibly Salline. That would preserve the unity and territorial integrity of southeastern Nebraska. The same rule should be followed in forming the other districts, to the end that all sections of the state be given their rightful representation.

Nebraska wants no gerrymandering of congressional boundary lines; no "shoestring" divisions to insure the success of any party or candidate. Political trickery should have no place in the redistricting of the state.

BEAUTIFYING NEBRASKA.

These past ten days in Nebraska have furnished a reminder of what a bit of community planning and civic pride might accomplish in making this a more beautiful state. It has been lilac time. Along the highways in and near Lincoln, and other towns and cities in eastern Nebraska, the tourist has been given a royal treat. He has driven by hedges of fragrant bloom, ranging from deep purple to the lighter shades of lavender. Now bridal wreath occupies the center of the stage. It was never more profuse in its bloom than it is this spring.

At a comparatively small expense and with little work much could be accomplished in beautifying Nebraska. There is scarcely a farm which could not have its lilac hedge without sacrificing a foot of ground now under productive cultivation. Is it worth it? Those who passed one farm house on the Cornhusker highway a little distance out of Wahoo need not hesitate to answer. The two blocks of lilac hedge which surrounded the spacious grounds of that farm home were a thing of glory.

The older and more settled states of the Atlantic seaboard have had the time required to beautify the highways. Washington has her famous cherry tree drive, through the Alleghenies one drives through a bewildering loveliness of magnolia blooms, down the beautiful Susquehanna valley one passes through a fairyland in the early months of spring and summer.

There is nothing which adds more to a state there is nothing which more deeply impresses the visitor than these evidences of pride in the homes and the firesides.

LONG WINS BUT LOSES.

Doubtless Huey P. Long, now governor of Louisiana, in his younger years visited the historical museum in New Orleans, where he gazed upon the portrait of Louis XIV, for whom the governor's native state was named, and while doing so the present executive may have recalled that it was Louis who exclaimed: "The state; I am the state." And realizing that the French monarch came pretty near making good on his statement, young Mr. Long might have evolved the idea that he could do the same.

But times have changed; also customs' likewise people. Mr. Long is not the state, though he retains for the time being, at least, the title of governor. The senate has refused to convict him on the articles of impeachment brought against him by the lower house of the legislature, but such action was taken on technical grounds alone, and he may be tried in the future on similar or other accusations.

In any event it seems certain that Governor Long is ruined politically, and unless all signs fail his chance for ever rehabilitating himself in the regard and confidence of the people of Louisiana is negligible. A natural query under the circumstances is as to the cause of his downfall and the answer seems to be that it was the result of intemperate and, ill-considered language. He made accusations against men who did not have to stand for his aspersions and who refused to do so. They fought back and apparently found vulnerable places in the armor of the governor, against whom practically all of the legislature turned.

When newspaper editors of the highest standing protested against the manner in which the agents of the governor conducted raids on alleged gambling clubs on the outskirts of New Orleans, the executive charged that those newspapers were in league with the underworld. The papers retaliated by publishing stories of the private life the governor was alleged to have been leading and the practices in which it was asserted he engaged. Then Mr. Long charged that war was being made upon him because he was attempting to tax the Standard Oil company and it was with this claim that he went before the people in his speaking campaign.

But his policy in regard to the oil company had not changed and the newspapers of Louisiana had not published their alleged exposures of his conduct prior to the time that he accused the editors of being in league with the underworld. The highest class people in New Orleans were in the habit of visiting the clubs that were raided, and it was charged that ladies found there were treated with great indignity. It was against this that the newspapers protested and for doing so they were accused by the governor. Resenting any interference whatever with his rule, he indulged in intemperate and unsubstantiable charges. His own political ruin followed, for he found arrayed against him practically all of the newspapers of the state.

IT'S A DOG'S LIFE.

The American golfing stars now touring Europe are having a tough time of it.

The prince of the links, Sir Walter Hagen, played a round Saturday morning with the future king of the British people, the Prince of Wales. More than that Sir Walter was singled out for the distinction of serving as a partner to the heir of the British throne in what was described as a "mystery foursome."

There are untold possibilities in that for Hagen if his mind grows commercial when he nears American shores. What would it be worth to say the prince and I used this golf ball when we played our historic match? And then there are the little details of shoes, of plus fours, of socks, and of clubs.

While Hagen was swapping strokes and jokes with the Prince of Wales, Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell were doing their bit for sweet charity in the august presence of Mussolini. The full details of that match have not been received. Shortly, however, we shall expect to receive word the Italian dictator has evoked a plan to eliminate all of the dub shots in golf. When he puts his mind to it, we may confidently assume that putts will go down, drives will be long and straight, and irons will be dead to the pin. After all golf is largely a matter of the mind and no one in the world is supposed to possess more will than the Italian premier.

CHICAGO'S NEW LOCARNO.

The fact is made public that "Scarface" Al Capone and the Tribe of Moran have settled their fued which has accounted for more than a score of deaths in Chicago's gangland warfare.

In a room in an Atlantic City hotel the two rival gang leaders got together to figure out a "peace" pact. Just what was agreed upon is not revealed. Whether gangland will regard the agreement as more than a mere scrap of paper remains to be seen. It may be torn to pieces before the ink has had time to thoroughly dry.

The fact remains that self preservation compelled to gangsters to adopt a course which all of the efforts of the huge police force could not accomplish. The introduction of the machine gun as a refined method of putting annoying gunmen out of harm's way proved so dismaying that the leaders decided to call it a day's work. Perhaps Chicago is relieved and satisfied the gangs have arbitrated their differences. The Windy City will be spared the ghastly warfare which has raged for more than three years. But it is not the sort of cleanup which Chicago needs. Until Chicago has disarmed her gunmen there will be lasting peace.

A Brief History of Philadelphia

BY WILL ROGERS.

Philadelphia calls attention.

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers. Theres been an awful lot of printing in em lately but not much news. Personally I been over in old Philadelphia for a couple of weeks, and you would be surprised at the life the Old Girl is showing. They are organizing and trying to raise $1,300,000 dollars to advertise Philadelphia, to make it known outside of sonambulastic circles. Its always been known as one of the first places of where our capitol was located, and its been fairly well established that Washington slept here in not only one but various beds.

The old Liberty Bell is here. Its cracked but its here. Washington crossed the Deleware (with everybody rowing but him, somewhere near (wherever the Delaware is). I dont remember whether he crossed it to get to, or away from Phila. In fact I think the constitution in its original form (without amendments) was cooked up and signed here. In fact there has just been so much old history took place here that the place is practically saturated with our early scandal.

But what these boys is taking up this million for is not to buy more histories and distribute em among the night clubs. Its to try and live down this history. They dont want it known that Washington slept here, what they want it known that is that everybody here is not doing just what Washington did, sleeping here. They want it known there is more alarm clocks here than sleeping powders. They are not appealing to the poor stragler with "Nowhere to rest his weary head;" they are after the tourist and the prospective business man that rest is the last thing he wants. In fact they are doing just what Tulsa, and Claremore, and Los Angeles did twenty years ago. They want to show you that the great Pennsylvania railroad goes through here, but that it stops. They know that we know from our great learning at Kemper Military Academy that Benjamin Franklin started the first tabloid newspaper here and called it the Saturday Evening Post, and originated the idea of making the story be continued over among the pages with the adds on em.

A story run it till it went by all the adds and then it was "Concluded in an early issue." Franklin grabbed off all of William Penns advertising, and that kept him going till Wanamaker come along and opened up the first glorified drug store. (a place where you sell everything.)

Will Has Claim.

William Penn through this press sheet of Franklins, become so well known that I was named after him. Course it was kinder second handed. I was named for the smartest Cherokee chief we ever had. He had been named for William Penn, and he give me that and his too, William Penn Adair. So there is really some dignity about my name when I really cut loose and want to use it all.

William Penn got pretty well linked up in early Philadelphia real estate and tradition. He was just about the Boise Penrose of his day. Frankly in this little American Mercury of his got to giving so much favorable publicity to George Washington and his dappled gray horse. In fact it was in the Saturday Evening Post where the cherry tree story first broke. It was originated by Lincoln just to show you could "fool all of the people enough of the time to get away with it." Well Washington made Franklyn ambassador to France in return for this favorable publicity.

Franklyn made the best ambassador since Alexander Hamilton. who wasent really an embassador but was the man that originated the "put and take" system into our national treasury. The taxpayers put it in and the politicians take it out. Hamilton was going good till he run into Aaron Burr, who wouldent pay his income tax, and that turned into a feud that had never been equalled only by Andy Mellon and Jim Couzins. Burr and Hamilton had to use guns as the United States senate had not been invented then as a means of attack. When Franklyn went to Paris that left nobody to run the Saturday Evening Post, as Brisbane was working with Webster on a book called, "Don't sell America short." Well Hearst had not thought about selling it at all. He said "I will keep it and some day I will worry Horace Greely and Munsey to death."

Chicago Was Happy

So Franklyn heard of a fellow out in what was called Chicago, (for want of more ammunition.) This fellow was named George Horace Lorimer. The George was for Washington the Horace for Greely and the Lorimer was a combined family contribution. He was then working for Armour. Those were the days when we eat meat and not lettuce sandwiches. Armour was doing fine in those days; there was no terrif to help him or no federal reserve to handicap him. Big Bill Thompson was in good favor with the Court of St. James. Sam Insull was in his infancy and the whole city of Chicago was happy. Lorimer come east with a double page colored add from Wrigley and Sam Blythe, Sam Blythe had managed Dolly Madisons campaign and knew as much about politics as Alice Longworth. He lived along and useful life and died when he quit drinking while listening to a keynote speech at the Houston democratic convention.

But its these modern things that Phila wants known. They dont want to drag up that old historical stuff of what the Susque-Centennial lost 1926. What they charged the government for Hog Island just to stable our silk shirts on away back in the war is not the things they want known. They want to coax some boats up the river. Their advertisements call it a port of call for European liners, and they want to call some of them loud enough to get up here. Its only a hundred miles down to the ocean. But whats a hundred miles to an add writer?

There is very few democrats here. That, if I was them, would be my main focus of attention. Its the only state that only has one senator. That should be a sales argument. Its got all kinds of baseball, both the Athaletics and the Phillies. Its the only town too tough for a marine. Smedley Butler left here and joined the bandits in China. But its a great old town, in a great old state, the cradle of political corruption.

QUESTION.

Somerville, Mass.

Will you kindly state what are the fundamental doctrines of the Anglo-Catholics of Great Britain and suggest several authoritative books which explain their position sympathetically?

ANSWER.

Anglo-Catholicism as a movement began with the Tractarians of Oxford, in the early nineteenth century. They asserted the fundamental separateness of church and state and emphatically repudiated the connection established between them by King Henry VIII. In the famous Tract "Number Ninety," written by Cardinal John Henry Newman, he contended that the thirty-nine articles of religion should be interpreted "in the sense of the Catholic church" and not according to the then accepted meanings or the intent of their authors. But Newman later felt that his argument was unsound and in the interests of consistency he entered the church of Rome, which he declared to be the only Catholic church.

His conversion was a staggering blow to the tractarians, but it did not justify the suspicions of their opponents that he Oxford movement was a conspiracy in favor of the Holy See. The present prayer book controversy in England shows how intense are the convictions of both sides.

Advanced Anglo-Catholics teach baptismal regeneration, transubstantiation, the Eucharistic sacrifice of the mass, the rights of sacerdotalism and the invocation of saints and fasting as indispensable doctrines for the valid and authoritative worship and ministry of the church.

These issues are discussed at length in my book, "The Three Religious Leaders of Oxford and Their Movements"; "The Anglo-Catholic Faith," by Canon T. A. Lacey, is also a recent and available treatment of the entire question. If you cannot get it, read Dean Richard William Church on the Oxford movement. It is a reverent, devout and dispassionate survey by a master in Israel.

QUESTION.

Washington.

Why do you sometimes speak disparagingly of the bureaucrat. I am one, if an ill-paid government official can be called a bureaucrat, and as I enjoy your answers I wonder why we get so poor a showing.

ANSWER.

A bureaucrat may be defined as an official who governs by rigid and arbitrary routine, and who supports the undue and harmful extension of departmental influence and autocratic authority. If your position does not correspond with this statement, why call yourself a bureaucrat? By so doing you align yourself with bad company, for there is no worse tyrant than the full blow bureaucrat.

Lincoln's Water Supply.

Lincoln, Nebr., May 17

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: In a recent article in this paper the idea was advanced that the water supply of the city was slowly failing and that the city might have to go to the Blue river for a larger supply. If you will take a map of Lancaster county you will see that streams of fresh water flow towards the city from every direction except northeast. We maintain that no city in the middle west is so bountifully supplied with water as is Lincoln and that there is enough here to supply a city of a million people anytime the city is willing to put wells where the water is.

It is true we have an old salt lake bottom near the city on the west, but Salt Lake City in Utah has a salt lake near the town a hundred times larger than ours and the city is twice the size of Lincoln but they get all the fresh water they need just outside of the salt area. Our city is now supplied with water from Antelope valley, but it has been pumped so long and continuously that the water level is being gradually lowered. But here is Dead Man's run, almost parallel with Antelope with as much water as Antelope ever had and none has been pumped out. We thought we were going to pump some of it out once and hired a stranger to bore a well under the promise he would go 150 feet down. After long delay, he came and bored down 25 feet, striking gravel and the water came up 6 feet at once and at 30 feet caved in on his auger so he could hardly get it out. He said, "I don't care what happens to your well. I am going to quit before I lose my auger," and he pulled up and left. We have now learned of a man who promises not to fall over dead nor run home and hide in the closet in case he sees water in the well he is making and we therefore renew our offer to the city to make a well in the same place on the same terms as our contract with University Place called for—a good well for $1,000 or nothing if the driller fails.

Dakota sandstone covers a country 2,000 miles north and south and 1,000 miles east and west. It is 300 feet deep at some points west but tapers in the east and ends in Iowa. It is the greatest water producer in the world, but at some points has folded and faulted in such a way that the water is cut off. Some of these points are in Lancaster county. It can be seen near the bear dens in Antelope park, where it comes near the surface and has eroded away, but at the A street well about two blocks away, it is 150 feet

Famous Pets Of Famous People

The Dog That Made Even Vain Beau Brummell Shed Tears.

"Here, fellow, try if you can get your teeth through that."

BY PRESTON WRIGHT.

Once when the celebrated Beau Brummell was dining out he surprised the other guests and his host by one of his unexampled impudences.

Having bit into a wing of capon, he made a wry face, took the morsel in his napkin, called to his dog—he generally had one of these pets with him, even at parties—and giving him the wing; said, "Here, fellow, try if you can get your teeth through, that for I'm damned if I can."

Scanning the record of the Beau's life, we see little evidence that he loved any human being but himself. His only passion—which, however seems, to have insured him immortality—was for dress. It is interesting to find, though, that he did have affection for dogs.

He kept a stud of horses because hunting was the fashion and he however he really disliked field sports and when he went to a meet he generally stayed only to see the hounds break cover and to follow through a few gates. Then he returned to the comfort of the drawing room.

He confessed that it was a deadly bore to get up early in the morning only to ride out and have one's boots and leathers splashed by galloping farmers.

Dogs suited him because they could give genuine affection even to so foppish an individual as he. He returned their affection in generous measure and was likely to overfeed and pamper them.

One of his poodles fell ill from over-feeding. Beau Brummell hastily sent for two dog-doctors—two!—and went into consultation with them regarding remedies.

After considerable discussion the doctors retired to themselves, and eventually came out with a pronouncement.

"She must be bled,' they said.

"Bled!" exclaimed the Beau, in horror-stricken tones. He added:

"I shall leave the room; inform me when the operation is over."

The poor dog did not recover. When she died, Beau Brummell shed tears.

Indeed, he shut himself up for three whole days and would see no one.

"I have lost the only friend I have," he said.

Some of his acquaintances reflected that his tears for the dog probably were the first he had shed since childhood. They noted, too, that he had never been seen to mourn for a human friend.

It must be remembered, however, that at the time of this incident, the Beau was creeping toward old age. He had exhausted his wealth and was living in France in poverty, depending for his sustenance largely on "touches" he could make from Englishmen who came over on pleasure jaunts. His dog was indeed his sole friend in a foreign land. It was natural that even Brummel, who was thought scarcely to have a soul, should find his breast over-flowing with sorrow at his pets demise.

Radio Digest

Noises From Batteries.

Weak B batteries cause distortion of signals and it is very easy to produce distortion that will give the effect of a rattling condition in the speaker. Nonlinear amplification or overloaded amplifiers will always produce more or less rattling noise. This fact often misleads the listener.

Value of Counterpoise.

A counterpoise, used in place of the ground, will give sharper and clearer signals. A shorter aerial will be found more effective with the counterpoise than with the ground. A counterpoise should be as carefully insulated as an aerial and the ground connection omitted entirely from the set. If there are two aerials, the long one may be used as a counterpoise.

Source of Static.

According to W. Van Nostrand of the radio supervision service of the United States Department of Commerce, most reception interference troubles can be traced to the grounded high voltage wires coming in contact with trees. Sudden bursts of static which interrupt programs have been traced to power wires, the insulation on which has decayed and which were striking trees. The resulting electrical discharges immediately were reflected in the sensitive receivers.

Choosing a Receiver.

When planning to buy a radio set, first decide the amount of money to be spent. Then investigate the receivers for sale in that price. In the event that it is difficult to make a choice at the store, it is advisable to have a demonstration at the home and choose the set that performs the best, bearing in mind that the chosen one should have a pleasing tone, as well as being sensitive and selective from both ends of the tuning dial as well as at the middle.

Cornhusker Round-up Beginning May 30 To Attract Hundreds Of Nebraska Graduates to Lincoln

Class reunions and the renewing of old bonds of loyalty to the University of Nebraska will bring alumni from all over the country to Lincoln on May 30,, 31, and June 1, for the eighth annual Cornhusker "Round-Up."

While gradutes of each year's classes will have an active part in the annual return, there are several classes observing special reunions. Members of the class of '09, twenty years after graduation, are planning to return en masse to the campus. Plans for the '09 reunion are in charge of Robert Fulton, Lincoln, who is president of the class.

Special reunions will be held by those who graduated or would have graduated with the classes of '86, '87, '88 and '89, of '05, '06, '07, and '08, and of '24, '25, '26 and '27. Members of each one of these groups were in the university together as a whole—freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors—and a greater percentage of their classmates will be present than would be with single class reunions. These special reunions come every five years for each class.

Ivy Day On May 30.

Thursday, May 30, is designated as Ivy Day and is devoted largely to undergraduate activities. Appropriate memorial services will be incorporated into the program, in keeping with the fact that May 30 is Decoration day. Senior honorary societies will select their members, fraternities and sororities will contest among themselves in singing contests ,a senior co-ed will be crowned queen of the May, the ivy will be planted in traditional manner, the Ivy day orator will expound—all under the trees north of the Administration building on the city campus.

The first evening is left open for "grads" to seek out old friends and classmates for informal reminiscing. Old professors are expecting many calls during the evening.

Friday morning, May 31, the annual meeting of the Alumni council will bring delegated representatives of each class and chartered alumni club together in a business session. Alumni association business will be transacted, subject to the approval of the general business session which follows the alumni luncheon Saturday noon, June 1.

Friday afternoon the annual competitive drill of students in the university R. O. T. C. is scheduled. Companies and platoons will contest for military supremacy. Later in the afternoon the Cornhusker baseball team will meet the Missouri university Tigers in the first of a two-game series. The contest will be played at Landis field.

Plan Alumni Party.

A huge alumni party will attract graduates of all ages to Capitol beach, west of Lincoln, in the evening. Arrangements have been made so that admission and many concessions at the beach will be free to all alumni who secure registration buttons at the alumni office. A special program will be arranged to add to the hilarity.

Class breakfasts are scheduled for Saturday morning. Members of the class of '09 and the special reunion classes, as well as several other groups, will meet over the coffee cups to start the last day of the Round-Up. At about 10 o'clock Saturday morning a baseball game between alumni stars and the varsity second-string team will begin. Mathias Volz, former Husker basketball captain and baseball player, will have charge of the alumni team. The game will probably be played on the Ag College diamond.

A general reunion at the Agricultural college campus following the game will precede the alumni luncheon, held at the Student Activities building on the Ag campus. An address by Searl S. Davis, Plattsmouth, member of the class of '09, will follow the business meeting after the luncheon and will end the noon program. The second of the Missouri-Nebraska baseball games will be played in the afternoon at Landis field.

Both Friday and Saturday night campus organizations are planning banquets for returning members. Parties, receptions, and smokers are also held in conjunction with many of the banquets.

Radio Digest

Reception From Indoor Antenna.

The important thing to remember in the case of radio reception in large steel apartment houses or in a hotel, with the indoor antenna, the only means of pick-up available is that the receiver must have plenty of radio frequency amplification, which means that it will have enough gain to strengthen the radio currents that are induced in such a small antenna, so that the currents will be strong enough to make a good healthy response in the signals that issue from the loud speaker.

Overhaul Set for Summer Service.

Apply the old-fashioned "housecleaning" method to the set at this time of the year in order to obtain best results durhng summer months. Every set will work so much the better for an occasional inspection and cleaning, with particular emphasis being placed on seeing that all contacts are tight and clean and that tubes are at proper amplifying strength. Spring time is the logical time for an overall inspection of this character inasmuch as the coming summer months will find reception conditions the least favorable.

For the Notebook.

The 227 type A. C. tube should be employed as a detector.

A vario-condenser and a loose-coupler give finer tuning.

Moisture will affect both A and B batteries. Keep them dry.

"B" batteries that show only 20 volts should be discarded as this weak current drags down rather than assists the other one that registers 45 volts.

Some batteries do not have the terminals marked, but they can be distinguished by connecting a wire to each terminal and putting the ends in a glass of salt water. Bubbles will collect at the negative, while the positive will remain the same. Keep the wires separated.

Radiograms.

England and Wales have 2,375,342 licensed radio sets.

"Radario" is a new word coined to describe the adaption of a talking picture for radio.

There are now four women program directors for radio station in the United States.

Station KOMO, Seattle, reports that it is reliably heard 1000 miles away using 1000 watts power.

About 90 per cent of all the radio equipment in the world is of American, British or German origin.

Gibson City, Ill., has a radio club which works to find and eliminate interference in radio reception in the community.

Radio fans in Canada pay the government $1 a year each to prevent static and unnecessary noise in reception. More than $250,000 collected annually by a tax of $1 on every radio receiving set in the Dominion is used to maintain government "trouble" stations in 20 principal Canadian cities. These stations are manned by electrical experts, and each station is equipped with an automobile fitted out with instruments and apparatus for detecting the source of static.

Doane College Notes

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Trout, '24 (Maida Shallcross, '27), of South St. Joseph, Mo., announce the birth of a daughter, Marjorie Ann, May 10, in Omaha.

R. M. Hartigan, '22, who has been working with the General Electric Co., of Fort Wayne, Ind., has been promoted to the headship of his department with five engineers working under him. Recently he was called before the general manager at Fort Wayne and presented with a check for $100, as an award of appreciation for a machine which he had designed to be used for testing transformers. The machine will test 12,000 transformers a week.

Lincoln Children Learn A. B. C.'s By Playing Circus and Building Fountain

The 1B class of Saratoga school, of which Miss Lucille Wickstrom is teacher, last September decided to play circus in school, the youngsters having come to school with many tales of the then recent Nebraska state fair. To make the circus of the upper picture, they began by drawing animals on the black board which they had seen in this circus. When a drawing was voted good enough to keep, the outline was marked over with dark blue crayon and transferred to

PIRATES AHOY! - - By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

Eighteen Men in an Open Boat.

When William Bligh was put off the Bounty into an open boat by his mutinous crew, he was at first merely mad. He vented his fury in shouted threats to have them all hanged when they got back to England.

But when the Bounty was hull down on the horizon, Lieutenant Bligh remembered that he was in the middle of a very large ocean, half way around the globe from England.

There were then eighteen men, besides Blight, in the boat, which was twenty-three feet long, undecked, and provided with a mast and a sail. Provisions consisted of 150 pounds of bread, thirty-two pouns of pork, twenty-eight gallons of water, six quarts of rum and six bottles of wine. There were four cutlasses for defense.

The men were packed so closely into the boat that they had to sit in cramped positions, and could hardly find room for rowing. The boat was down in the water so far that the slightest wind sent waves over her gunwales.

Bligh was a resourceful individual, and so tough that no hardship frightened him. He ordered his men to start rowing. The little island of Tofoa was only forty miles away. They would stop there and take on some breadfruit and other fresh supplies, and then start for the Dutch island of Timor, almost 4,000 miles away, stopping at every island for rest and supplies.

These plans were radically changed after the visit to Tofoa. Some cocoanuts were obtained there, but the natives put on a demonstration of their stone-throwing talents. They killed John Norton, the quartermaster, and wounded nearly everybody in the boat. They could throw stones very accurately, because they had had practically nothing else to do all their lives, but practice stone-throwing.

Now there were eighteen men in all in the open boat, including Lieutenant Bligh. Most of them were suffering from bruises, but they were not very low in spirits when, on May 2, 1789, they set a course resolutely eastward, determined to land at no more islands inhabited solely by savages.

Next day a gale came howling across the limitless ocaen—the first of many storms that these castaway mariners were destined to face in their long battle wih the elements.

The salt water drenched all the occupants of the boat, and most of them got all the exercise they needed that day, bailing out the water. It was found necessary to throw overboard all but the most essential clothes, and all spare ropes and sails, in order to lighten the boat a little. The chief care of the adventurers was to keep their supply of bread from being spoiled by salt water.

Bligh's parsimony, which was constitutional and involuntary, now became the means of saving the hard-pressed little company. Under the leadership of any other man in the world, these unfortunate sailors must have perished. But Bligh knew how to parcel out food.

He found a musket ball which was known to weigh just one-twenty-fifth of a pound. The carpenter rigged a pair of simple balances. Into one plate was put the bit of lead. Into the other was placed just a large enough pinch of bread to make the scale balance. That was each man's portion of bread for a meal, and there were three meals a day. A teaspoonful of rum was also served to each person in the boat after a particularly hard night, or when the rain had drenched everybody to the skin and made each miserable sailor shiver when the sun went down.

Lieutenant Bligh announced that there would be no more landings until the party should reach Australia (then called New Holland). There, he said, they might land to stretch their legs a bit and pick up some food, if there were any to be had. Then, on to Timor, where there was a Dutch settlement somewhere. Australia was not yet safe for white men.

Bligh was a good navigator. He kept his course true in spite of storm and hardship and faitness from hunger.

For six days and nights the rain poured down, and the sun was hidden. The liberal supply of rainwater kept the crew from famishing, but it also gave everybody chills, rheumatic pains, and fits of depression. A good cup of hot tea would have been quite welcome in the circumstances.

Bligh ordered all the men to strip, wring out their clothes in the seawater, and dress themselves again. The sea-water was warmer than the descending torrents, and the men praised their commander for this ingenious device for warding off chills.

When the sea was not running too high, half of the occupants were made to lie down while the others sat up. This arrangement provided for some little rest for the exhausted mariners.

Passing some small islands, the castaways were chased by boatloads of natives, but managed to outdistance the clumsy boats of their pursuers.

Lieutenant Bligh kept a log of the voyage of the Bounty's boat. Much of the time his hands were almost too sore and stiff to grasp a pencil, but he managed to make entries nearly every day. This log has been preserved, and is one of the greatest curiosities of marine literature. It tells a day-by-day story that would wring tears from the hardest cynic, even 140 years after it was written.

On Sunday, the 17th of May, nineteen days after the little party had been put off the Bounty by the mutineers who had taken charge of the ship, Lieutenant Bligh makes this entry:

"At dawn of day I found every person complaining, and some of them solicited extra allowance, which I positively refused."

Good old Bligh! Now, at last, his notorious stinginess had become a virtue. He absolutely revelled in the opportunity to refuse food to hungry men, and here was his golden opportunity.

Again: "Being miserably wet and cold, I served to the people a teaspoonful of rum each, to enable them to bear their distressed condition."

Bligh was a great disciplinarian, and he needed all his talents in this situation. The men were afraid of him, and besides, they were sensible enough to know that only by obedience and resignation could they hope to battle hrough.

An ounce and a half of pork was allowed to each man daily as long as the pork lasted. A fish was caught on an improvised hook, but it got away, causing more disappointment in that boat than a lost election causes in a hopeful political party.

When a sea-bird was caught, Bligh had it cut up into eighteen pieces, and divided out among the unfortunates by a system of blind choosing. The twenty-fifth part of a pound of bread was a regular standby. That was the regulation ration. If a teaspoonful of rum was added, or a sip of wine, or an ounce of salt pork there was wild reioicing. At sea in an open boat, with a cold rain falling and the nearest land a thousand heartaches

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Editor—Here I am again. Once a pest, always a pest. I am just running over with questions.

First, why din't Pola Negri make any more pictures? I haven't seen her for a year.

I saw "Redeeming Sin" and thought it was very good. Who was the little boy that played as Dolores Costello's brother? Isn't he cute? What is his address? I surely like Dolores Costello.

I like George Stone, too. "State Street Sadie," "Tenderloin" and "Redeeming Sin" would have been spoiled if he had not been playing in them.

I thought "Flying Fleet" was very good also.

Would you please give me the addresses of the following: Dolores Costello, Clara Bow, Joan Crawford, Alice White, Betty Compson, Gloria Swanson, Pola Negri, Greta Garbo, John Loder, Jack Holt, John Gilbert, George Stone and Tom Mix?

What is Al Jolson's latest picture? Has he made any more since "The Jazz Singer?"

"Well, I will sign off, with many, oh ever so many thanks, MAIZIE.

Please don't apologize for writing to me. You know I am always glad to hear from you.

Pola has returned to her native land, which is the reason we no longer see any new picture featuring her. She is said to have a contract with a German film company at a fabulous salary.

Phillipe de Lacy was the little boy who had the role of "Petite" in "The Redeeming Sin." You may write him at 1949 Grace Ave., Hollywood.

George is a pretty slick young fellow. He's a free lance, but you should be able to locate him on the Warner Brothers lot ,5842 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood, Calif. Address Dolores there also.

Clara Bow, John Loder and Jack Holt receive mail through Paramount, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, Calif. A letter sent there would be forwarded to Pola.

Joan Crawford, Greta Garbo and John Gilbert are the highlights at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, Calif.

Gloria Swanson heads her own company. Address her at the Tec-Art Studio, Hollywood.

Alice White and Betty Compson work for First National, Burbank, Calif.

"Little Pal" is the title of the latest Al Jolson singing feature. He made "The Singing Fool" after "The Jazz Singer." Didn't you see it?

---

Dear Movie Editor—It has been such a long time since I have written to you that I feel I have almost been forgotten. I will not ask a great many questions this time, so don't be frightened when you start reading my letter.

Who was the leading man in 'The Scarlet Lady?". I thought he was splendid.

When you break in as an extra, how do extras rank? Which ones get a chance to get in the movies first? I've heard my friends talk about it and I want to know for sure.

I saw in the paper that western pictures are not popular anymore. Aren't they?

Did Greta Garbo play opposite John Gilbert in any picture? I don't see how anybody can help but love John. He is so wonderful.

I said I wouldn't write much, so I'll not disappoint you. By the way, is Clara Bow back from her vacation?

Well, so long Editor. AN INTERESTED FAN, Blue Rapids, Kans.

It takes more than a few questions to terrify me and we are glad to have you with us again.

Don Alvarado took the part of "Prince Karloff" in "The Scarlet Lady."

Lady Luck plays a very important role in the lives of the extras. There is no "cut and dried" law as to how they are chosen. They all register at the Central Casting bureau, stating their types, experience, height weight, complexion, etc. They must have a complete wardrobe of their own for modern roles, but costumes are furnished in a "period" picture.

An order is given from the studio for a certain number of players of given types, and the extras are chosen from their record on file according to their type and other qualifications. Of course, the player with some experience is given the preference. Many extras have work nearly every day in the year, while others are only called a day or two a month.

If an extra happens to stand out from the others, he or she, is occasionally given a "bit" in a picture, and the climb upward has begun.

Once in a while a director or some influential person discovers an 'unknown'" and gives her a screen test. If the test is successful and she appears to screen well, she is given an opportunity ahead of the others on the list. It's a good business to stay away from unless you are prepared for years of grief and hard work.

Western pictures are not quite as popular as they have been in the past, but there are still enough made to supply the demand.

Yes, Greta has played opposite Mr. Gilbert in several pictures. "Flesh and the Devil" was her first one opposite him, and "A Woman of Affairs" was their last together.

Clara has returned to the studio to start work on "Dangerous Curves" She takes the role of a clown in it.

---

Dear Movie Editor—I sure don't see anything in Ruth Elder. Here are my favorites: Alice White, Sue Carol, Nancy Carroll, Clara Bow, Sally O'Neil, Anita Loos, Marion Davies, Phyllis Haver, Laura La Plante, Philippe de Lacey, Junior Coughlin, Nick Stuart, John Gilbert, Hoot Gibson& Gary Cooper, Jack Holt and Buddy Rogers.

Colleen Moore surely was good in "Naughty But Nice." Boy! how she can dance. How old is Dorothy Appleby? She surely is attractive.

Where is Jackie Coogan? I heard he was in Germany. I hope he returns to the screen soon.

Sue Carol and Nick Stuart sure would make a good couple. Also Johnny Mack Brown and Anita Page.

Doug sure is lucky to get a girl like Joan. Please tell me all you know about her.

Pola Negri bores me to death, how old is she?

Is it Marion Davies or Phyllis Haver who is marrying a prominent business man and retiring from the screen? I have been telling everyone it is Marion. How old are they. Tell me all you know about them.

Where may I reach Phillipe De Lacey, Junior Coughlin and Anita Loos?

I would like the fans to give their view on my opinion of the stars. Better sign off now.—"BOB." Fairbury, Nebr.

You have a variety in your choice of favorites.

Dorothy is in the early twenties.

Jackie was in Germany, but he is travelling all around in his vaudeville tour. His stay in Germany was lengthened by some child disease. I expect he will be putting in an appearance in a new picture soon, although he has not yet announced just when.

Joan is another dancer who has made good on the screen. Her real name is Lucile Le Seuer and you saw her first as Jackie Coogan's leading lady in "Old Clothes." Joan has reached the top entirely by her own efforts as se was a poor girl with no family "pull" to help her along. She danced in the Follies in New York before she decided to try her luck in Hollywood. That was about four years ago and the fact that she is now a star proves that she had her share of "It."

Joan has red hair and big blue-grey eyes. She is twenty-two.

Pola Negri is only thirty-one. She has returned to Europe, so we probably will not see her as often any more.

You will have to "about face" on Marion. It's Phyllis who has married and retired from the screen. She is now Mrs. Billy Seaman. Phyllis was born close to us, Douglas, Kansas, just thirty years ago. Her folks moved to Los Angeles when she was quite young and she was educated there. When she was through school, she started work in Mack Sennett comedies and made a hit with her swimming and diving stunts. She worked hard and became one of the foremost comediennes of the screen.

Phyllis is five feet six inches tall and weighs 120. She has very light hair and blue eyes.

Marion Davies is also a blond. She was only fifteen years old when she secured her first small part on the stage in "Chin Chin," a musical comedy. Her beauty attracted the artists and she was much sought after as a model. Howard Chandler Christy painted her as "Morning." She also posed for such celebrities as Penrhyn Stanlaws, Montgomery Flagg, Hamilton King and others. Mr. Stanlaws called her "the most beautiful blond in America."

Marion made her screen debut in "Runaway Romany," and to prove that she was not one of the "beautiful but dumb" types, she wrote the scenario and titles for the picture.

Miss Davies has risen to the heights on the screen and has maintained her popularity for many years while others have come and gone. She is fond of comedy roles and would much rather put on a boy's suit and "act funny" than wear beautiful gowns and appear in princess roles.

Miss Davies was born in Brooklyn, New York and is five feet four and a half inches tall and weighs 123. She is still single. Oh, yes. She's a year older than Phyllis.

Philippe lives at 1949 Grace ve., Hollywood, Calif. You will find Junior at the Pathe Studio, Culver City, Calif. You should reach Anita in care of Paramount, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, Calif. I have no other address for her.

Dear Movie Editor—My favorite stars are: Clara Bow, Alice White, Fay Wray, Colleen Moore, Joan Crawford, Bebe Daniels, Jackie Coogan, Richard Dix, George Lewis and Philippe De Lacy.

How old is Jackie Coogan? I haven't seen one of his pictures for a long time.

I sure think Clara Bow is cute. How tall is she and what color of eyes has she?

I heard that Alice White has red hair. Has she? If not, what color hair has she?

Well, I think I have asked enough questions. "MIN." Fairbury, Neb.

This seems to be Fairbury day in our department.

Jackie is getting to be quite a young man now. He will be fifteen in October. He has been listening to his applause in person the past year in a vaudeville tour. That's why you haven't seen him on the screen.

Clara's' eyes are a tawny brown. She is five feet three and a half inches tall. We must add the half, because it makes quite a difference in the weight clause of her contract.

You heard correctly concerning Alice's hair. However, that was not its original shade.

Dear Movie Editor—Well, here I am again! I saw "Sunset Pass" and I have a new one to add to my favorites. He is the man who played the part of "Ash Preston." Who is he? Please tell me something of him and his address. Is he very popular?

Please give me the cast for "Man's Man" and "The Duke Steps Out."

Who was the hero of "Tide of the Empire?

Tell me something of Mary Nolan and Dorothy Sebastian.

Well, this is all for this time. Sincerely, HENIE, Beaver Crossing, Nebraska.

Screen Siftings

Won Over to Talkies—While Edwin Carewe did not expect to make "Evangeline" as a sound picture, he had finally been won over by the innovation in films and will have Dolores Del Rio, the star, sing three songs in the picture. Dr. Hugo Reisenfeld, internationally - known theater manager and musical director, is arranging the musical score for the picture.

Graves In Feature Role—Ralph Graves, whom fans will remember for his work in "The Flying Fleet," has been cast in the feature role of another air story called "Flight." It deals with the life of a marine in the aerial branch of the service and will be made by Columbia with Frank Capra calling the action.

Screen Siftings

Takes Jannings' Role—Since Emil Jannings has returned to his native land, Adolphe Menjou will star in "The Concert," originally scheduled as a Jannings vehicle. This is Mr. Menjou's first talking picture and will be directed by Victor Schertzinger. Fay Compton has been selected for the leading feminine role.

---

Newell Gets Role—David Newell, Paramount's New York stage discovery, will play an important part in Clara Bow's new all-talking story, "Dangerous Curves." It is Mr. Newell's first work in the west.

---

Few Fit Roles—Fred Datig, casting director for Paramount, went through the registration cards of 9,000 extra girls before he could find eight girls with long hair and twenty-inch waists. They were to take part in "Stairs of Sand," the new Zane Grey picture which is laid in the "bustle" period of 1885.

Answers To Movie Fans

John Loder played the role of "Ash Preston" in "Sunset Pass." He will be happy to know that you liked him, because he's just a newcomer to this country. You might tell him of your admiration in a letter sent to him in care of Paramount, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, Calif.

Mr. Loder is a former British captain who was discovered by Jesse L. Lasky when he was in London on business. Mr. Loder has had some experience in English and German films and Mr. Lasky decided he was just the type he needed for romantic roles in pictures.

Your new favorite is thirty years old and was born in London. His father was commanding officer of the Dragoon Guard Regiment during the South African war and became General during the World war so it was only natural that the son should take military training. He spent a year guarding the Suez canal before the war, and in 1917 was given command of a squadron of cavalry.

It was not until he had tried other work after the Armistice was signed, that a friend advised John to try acting. He only played bits in three pictures before he was given a featured part. You will see him frequently in pictures from now on.

The cast for "A Man's Man" is: "Mel," William Haines; "Peggy," Josephine Dunn; "Charlie," Sam Hardy; "May," Mae Busch; "Book Agent," Sam Blum.

And here is your cast for "A Duke Steps Out:" Duke, William Haines; Susie, John Crawford; Barynev, Karl Dane; Jake, Tenen Holtz, Tommy Wells, Edward Nugent; Poison Kerrigan, Jack Roper; Lossy Edwards; Delmer Daves; Professor Widdicomb, Luke Cosgrave; Mr. Corbin, Herbert Prior.

Did you read the story in the Saturday Evening Post?

George Duryea took the role of Derry D'Arcy in "Tide of the Empire."

Mary Nolan is another girl who could tell a nice weepy hardluck story about her efforts to break into the movies. She is a very beautiful blond with green eyes, weighs 115 and is five feet five and a half inches tall. With such qualifications the road to fame should have been paved with gold, but it wasn't.

Mary received her education at St. Joseph, Mo., and went to New York with the stage in mind. She had four years on Broadway and then tried to break into the shadow life, but with little success. She became discouraged here and went to Europe, where she secured a role in a German picture, "Hidden Fires" was the title. She made fourteen pictures for UFA before she returned to this country, where her fame abroad had preceded her and she was sought after for American films.

Some of the pictures Miss Nolan has appeared in are "Sorrel And Son," "The Foreign Legion," "Silks and Sables" "West of Zanzibar" and "Desert Nights."

Dorothy Sebastian, on the other hand, in contrast to Miss Nolan, was fortunate enough to get her "break" in the movies the second day after she landed in Hollywood. She was making the rounds of the studios and happened to visit Henry King, who was casting for "Sackcloth and Scarlet." He had made twenty tests and had had no luck in finding the proper type for the role of Polly Freeman, so he gave Miss Sebastian a test that resulted in the role.

Miss Sebastian has climbed steadily upward on the screen until she is now a featured player in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer productions.

She was born in Birmingham, Alabama and educated at the University of Alabama. She has brown hair and hazel eyes, and is still single.

Miss Sebastian had had a very little stage experience in the Follies and George White's "Scandals" before she made her trip to Hollywood.

In addition to being an actress, she is a singer and piano player, so the advent of sound pictures is not worrying Dorothy.

Dear Movie Editor— This is my first letter to you, although I read your column every Sunday. I find that it is uite interesting. This is not the last time that I will write to you.

The question that I would like to know is do movie actors or actresses have play writers that write plays special for them to suit their type. I say. No and Floyd says Yes. Who is right?

Would you please give me the address of Clara Bow, Buddy Rogers, Nancy Carroll, Mary Brian and Richard Barthelmess? I would like some information about Clara Bow.

How tall is Richard Barthelmess? Clara Bow?

Who played the role of Helen in "The Wild Party?" "Babs?"

Please give me some information regarding the studios.

Hoping to see this in the paper soon, Yours very truly, T. W. M. and F. M. M.

You will find the "Answers to Fans" more interesting now that you have become an active member of the department.

I think Floyd will have to take a back seat this time. He's just a little behind the times. There was a time, several years ago, when stories were written or purchased for the stars, but that day is past. The story is the chief concern at present, and the cast, including the star, are chosen to fit the roles. Of course, stories are sometimes acquired because they happen to fit the type of a certain star, but they were in the old days.

Address Clara Bow, Buddy Rogers, Nancy Carroll and Mary Brian at the Paramount studio, 551 Marathon, Hollywood, Calif. Richard works out at Burbank at the First National studio. He is five feet seven inches tall.

Clara is four inches shorter than Richard, and weighs 115 pounds.

She has fiery red hair and brown eyes. Clara's first effort before the camera was cut out because she knew nothing about make-up. She was supposed to be a crying girl in "Beyond the Rainbow," but the tears smeared the make-up and gave her an incongruous appearance before the camera. She had obtained the part as the result of a magazine contest put on in Brooklyn seven years ago.

And in a short seven years Clara has mounted to the top and is so popular that she receives 35,000 letters a month from fans.

Her first real break was in "Down to the Sea in Ships." She had become discouraged after "Beyond the Rainbow" and had entered business college, but Elmer Clifton happened to see her picture in a magazine. He offered her $50 a week for the role of the young stowaway in "Down to the Sea in Ships" and Clara lost no time in signing the contract. She is now known the world over as the "It" girl of the screen.

Marceline Day, Joyce Compton and Shirley O'Hara were the featured girls in "The Wild Party" cast. I'll leave it to your own judgcent as to "who was who." Joyce is a blonde.

Just what sort of information do you want concerning the studios. Your question covers a broad field, as there are close to fifty studios in Hollywood grinding out pictures for your enjoyment. Just now sound and dialogue is the order of the day and there's a "no admittance" sign on all of the stages. It's almost a penitentiary crime to even drop a pin while the recording apparatus is turned on, because the microphone picks up the tiniest of noises.

SINGER APPEARS HERE WITH SHOW

LYLAH REED.

Ft. Worth girl who is known as the "Jenny Lind", of showdom will sing in Jack Hoxie's own circus and wild west show which will be here all week at Fifth and A streets with the Dodson's shows which are playing under the auspices of the National Guard. She is heralded as the handsomest girl in show life.

PIRATES AHOY

distant, one doesn't wait for the gift of a new automobile for rejoicing. A pinch of salt pork will do as well.

One night Lieutenant Bligh was moved to great liberality, and this is how he records it in his log:

"The sea flew over us with great force, and kept us bailing with horror and anxiety. At dawn of day I found everyone in a most distressed condition, and I began to fear that another such night would put an end to the lives of several, who seemed no longer able to support their sufferings. I served an allowance of TWO teaspoonfuls of rum, after drinking which, and having wrung our clothes and taken our breakfast of bread and water, we became a little refreshed."

The bread allowance was cut down a third when the boat had been at sea nearly a month, and Bligh was afraid this discipline might raise a new mutiny, but the men were too weak to object. The Lieutenant taught the men how to make a banquet out of their little allowance of bread. He broke his little crust up into small crumbs, and ate them slowly with a spoon, out of a cocoanut shell, taking as long to the meal as he would have taken had he been dining out with friends in London.

On the twenty-eighth of May, exactly one month after the mutiny on the Bounty that set the launch adrift, the party reached the Australian coast. The castaways landed on a bleak and deserted coast, and ate their usual dinner of bread crumb or two and a half a coffee cup of water. Bligh made a fire with his magnifying glass, and some oysters that were found clinging to the rocks were cooked and served all around. This was the first hot food the mariners had had in a month. They rejoiced over it as one might celebrate over a meal of breast of pheasant and fresh caviar after a day's fast.

For two days the feasting went on but Bligh stopped the consumption of the precious bread supply, for there was a long way to go yet, and Australia was an unexplored country, more dangerous to castaways than the open sea.

Bligh got his seventeen companions, much refreshed, into the boat again, and the voyage to Timor continued. They landed on a little island after a day or two, and the company was so far refreshed that one of the huskiest of the sailors told Bligh to mind how he talked, as he, the sailor, was as good a man as the lieutenant. Bligh was going to kill the sailor for this, but the poor fellow begged off, and was allowed to live on condition that he should remember his discipline in future.

Six days were spent sailing and rowing along the Australian coast, and then the expedition turned again to the open sea, making toward Timor. On the tenth of June the condition of some of the men was so bad that Bligh again feared some deaths would occur, but on the fourteenth, forty-eight days after beong case adrift, the eighteen starving men made Coupang Bay, Island of Timor, where they were hospitably received by the Dutch inhabitants.

The voyage had covered just about 4,000 miles, as we measure miles on land. I do not know of any more heroic voyage in an open boat, attended by greater hardships for so many men.

It had all been accomplished with the loss of only one man—Norton, who had been killed by savages at the beginning of the voyage. Bligh had shown himself a masterly navigator and an able manager of men.

The crew spent two months at Coupang, recuperating. Bligh then bought a small schooner and took his company on to Batavia, where various arrangements were made for transporting most of the heroes of the long voyage back to England. One man died in Coupang of illness contracted during the voyage. Two died in Batavia. One seaman overate as soon as he got hold of fresh meat, and died on shipboard. The surgeon of the Bounty, who was one of the weakest passengers in the open boat, stayed in Java, and was never again heard of.

Twelve of the adventurous voyagers eventually reached England. Lieutenant Bligh immediately began efforts to have an expedition sent out by the navy to find and apprehend the mutiners of the Bounty, who had set him and his men adrift in an open boat so far from home.

print paper which had previously been dipped in water and allowed to dry. These large pictures of the children's own drawings became an incentive for stories about each, composed by the children and later used as reading lessons. Much nature study as well as geography was involved in these lessons in order to satisfactorily answer the children's questions. Also their reading vocabulary was developed from this interest.

Make Circus Movie.

The next step was to make a "movie" about their circus when they could write invitations to other first grades asking them to come and see their pictures and hear them read their stories. The last step was to make stuffed animals from oil cloth brought from home and cut after the patterns drawn by the children themselves. A little paint here and there made stripes on zebras, spots on clown's costumes and giraffes, and designated the pigs as real Poland Chinas. These stuffed animals were then used as Christmas gifts for brothers and sisters at home.

"Our City Beautiful," was a second grade project at Saratoga, and the completed work is shown in the lower picture. Miss Perna Jackson is the teacher of the 2A class which became much interested in care of public property as a citizenship duty. This led to a discussion of homes and the things a child could do to improve the appearance or help in the care of same. Some who had recently visited Antelope park suggested fountains as a means of beautifying home grounds.

Build On Sand Table.

After much investigation, it was decided one could be made in the sand-table. Portland cement was soon forth-coming together with information as to proportions of lime and sand necessary for the building of the base. A piece of discarded garden hose with a small funnel in one end was used to carry water under the base and to the center of the fountain. Here the perforated top from a sprinkling can provided all that was needed for the desired effect. Water poured into the funnel spouted out through the sprinkler in the center and emptied into the pool in which gold fish were kept. Once each week the water in the pool was siphoned out by means of another piece of rubber hose, thus making possible a complete change of water. A lawn was produced by planting timothy in the soil around the fountain. This together with a few growing plants as shrubs and miniature swings and see-saws made a most realistic beauty spot.

Much pleasure was afforded the children who worked out this project, but in addition there was an intense interest which motivated both oral and written English lessons for weeks, provided a need for much work in measurements and arithmetical computations, while laws of physics were applied without the need of naming them. Likewise a keen interest was developed in the beautifying home surroundings as well as in respecting properties and efforts of others.

Screen Siftings

Voice Aids Actor—A good singing voice, coupled with a pleasing screen personality has won Thelma Todd a five-year contract with Hal Roach, which also calls for the making of vocal records for the Victor Talking Machine Co. Miss Todd is a graduate of the Paramount-Famous Players school of acting. Her first appearance in the Roach comedies will present her with Eddie Dunn in a duet arrangement of "Honey."

New Lead Selected—Neil Hamilton, and not Joseph Schildkraut as was first announced, will play opposite Laura La Plante in her new Universal feature, "Evidence." The film company changed its mind at the last minute and decided to give the stars of "Show Boat" separate starring vehicles. Jocelyn Lee, Norman Trevor, Clarissa Selwynne and Robert Ellis are other important members in the cast of "Evidence."

Monte Blue Recovering—Monte Blue is recovering from his recent operation for sinus trouble and is expected back to the Warner Brothers studio soon to start work on "Under a Texas Moon." It will be an all-talking, all-color outdoor drama.

Kearney Notes

Miss Bundy a well-known music instructor in K. S. T. C., has made her summer vacation plans. She will go abroad and visit Switzerland and various other points in Europe. Her sister-in-law, whose home is in Switzerland, will make the trip with her. The International music convention is to be held in Switzerland this summer so Miss Bundy's visit to that country will be profitable along her special line of work. She intends to attend sessions where world-wide musicians will appear.

Everyday Questions

gic under his rule and settle down to a drab and monotonous assent to his proceedings, their liberties dwindle. American traditions rightly oppose this inertia. They teach us that life is a healthy struggle, demanding a fair field and no favor, and that governmental interference with that struggle should be strictly limited to keeping the course clear for the contestants.

The narcotic of public patronage for private efforts is being heavily imbibed by Britain under economic pressure. The results of this policy in a great and highly civilized nation do not encourage us to adopt it. The idea that the state and its paid retinues must provide for personal needs, ends in the assumption that it must also do our thinking for us. These are among the reasons why I oppose bureaucracy as defined above.

QUESTION.

Is it true that a blacklist of individuals and societies has been adopted by the Daughters of the American Revolution?

ANSWER.

I believe that charge has been denied by certain officials of this organization. It has been stated that a list of something like one hundred and fifty organizations, alleged to be associated with communistic bodies, has been proscribed by the D. A. R. Among these organizations are the Y. W. C. A., the Women's Home Mission council, the Women's Foreign Mission Board federation, the American Friends Service committee, the Children's federal bureau (which, by the way, is a government department) and other similar groups.

The individuals reported listed as unfit to address the Daughters include several bishops and presidents of colleges, some judges and quite a few prominent men and women who are widely recognized as leaders in public life.

I have been informed that I have the honor to be on this list and I greatly esteem it. One of its latest performances was the expulsion from its ranks of Mrs. Mary Macfarland, a state president of the American Association of University Women. Lovers of free speech are indebted to Mrs. Macfarland for courageously helping to unearth this sorry business of espionage and repression.

What can you expect from a body of women, however, which passes a resolution advocating the use of poison gas, and does so notwithstanding Gen. John G. Pershing's protest against it? The D. A. R. has rendered considerable service in the past, but it should which has made it a tool for proget rid of the torified leadership fessional propagandists.

deep. The formation can also be seen on the road west of Lancaster after crossing the creek going west.

If a well driller can strike an old creek channel under Dakota sandstone he is pretty sure of a big flow. The Mockett well, or A street well, did strike such a channel. Our survey shows the channel is thirty feet wide with twenty feet of it outside the brick wall and ten feet or less inside the well. Twenty-five years ago we attended a council meeting in Lincoln. Someone asked the city engineer how much water could be taken daily from this well. His reply was, "We can get four million gallons daily throughout the year and in a dry time we could take out five million." That is more than could be said for any other well Lincoln ever had.

Antelope valley is good for about five million gallons daily, but putting more wells there will not increase the flow and five million is not enough for the city in a dry time. But why go to the Blue river, when Dead Man's run can supply five million gallons daily?

Salt creek is not a salt creek until it leaves the city. It comes into town with a channel of gravel 125 feet wide and 100 feet deep, starting 100 feet underground. Wells placed mile or two south of Lincoln park would supply fifty million gallons a day, indefinitely and be far enough away from the salt bottom so that salt need not enter the question. Then there is Middle creek, good for millions of gallons; Oak creek good for fifty millions of gallons and this is not all. Haines branch could supply a million or two and the one south of College View could supply several million. A valley crosses Holdrege street near Thirty-third street that could supply a million a day and another comes down Lake street. Lincoln will never grow big enough to use all the water that is close to the city.

It would cost a million dollars to get water from the Blue river to Lincoln. In the first place, the Blue river is so muddy that the catfish have to break a crust every time they come to the surface to sneeze. We might filter out the dead cats, dogs, snakes and lizards, but it would be harder to filter out a barn yard wash and sewage dumped in along the way. No amount of filtering would make the water as good as what we have at our door and the cost of installation and upkeep would be a staggering amount and wholly unnecessary.

Cream Buying Plan.

Lincoln, Neb., May 16, 1929.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star:

The new cream buying plan is working out with considerable economy in the procuring of cream. The saving runs from three to four cents per pound of butterfat and this is all going to the producer. So with the new plan he is getting from three to four cents more for his butterfat than he would under the old plan. This is causing very severe competition and the little, so-called co-operative creameries are feeling the pinch. They are now accusing the centralized creameries of unfair trade practices and discrimination.

There is so much misinformation being circulated that it has appealed to me that some of the papers would really like to know the facts and I have reprinted an editorial that appeared in one of the large trade papers, which really gives the true situation. I am enclosing this and it may be you will find it of sufficient interest to run in your paper. Very truly yours.

A. L. HAECKER,
Secretary.

The following is the editorial from the Butter and Cheese Journal to which Mr. Haecker has reference:

"Some men identified with the co-operative creameries seem to thing that the big centralized creamerymen are banded together to fight the smaller creameries and put them out of business, if possible. Such men don't know competitive relations between big creameries.

"The managers of these big creameries fight to protect their investments and their volume of business. Their hardest competition comes from others like them. As a rule, they don't have time to worry about what the little fellow is doing. When they can't meet the competition of the local creamery, they can just stay out of that community. There are plenty of other places for them, because they cover a big territory. They can't, however, get away form the competition of other big creameries that operate in the same territory. The only thing left for them to do is to fight.

"The small creamery that gets hurt in such a fight merely plays the role of an injured bystander. The injury may hurt just as much as though it were intentional, but in most cases the real combatants didn't see the bystander at all.

"The man who gets the idea that the larger creameries work together to help each other build up business doesn't know how the big creameries operate. With them it is a constant battle to get an advantage over each other and most of the questionable business practices that prevail are the result of competitors trying to meet the practices of one another.

"This prompts the question, why do they band together in state and national associations? They do this for the reason that business men in all industries find it absolutely necessary to band together. Each member hopes that eventually better conditions will be brought about. The only hope of the members for such a change is through organization work, and a better understanding of each other's problems. Back of all this organization and association work is a sincere desire to help the dairy industry. These men spend vast sums of money to create better dairying conditions. Not only as they directly affect the creamery business, but farm conditions as well."

Bible the Inspired Word.

Deshler, Neb., May 13, 1929.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star:

From the many letters that Dr. J. P. has written it seems as though he has much time to write letters criticising us Christians who still believe that the Bible is the book of the living God, and that in its contents man alone can find eternal life. Possibly most of his patients have left for Canistota, S. D.

Do we mean to say, then, that all the Bible is true, also in statements of history and science? Do we mean o say that the account given of the creation of the world, of the virgin-birth of Christ is true? Exactly. The first page of the Bible is God breathed as well as the twentieth and the last. The whole Bible from cover to cover is true. It is given by inspiration of God. God cannot lie. His word is truth.

Perhaps some one will say, you have not given us any reason why we are to be sure that the Bible is the inspired Word of God.
